

JOHN CALDWELL.

MAY 9, 1850.

Laid upon the table.

Mr. WALDO, from the Committee on Revolutionary Pensions, made the following

REPORT:

The Committee on Revolutionary Pensions, to whom was referred the petition of John Caldwell, respectfully report:

The petitioner claims to have been a soldier in the army of General Wayne, and to have served a period of nine months in an expedition against the Indians in the year 1795, and he asks for some gratuity for said service. The committee are of opinion that, if anything is done for the soldiers who served in the army of General Wayne, it should be done by a general law, and that there is nothing in this case to commend it specially to favor. The subject of a general law, embracing a class of cases of which this is one, being before Congress, and a bill having been reported from the Committee on Public Lands which will afford adequate relief in the premises, the committee ask to be discharged from the further consideration of this subject, and recommend that the petition be laid upon the table.
