PREFACE

Pursuant to Senate Resolution No. 60, Seventy-fifth Congress, first session, passed February 11, 1937, there is herewith submitted volume V of the Compilation of Indian Laws and Treaties.

Volumes I and II of the Compilation brought the Indian laws and treaties down to June 19, 1902, and were published in 1904; subsequently a revised second edition was issued. Volume III embraces all Indian laws passed to October 24, 1913. Volume IV embraces all Indian laws passed to March 4, 1927. Volume V contains all Indian laws passed from March 4, 1927, to the end of the Seventy-fifth Congress on June 29, 1938. During this period a large quantity of important Indian legislation was enacted by Congress, including the so-called Wheeler-Howard Act; and many Executive orders and proclamations were issued by the President pertaining to Indian tribes and reservations. Several relevant unratified treaties and agreements with Indian tribes, in whose behalf legislation was enacted or is pending in Congress or whose cases are pending in the Court of Claims, have been included in this volume. Also included are a number of recent leading decisions of the Supreme Court of the United States, the Federal and State courts, the Court of Claims, and the Solicitor of the Interior Department, all of which vitally affect the interests of the Indians, their tribes, and their reservation lands. These decisions cover just compensation for lands taken, which includes interest; the determination of value of lands taken; the ownership of the natural resources located on treaty reservations; jurisdiction over the New York Indian tribes; powers of Indian tribes under the Wheeler-Howard Act; application to Indians of tariff and customs laws under treaties, and the nature of counterclaims, set-offs, and gratuities allowed by the court to the Government against the Indian tribes. Also embraced in this volume is the docket of the Court of Claims of December 1938 listing all Indian claims pending before the court. Also included is a list of all decisions rendered by the Court of Claims in Indian cases contained in Court of Claims Reports from volume 1 to volume 90, both inclusive. The latest statement of trust funds standing to the credit of the several Indian tribes in the Treasury of the United States is made part of this volume.

To all laws appearing in volume V which have been before the Supreme Court, the Federal and State courts, the Court of Claims, the Departments of Justice and the Interior, and the Comptroller General for construction or adjudication are appended citations to the decisions thereon.

An extensive and methodical index and marginal references to Indian laws and treaties, citing where those may be found in the Compilation, have been provided, in volume V, so that an examination of any question concerning legislation for the Indians can conveniently and expeditiously be made within the confines of the five volumes of the Compilation. In the index, under the headings of "Court of Claims" and "Jurisdictional Acts," will be found a list of all former and recent acts of Congress granting Indian tribes the right to present their claims to the Court of Claims for adjudication and settlement. Several Indian acts of Congress are generally referred to by the names of their authors; therefore the index under appropriate titles refers to such acts under the name of the author.

It may at this point be called to the attention of persons not possessing the earlier volumes of the Compilation that volume IV contains the complete indexes of volumes I, II, III, and IV.

An examination of volume V will demonstrate, it is believed, that time and labor were unsparingly employed to prepare a volume to match in service and merit the companion volumes, I to IV.

It is gratifying to the compiler that the Compilation of Indian Laws and Treaties has become authoritative, being used, cited, and consulted by the highest courts of the United States, both Federal and State, the committees of Congress, the several departments of the Government, the Attorney General, the Comptroller General, superintendents of Indian agencies, Indian Tribal Councils, and those interested in Indian affairs.

Due acknowledgement for valuable suggestions and assistance in compiling, annotating, and indexing volume V is made to the Chairman of the Senate Committee on Indian Affairs, Hon. Elmer Thomas, of Oklahoma, A. A. Grorud, Esq., Special Assistant to the Senate Committee on Indian Affairs, Mr. H. G. Bender of the House Committee on Indian Affairs, Mr. Eldred D. Kuppinger, of the State Department, Mr. Ansel Wold, clerk to the Joint Congressional Committee on Printing, Mr. Guy E. Ives, Printing Clerk of the Senate, Mr. W. Grant Lieuallen, of the Senate Library; also to the officials of the Departments of Justice and the Interior, the Bureau of Indian Affairs, the General Accounting Office, and the National Archives.

CHAP. 104.—An Act Authorizing the construction of the Michaud division of the Fort Hall Indian irrigation project, Idaho, an appropriation therefor, and the completion of the project, and for other purposes

February 4, 1931.
46 Stat., 1061.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That the Secretary of the Interior is hereby authorized to extend the Fort Hall Indian irrigation system in Idaho over an area approximating thirty thousand acres of Indian land in the Michaud division of the Fort Hall Indian Reservation and to complete the irrigation system of that reservation by the enlargement, straightening, and improving of the stream channels, including the Blackfoot River, and to complete necessary storage facilities to make possible the delivery of an adequate water supply to the sixty thousand acres of land already provided with distributary system in the existing Fort Hall and Gibson divisions of the irrigation project and to the thirty thousand acres of the Michaud division of that project, as provided for in a report of November 12, 1929, to the Commissioner of Indian Affairs, prepared in pursuance to an Act approved March 28, 1928, the total cost of the work herein authorized to be reimbursed as hereinafter provided.¹

SEC. 2. The Michaud division shall bear its equitable share of the cost of the present existing works and for the development of that part of the water supply that will be used on the lands of the Michaud division. Of the cost of the existing system $362,500 is hereby allocated to the Michaud division, as provided in section 3 hereof in consideration of the share of the developed water supply hereby allocated to that division and of its share of the existing works. The said $362,500 is hereby authorized to be used in completing the distributary system of the Fort Hall and Gibson divisions, including the rebuilding of the Tyhee siphon; the completion of storage facilities, and the enlargement and straightening of the Blackfoot River Channel, and including payment of damages for the benefit of the entire irrigation project.

SEC. 3. The water supply available shall be divided between the Fort Hall and Gibson divisions of the existing project and the Michaud division as follows: Fort Hall and Gibson divisions two-thirds, and the Michaud division one-third: Provided, That if at any time there should occur a deficiency in the water supply available, the lands of the Fort Hall and Gibson divisions shall have a prior right over the lands of the Michaud division to the use of sufficient water to supply said lands of those divisions with three acre-feet of water per acre per season delivered to the land actually utilized, or so much thereof as may be necessary for proper and beneficial irrigation; and in any case, as between the Indian-owned lands and the white-owned lands of the Michaud division of the project as of the date of the passage of this Act, such lands in Indian ownership shall have a water right prior to the right of the white-owned land which shall entitle such Indian lands to three acre-feet of water per acre per season, or so much thereof as may be available or as may be necessary for efficient and beneficial irrigation.

SEC. 4. For each Indian, now owning land allotted as grazing or agricultural under the Michaud Division, who has no irrigable agricultural allotment with an adequate water supply elsewhere within the Fort Hall Indian Reservation, there shall be reserved by the Secretary of the Interior as a homestead from such grazing or agricultural allotment under the Michaud Division a tract of twenty acres on which the collection of construction charges shall be deferred so long as said tract remains in Indian ownership: Provided, That no more than one such tract of twenty acres in one ownership shall be so exempted from payment of construction charges. The construction charges on the remaining area of the Michaud Division shall be reimbursed to the United States in not more than forty years as may be prescribed by the Secretary of the Interior, it being within his discretion to require no payments for the first three years. When any Indian owned lands under the Michaud Division shall hereafter pass into non-Indian ownership, one-fortieth of the construction charges originally due from such lands shall thereafter be reimbursed each year to the United States by such non-Indian owner, until such construction charges shall have been entirely reimbursed as to such land. There is hereby created a first lien against all lands in the said Michaud Division, which lien shall be recited in any patent or instrument issued therefor prior to the reimbursement to the United States of the total amount chargeable against such lands, which lien shall not, however, be enforced as to Indian-owned lands during the period that the title to such lands remains in such Indian ownership.

SEC. 5. The lands in white ownership within the Michaud division of the project on the date of the passage of this Act, in addition to paying their proportionate share of the cost of the construction of the division as shall be determined by the Secretary of the Interior, shall be required to pay for water rights for their lands in addition thereto at the rate of $7.50 per acre-foot, measured at the point of diversion for the water hereby equitably allotted to such lands, payment therefor to be made to the Commissioner of Indian Affairs as a part of and on the same terms as the construction cost of the division. The money so derived shall be distributed equitably by the Secretary of the Interior to the Indians of the Fort Hall Reservation entitled thereto: Provided, That where any charge on behalf of construction against any Indian lands within the Fort Hall project has not yet been paid to the Government the share of this fund to which the Indian owner of such land would otherwise be entitled shall be credited upon installments yet due on behalf thereof to the United States.

SEC. 6. The funds hereby authorized to be appropriated shall not be expended unless and until the Secretary of the Interior shall make contracts with both the Indian and non-Indian landowners obligating said landowners to repay the cost of all the work herein authorized to be done, including a share of the cost of the benefits to the Michaud division derived from the existing works. Such agreement shall create a first lien against the lands in white ownership, which lien shall not be released until the total share of the cost of such works properly assessable against such land as herein provided shall have been reimbursed to the United States: Provided, That where existing irrigation ditches constructed by the Indians themselves are destroyed in the construction of the Michaud division, proper credit to the extent of the present value of the work so destroyed shall be given to the Indian owner of the land on the share of the cost of the Michaud division properly assessable against his land, and the total of all such credits shall be charged into the total cost of the Michaud division of the project.

SEC. 7. The said Secretary of the Interior shall by public notice consistent herewith fix the per acre charge against the irrigable land of both the Indian and white owned tracts, and the installments heretofore provided for shall be due and payable on the 1st day of December of each year until the total sum shall have been reimbursed to the United States.

SEC. 8. The water-right agreements provided for in section 6 hereof shall require the said Secretary of the Interior to refuse to deliver water to any tract of land of the Michaud division of the project if the operation and maintenance charges against such land are not paid in advance of each irrigation season, or if any installment of the construction or water-right charges remains unpaid for more than twelve months after same became due. The charges for water rights, operation, and maintenance and construction, assessed against lands in other than Indian ownership that are not paid when due shall bear interest at 6 per centum per annum from the due date until paid.

SEC. 10. There is hereby authorized to be appropriated for expenditure after July 1, 1932, out of any money in the Treasury of the United States not otherwise appropriated, the sum of $2,500,000, or so much thereof as may be required, to enable the Secretary of the Interior to carry into effect the provisions of this Act.

Natchez Trace Parkway.
Preamble.

CHAP. 323.—An Act To provide for an appropriation of $50,000 with which to make a survey of the Old Indian Trail known as the "Natchez Trace," with a view of constructing a national road on this route to be known as the "Natchez Trace Parkway"

Whereas the Natchez Trace was one of the most ancient and important Indian roads leading from the territory in the section of Tennessee about Nashville in a southwest course, crossing the Tennessee River at Colbert Shoals a few miles below Muscle Shoals, thence passing in a southwest course through the Chickasaw and Choctaw Indian lands in what is now Mississippi, in an almost direct course by Jackson, Mississippi, to Natchez; and

Whereas the Natchez Trace is located throughout almost its entire length on highlands between watersheds on the most suitable route over which to establish the national parkway through a section of the country greatly in need of such road facilities from a national standpoint to connect the North and East directly with the Natchez, New Orleans, and southwest section of the country; and

Whereas the Natchez Trace was made famous for the service it rendered in affording General Jackson a route over which much of his forces moved to take part in Jackson's famous victory over the British at New Orleans, and also by reason of the fact that General Jackson returned with his army over this Trace to Nashville after the Battle of New Orleans; and

Whereas the Natchez Trace is known as one of the Nation's most famous old roads, and has been marked by handsome boulders with suitable inscriptions by the Daughters of the American Revolution at great expense, these boulders being placed every few miles from one end of the Trace to the other; and

Whereas unusual interest is being manifested in the building of a national parkway by the Government, Natchez Trace organizations having been perfected in almost every county through which the Trace passes; and

Whereas the Government has recently adopted a policy and set up a division in the Department of the Interior, known as the "National Park Service" to engage in a national way in laying out parks, reservations, and building parkways: Therefore Appropriation authorized for surveying.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That there is hereby authorized to be appropriated out of the Treasury of the United States, a sum not exceeding $50,000 to be used by the Department of the Interior through the National Park Service with which to make a survey of the Old Natchez Trace throughout its entire length leading from the section of Tennessee about Nashville to Natchez, Mississippi, the same to be known as the "Natchez Trace Parkway." The said survey shall locate the Natchez Trace as near as practicable in its original route. An estimate of cost of construction of an appropriate national parkway over this route, and such other data as will be valuable shall be obtained by said survey with the objective of determining matters concerning the construction of the Natchez Trace Parkway.

Cost of construction to be estimated.

CHAP. 573.—An Act to provide for the creation of the Pioneer Monument in the State of Kentucky, and for other purposes

Whereas no provision has been made to preserve some of the great shrines of pioneer history that played their part in the drama of the American Revolution, both in resistance to the efforts of the British and their Indian allies to wipe out the American colonists west of the Alleghenies and thus close in on the colonists along the Atlantic seaboard and in waging a counteroffensive that resulted in the conquest and acquisition of the Old Northwest; and

Whereas four of these shrines in Kentucky represent in continuity a counterpart of the American Revolution east of the Alleghenies, to wit: (1) Boonesborough, where the first fort "in the West" was erected, the first highway to "the West, the Wilderness Road", terminated, the first colonization was effected, and the first legislature met; (2) Boones Station, whence Daniel Boone, as lieutenant colonel of the Fayette County Militia, rushed troops to the assistance of various other besieged stations as well as joined in the retaliatory campaigns under General George Rogers Clark into the Old Northwest, and where he buried his son and nephew, who fell at the Battle of Blue Licks; (3) Bryans Station, where the women of the fort sallied forth under the rifles of some six hundred Indians to procure water for the besieged pioneers on August 18, 1782, contributing in large measure to the successful defense of the fort; and (4) Blue Licks Battlefield, scene of the accredited "Last Battle of the Revolution", August 19, 1782, which aroused all of the western colonists to unitedly launch a devastating campaign into the Ohio country, under the leadership of General George Rogers Clark, that effectually stopped further invasion of Kentucky by the British and Indians and was the forerunner of the final conquest of the entire Northwest Territory for the United States: Therefore

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That when title to the sites of Fort Boonesborough, Boones Station, Bryans Station, and Blue Licks Battlefield, in the State of Kentucky, comprising noncontiguous tracts to be united by a Memorial Highway, together with such historical structures and remains thereon, as may be designated by the Secretary of the Interior as necessary or desirable for national monument purposes and for the proper commemoration of the valor and sacrifices of the pioneers of "the West", shall have been vested in the United States, said areas and improvements shall be designated and set apart by proclamation of the President for preservation as a national monument for the benefit and inspiration of the people, and shall be called the "Pioneer National Monument".

CHAP. 865.—An Act to stop injury to the public grazing lands by preventing overgrazing and soil deterioration, to provide for their orderly use, improvement, and development, to stabilize the livestock industry dependent upon the public range, and for other purposes

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That in order to promote the highest use of the public lands pending its final disposal, the Secretary of the Interior is authorized, in his discretion, by order to establish grazing districts or additions thereto and/or to modify the boundaries thereof, not exceeding in the aggregate an area of eighty million acres of vacant, unappropriated, and unreserved lands from any part of the public domain of the United States (exclusive of Alaska), which are not in national forests, national parks and monuments, Indian reservations, revested Oregon and California Railroad grant lands, or revested Coos Bay Wagon Road grant lands, and which in his opinion are chiefly valuable for grazing and raising forage crops: Provided, That no lands withdrawn or reserved for any other purpose shall be included in any such district except with the approval of the head of the department having jurisdiction thereof. Nothing in this Act shall be construed in any way to diminish, restrict, or impair any right which has been heretofore or may be hereafter initiated under existing law validly affecting the public lands, and which is maintained pursuant to such law except as otherwise expressly provided in this Act, nor to affect any land heretofore or hereafter surveyed which, except for the provisions of this Act, would be a part of any grant to any State, nor as limiting or restricting the power or authority of any State as to matters within its jurisdiction. Whenever any grazing district is established pursuant to this Act, the Secretary shall grant to owners of land adjacent to such district, upon application of any such owner, such rights-of-way over the lands included in such district for stock-driving purposes as may be necessary for the convenient access by any such owner to marketing facilities or to lands not within such districts owned by such person or upon which such person has stock-grazing rights. Neither this Act nor the Act of December 29, 1916 (39 Stat. 862; U. S. C., title 43, secs. 291 and following), commonly known as the "Stock Raising Homestead Act", shall be construed as limiting the authority or policy of Congress or the President to include in national forests public lands of the character described in section 24 of the Act of March 3, 1891 (26 Stat. 1103; U. S. C., title 16, sec. 471), as amended, for the purposes set forth in the Act of June 4, 1897 (30 Stat. 35; U. S. C., title 16, sec. 475), or such other purposes as Congress may specify. Before grazing districts are created in any State as herein provided, a hearing shall be held in the State, after public notice thereof shall have been given, at such location convenient for the attendance of State officials, and the settlers, residents, and livestock owners of the vicinity, as may be determined by the Secretary of the Interior. No such district shall be established until the expiration of ninety days after such notice shall have been given, nor until twenty days after such hearing shall be held: Provided, however, That the publication of such notice shall have the effect of withdrawing all public lands within the exterior boundary of such proposed grazing districts from all forms of entry of settlement. Nothing in this Act shall be construed as in any way altering or restricting the right to hunt or fish within a grazing district in accordance with the laws of the United States or of any State, or as vesting in any permittee any right whatsoever to interfere with hunting or fishing within a grazing district.

SEC. 2. The Secretary of the Interior shall make provision for the protection, administration, regulation, and improvement of such grazing districts as may be created under the authority of the foregoing section, and he shall make such rules and regulations and establish such service, enter into such cooperative agreements, and do any and all things necessary to accomplish the purposes of this Act and to insure the objects of such grazing districts, namely, to regulate their occupancy and use, to preserve the land and its resources from destruction or unnecessary injury, to provide for the orderly use, improvement, and development of the range; and the Secretary of the Interior is authorized to continue the study of erosion and flood control and to perform such work as may be necessary amply to protect and rehabilitate the areas subject to the provisions of this Act, through such funds as may be made available for that purpose, and any willful violation of the provisions of this Act

Permits.		SEC. 3. That the Secretary of the Interior is hereby authorized to issue or cause to be issued permits to graze livestock on such grazing districts to such bona fide settlers, residents, and other stock owners as under his rules and regulations are entitled to participate in the use of the range, upon the payment annually of reasonable fees in each case to be fixed or determined from time to time: Provided, That grazing permits shall be issued only to citizens of the United States or to those who have filed the necessary declarations of intention to become such, as required by the naturalization laws and to groups, associations, or corporations authorized to conduct business under the laws of the State in which the grazing district is located. Preference shall be given in the issuance of grazing permits to those within or near a district who are landowners engaged in the livestock business, bona fide occupants or settlers, or owners of water or water rights, as may be necessary to permit the proper use of lands, water or water rights owned, occupied, or leased by them, except that until July 1, 1935, no preference shall be given in the issuance of such permits to any such owner, occupant, or settler, whose rights were acquired between January 1, 1934, and December 31, 1934, both dates inclusive, except that no permittee complying with the rules and regulations laid down by the Secretary of the Interior shall be denied the renewal of such permit, if such denial will impair the value of the grazing unit of the permittee, when such unit is pledged as security for any bona fide loan. Such permits shall be for a period of not more than ten years, subject to the preference right of the permittees to renewal in the discretion of the Secretary of the Interior, who shall specify from time to time numbers of stock and seasons of use. During periods of range depletion due to severe drought or other natural causes, or in case of a general epidemic of disease, during the life of the permit, the Secretary of the Interior is hereby authorized, in his discretion to remit, reduce, refund in whole or in part, or authorize postponement of payment of grazing fees for such depletion period so long as the emergency exists: Provided further, That nothing in this Act shall be construed or administered in any way to diminish or impair any right to the possession and use of water for mining, agriculture, manufacturing, or other purposes which has heretofore vested or accrued under existing law validly affecting the public lands or which may be hereafter initiated or acquired and maintained in accordance with such law. So far as consistent with the purposes and provisions of this Act, grazing privileges recognized and acknowledged shall be adequately safeguarded, but the creation of a grazing district or the issuance of a permit pursuant to the provisions of this Act shall not create any right, title, interest, or estate in or to the lands. SEC. 4. Fences, wells, reservoirs, and other improvements necessary to the care and management of the permitted livestock may be constructed on the public lands within such grazing districts under permit issued by the authority of the Secretary, or under such cooperative arrangement as the Secretary may approve. The Secretary of the Interior shall also be empowered to accept contributions toward the administration, protection, and improvement of the district, moneys so received to be covered into the Treasury as a special fund, which is hereby appropriated and made available until expended, as the Secretary of the Interior may direct, for payment of expenses incident to said administration, protection, and improvement, and for refunds to depositors of amounts contributed by them in excess of their share of the cost.

SEC. 10. That, except as provided in sections 9 and 11 hereof, all moneys received under the authority of this Act shall be deposited in the Treasury of the United States as miscellaneous receipts, but 25 per centum of all moneys received from each grazing district during any fiscal year is hereby made available, when appropriated by the Congress, for expenditure by the Secretary of the Interior for the construction, purchase, or maintenance of range improvements, and 50 per centum of the money received from each grazing district during any fiscal year shall be paid at the end thereof by the Secretary of the Treasury to the State in which said grazing district is situated, to be expended as the State legislature may prescribe for the benefit of the county or counties in which the grazing district is situated: Provided, That if any grazing district is in more than one State or county, the distributive share to each from the proceeds of said district shall be proportional to its area therein.

SEC. 11. That when appropriated by Congress, 25 per centum of all moneys received from each grazing district on Indian lands ceded to the United States for disposition under the public-land laws during any fiscal year is hereby made available for expenditure by the Secretary of the Interior for the construction, purchase, or maintenance of range improvements; and an additional 25 per centum of the money received from grazing during each fiscal year shall be paid at the end thereof by the Secretary of the Treasury to the State in which said lands are situated, to be expended as the State legislature may prescribe for the benefit of public schools and public roads of the county or counties in which such grazing lands are situated. And the remaining 50 per centum of all money received from such grazing lands shall be deposited to the credit of the Indians pending final disposition under applicable laws, treaties, or agreements. The applicable public land laws as to said Indian ceded lands within a district created under this Act shall continue in operation, except that each and every application for nonmineral title to said lands in a district created under this Act shall be allowed only if in the opinion of the Secretary of the Interior the land is of the character suited to disposal through the Act under which application is made and such entry and disposal will not affect adversely the best public interest, but no settlement or occupation of such lands shall be permitted until ninety days after allowance of an application.

SEC. 12. That the Secretary of the Interior is hereby authorized to cooperate with any department of the Government in carrying out the purposes of this Act, and in the coordination of range administration, particularly where the same stock grazes part time in a grazing district and part time in a national forest or other reservation.

SEC. 13. That the President of the United States is authorized to reserve by proclamation and place under national-forest administration in any State where national forests may be created or enlarged by Executive order any unappropriated public lands lying within watersheds forming a part of the national forests which, in his opinion, can best be administered in connection with existing national-forest administration units, and to place under the Interior Department administration any lands within national forests, principally valuable for grazing, which, in his opinion, can best be administered under the provisions of this Act: Provided, That such reservations or transfers shall not interfere with legal rights acquired under any public-land laws so long as such rights are legally maintained. Lands placed under the national-forest administration under the authority of this Act shall be subject to all the laws and regulations relating to national forests, and lands placed under the Interior Department administration shall be subject to all public-land laws and regulations applicable to grazing districts created under authority of this Act. Nothing in this section shall be construed so as to limit the powers of the President (relating to reorganizations in the executive departments) granted by title 4 of the Act entitled "An Act making appropriations for the Treasury and Post Office Departments for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1934, and for other purposes", approved March 3, 1933.

SEC. 14. That section 2455 of the Revised Statutes, as amended, is amended to read as follows:

"SEC. 2455. Notwithstanding the provisions of section 2357 of the Revised Statutes (U. S. C., title 43, sec. 678) and of the Act of August 30, 1890 (26 Stat. 391), it shall be lawful for the Secretary of the Interior to order into market and sell at public auction, at the land office of the district in which the land is situated, for not less than the appraised value, any isolated or disconnected tract or parcel of the public domain not exceeding seven hundred and sixty acres which,

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That jurisdiction is hereby conferred on the Court of Claims to hear, determine, adjudicate, and render final judgment on all legal or equitable claims of whatsoever nature which the Menominee Tribe of Indians may have against the United States, arising under or growing out of any treaties, agreements, or laws of Congress, or out of any maladministration or wrongful handling of any of the funds, land, timber, or other property or business enterprises belonging to said tribe or held in trust for it by the United States, or otherwise; including, but without limiting the generality of the foregoing, (1) a claim for damages for swamp lands which the United States allegedly purported to convey to the Menominee Tribe of Indians by a treaty ratified May 12, 1854 (10 Stat. L. 1064), but which the United States allegedly did not convey because of already having conveyed the same to the State of Wisconsin (9 Stat. L. 519); (2) claims for damages resulting from the improper or unlawful expenditures of tribal trust funds, including trust funds created by the Act of April 1, 1880, entitled "An Act to authorize the Secretary of the Interior to deposit certain funds in the United States Treasury in lieu of investment" (21 Stat. L. 70), and the Act of March 22, 1882, entitled "An Act authorizing the sale of certain logs cut by the Indians of the Menominee Reservation in Wisconsin" (22 Stat. L. 30), and the Act of June 12, 1890, entitled "An Act to authorize the sale of timber on certain lands reserved for the use of the Menominee Tribe of Indians, in the State of Wisconsin" (26 Stat. L. 1164); (3) claims for damages allegedly caused by the United States cutting timber on the Menominee Reservation contrary to the terms and provisions of the aforesaid Act of March 28, 1908 (35 Stat. L. 51); (4) claims for damages allegedly caused by maladministration on the part of the United States as respects its management of the timber and lumber industries of the Menominee Indian Tribe, in particular, its management of the Menominee Indian mills.

SEC. 2. The Menominee Tribe of Indians is hereby empowered to bring such suit, as party plaintiff, against the United States, as party defendant, by filing its petition in the Court of Claims and serving a copy thereof on the Attorney General of the United States. Such petition shall set forth the facts on which the claim for recovery is based and shall be verified by the attorney or attorneys employed by said Menominee Tribe of Indians in accordance with existing law to prosecute such claims which may be made upon information and belief and no other verification shall be necessary. Suit shall be instituted within two years from the date of this Act by the filing of a petition in the Court of Claims in behalf of the Menominee Tribe of Indians.

SEC. 3. At the trial of said suit the court shall apply as respects the United States the same principles of law as would be applied to an ordinary fiduciary and shall settle and determine the rights thereon both legal and equitable of said Menominee Tribe against the United

No payment or payments which have been made by the United States upon any claim or claims therein asserted or for the account of said Menominee Tribe of Indians nor any gratuities paid to or expended for said tribe or members thereof shall apply as an estoppel against said suit but may be pleaded as offsets. No gratuities, however, paid to or expended for said tribe or members thereof prior to the Act of Congress of March 28, 1908 (35 Stat. L. 51), or paid pursuant to any emergency relief legislation enacted subsequent to January 1, 1933, or out of any appropriations authorized by the Act of June 18, 1934 (48 Stat. L. 984), shall be pleaded by the United States as offsets.

SEC. 4. At the trial of such action so instituted in the Court of Claims, any letter, paper, document, map, or record in the possession of any officer or department of the United States (or a certified copy thereof) may be used in evidence, and the departments of the Government of the United States shall give full and free access to the attorneys for said tribe of Indians to such letters, papers, documents, or records as may be useful to said attorney or attorneys in the preparation for trial or trials of such action and shall afford facilities for the examination of the same and the making of copies thereof.

SEC. 6. (a) If it shall be determined by the court that the United States in violation of the terms and provisions of the treaty ratified May 12, 1854 (10 Stat. L. 1064), unlawfully failed to convey certain swamp lands to the Menominee Tribe of Indians the court shall render judgment in favor of the Menominee Tribe of Indians for a sum equal to (1) the value of the timber removed therefrom since May 12, 1854, with interest at 4 per centum per annum from the time of such removal and (2) the present acquisition costs of such lands to the Menominee Tribe of Indians, which shall be determined by the court, with a proviso that the United States may in lieu of paying the present acquisition costs of such lands acquire and hold said lands in trust for the sole benefit and use of the Menominee Tribe of Indians.

Payments to Indians if determined that United States unlawfully failed to convey certain swamp lands.

(b) If it shall be determined by the court that the United States has improperly or unlawfully expended or misappropriated tribal funds or properties of said tribe of Indians the court shall render judgment against the United States for an amount equal to the value of all such funds and property with interest thereon at the same rate per annum as provided by the Act of Congress authorizing the creation of the fund or property improperly or unlawfully expended or misappropriated from the date of the unlawful expenditures or misappropriations.

(c) If it shall be determined by the court that the United States has violated the terms and provisions of the Act of Congress of March 28, 1908 (35 Stat. L. 51), by cutting other than dead and down timber or such fully matured and ripened timber as the Forestry Service shall have properly designated, or by cutting such timber so as to prevent forest perpetuation, the court shall award as damages to the Menominee Tribe of Indians either (1) the difference between the net income that has been and will be received from the liquidation of the timber unlawfully cut and the net income which would have been and would be received from an acreage which would have produced, under selective cutting, if then cut, the same volume of timber as that unlawfully cut, from the time of the commencement of the unlawful cutting up to the time when the timber unlawfully cut shall have been replaced by replanting and the sustained yield from the said replanted timber shall be equal, acre for acre, to the sustained yield from the timber had it been selectively cut so as to perpetuate the forest, as required by law, with interest thereon at the rate of 4 per centum per annum for the same period, said period, wherever specified herein, to be deemed to be sixty years, unless otherwise determined at the trial, plus the cost of replacement of the timber on the same areas including the necessary protection until the replanted timber shall have attained the said sustained yield; or (2) the cost of replacement of timber on the respective areas thus unlawfully cut, including the necessary protection until the replanted timber shall have attained the aforesaid sustained yield plus interest at 4 per centum per annum for the same period of time on an amount equal to the reasonable value as of the date of the unlawful cutting of the timber on the areas thus cut, whichever is the greater.

Maladministration of timber and lumber industry.

(d) If it shall be determined by the court that there has been maladministration on the part of the United States as respects its management of the timber or lumber industry of the Menominee Indian Tribe, including, but without limitation, its disposal of timber and lumber products and its management of the Menominee Indian Mills, the court shall award to the Menominee Tribe of Indians as damages either (1) an amount equal to the net losses incurred during the year or years in which maladministration is found, with interest thereon at the rate of 4 per centum per annum from the respective dates of said losses, or, (2) interest at the rate of 4 per centum for the particular year or years in which maladministration is found on the capital investment of the Menominee Tribe of Indians in their standing timber, lumber, plant, buildings, equipment and all other assets used in, or about, or in any way connected, with the Menominee Indian Mills or the timber and lumber industry of the Menominee Indian Tribe, whichever is the greater. "Net losses" shall be determined by using customary and accepted principles of accounting. "Capital investment" in standing timber and lumber shall be determined by using the unit price for each species of lumber and timber as used by the United States in its accounting records at the Menominee Indian Mills at the beginning and end of each year in which maladministration is found and dividing the sum thereof by two. "Capital investment" in plant, buildings, equipment and all other assets shall be determined by using cost less depreciation at the beginning and end of each year in which maladministration is found and dividing the aggregate thereof by two. In determining "Cost less depreciation" the general ledger accounts maintained at the Menominee Indian Mills shall be accepted subject to such adjustments as may be found proper upon investigations using customary and accepted principles of accounting.

Fees upon final determination of suits.

SEC. 7. Upon the final determination of such suit, cause, or action, whether by judgment, compromise, or otherwise, the Court of Claims shall decree such fees as it shall find reasonable to be paid the attorney or attorneys employed therein by said Menominee Tribe of Indians under contracts negotiated and approved as provided by existing law: Provided, That in the event the claim for damages for swamp lands shall be compromised and settled by the Menominee Tribe of Indians and the United States without the assistance of the attorney or attorneys employed hereunder pursuant to a special resolution adopted by the Menominee Advisory Council authorizing the rendering of such assistance, no fees shall be paid or decreed with respect thereto: Provided further, That in the event the claim for damages for swamp lands shall be compromised and settled by the Menominee Tribe of Indians and the United States, prior or subsequent to the institution of suit hereunder but prior to the trial thereof, with the assistance of the attorney or attorneys employed hereunder pursuant to a special resolution adopted by the Menominee Advisory Council authorizing such attorney or attorneys to render such assistance, the Secretary of the Interior shall, for such assistance, award to said attorney or attorneys such fees, with respect thereto, as based upon a quantum meruit he shall deem reasonable. In no case shall the fee decreed by said Court of Claims and the Secretary of the Interior be in excess of the amount stipulated in the contracts approved by the Commissioner of Indian Affairs and the Secretary of the Interior. The fees decreed by the court to the attorney or attorneys shall be paid out of any sum or sums recovered in such suit or action or received by compromise and not otherwise. All actual and necessary expenses incurred by the attorney or attorneys so employed, including court costs, bills for printing required by law, or court rules, the cruising and examination of lands and timber, the auditing and tabulation of accounts, travel, and subsistence of said attorney or attorneys and his or their employees while engaged solely in the preparation or prosecution of said suit or suits, securing and taking evidence deemed material therein, the compensation of stenographers, and such clerical assistance as shall be reasonably employed solely upon work in connection therewith, fees or commissions of notaries public or commissioners, and any other expense reasonably necessary for the preparation for trial or prosecution of any such suit or suits shall be paid by the Secretary of the Interior, when approved by him, from time to time, as the same shall accrue out of the funds standing to the credit of said Menominee Tribe of Indians in the Treasury of the United States upon verified accounts submitted in such form as may be required by the Secretary of the Interior, and without regard to the outcome or success of said suit or action against the United States. The net amount of any judgment recovered shall be placed in the Treasury of the United States to the credit of the said Indians, and shall draw interest at the rate of 4 per centum per annum and shall be thereafter subject to appropriation by Congress for the benefit of said Indians, including the purchase of lands and building of homes, and no part of said judgment shall be paid out in per capita payments to said Indians.

CHAP. 692.—An Act To authorize the Secretary of the Interior to investigate and adjust irrigation charges on irrigation lands within projects on Indian reservations, and for other purposes

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That the Secretary of the Interior is authorized and directed to cause an investigation to be made to determine whether the owners of non-Indian lands under Indian irrigation projects and under projects where the United States has purchased water rights for Indians are unable to pay irrigation charges, including construction, maintenance, and operating charges, because of inability to operate such lands profitably by reason of lack of fertility of the soil, inadequacy of water supply, defects of irrigation works, or for any other causes. Where the Secretary finds that said landowners are unable to make payment due to the existence of such causes, he may adjust, defer, or cancel such charges, in whole or in part, as the facts and conditions warrant. In adjusting or deferring any such charges the Secretary may enter into contracts with said landowners for the payment of past due charges, but such contracts shall not extend the payment of such charges over a period in excess of ten years.

SEC. 2. Where the Secretary finds that any such lands cannot be cultivated profitably due to a present lack of water supply, proper drainage facilities, or need of additional construction work, he shall declare such lands temporarily nonirrigable for periods not to exceed five years and no charges shall be assessed against such lands during such periods.

SEC. 3. Where the Secretary finds that any such lands are permanently nonirrigable he may, with the consent of the landowner, eliminate such lands from the project.

SEC. 4. Where irrigation assessments against any such lands remained unpaid at the time the Indian title to such lands became extinguished and no lien existed and attached to such lands for the payment of charges so assessed and no contract for the payment of such charges was entered into, the Secretary shall cancel all such charges.

SEC. 5. The Secretary shall have power to make such rules and regulations as may be necessary to carry out the provisions of this Act.

SEC. 6. The Secretary shall make reports to the Congress on the first Monday of each regular session, and from time to time thereafter, showing the action taken under the provisions of this Act during the preceding year. No proceedings under this Act shall become effective until approved by the Congress.

The term 'net income' shall include the stumpage value of the timber that would have been cut under selective cutting or that was cut under clear cutting. The cost of replacement, including fire lines of the timber on the acreage unlawfully cut over, unless proved otherwise at the trial, shall be deemed to be $15 per acre, and the annual cost of fire protection, unless proved otherwise at the trial, shall be deemed to be 6 cents per acre per year."

Preamble.

CHAP. 330.—Joint Resolution to authorize an appropriation to aid in defraying the expenses of the observance of the seventy-fifth anniversary of the Battles of Chickamauga, Georgia, Lookout Mountain, Tennessee, and Missionary Ridge, Tennessee; and commemorate the one-hundredth anniversary of the removal from Tennessee of the Cherokee Indians, at Chattanooga, Tennessee, and at Chickamauga, Georgia, from September 18 to 24, 1938, inclusive; and for other purposes

Whereas September 18 to 24, 1938, inclusive, marks the seventy-fifth anniversary of the crucial Battles of Chickamauga, Lookout Mountain, and Missionary Ridge, in the War between the States, and the one-hundredth anniversary of peace between the Cherokee Indians and the pioneers of Tennessee, Georgia, and Alabama; and

Whereas sixteen thousand sons of twenty-eight of the sovereign States of the Nation gave their lives upon the battlefields; and

Whereas the consequence of their supreme sacrifice was the preservation of a Union of States that has grown greater and stronger with the passing of the years; and

Whereas these sons of twenty-eight States who gave their all that this Nation might remain forever one people lie buried in beautiful Chickamauga-Chattanooga National Cemetery; and

Whereas these heroes who gave their lives to the end that their sons and daughters might have the blessings of liberty and freedom that only a united Nation could preserve and sustain have descendants living today in every State of the Union; and

Whereas the Governors of the twenty-eight States whose sons lie buried in Chickamauga-Chattanooga National Cemetery have expressed a desire to give to the people of these respective States an opportunity to make a pilgrimage to this national shrine under appropriate auspices; and

Whereas the peoples of Georgia, Alabama, and Tennessee by action of the Governors of those States have expressed a willingness and a desire to cooperate with the National Government in giving to the people of the several States an opportunity to make this pilgrimage on the seventy-fifth anniversary of the Battles of Chickamauga, Lookout Mountain, and Missionary Ridge; and

Whereas it is fitting that a Nation that has grown great in the strength of a unity preserved and bequeathed to it by those who sacrificed their all should pause to pay homage to its heroic dead; and

Whereas it is fitting that the Nation by appropriate ceremonies should commemorate the one-hundredth anniversary of peace between its pioneers and the Indians of the Cherokee race: Therefore be it

Centenary of peace with the Cherokee Indians.

CHAP. 466.—An Act To authorize a survey of the old Indian trail and the highway known as "Oglethorpe Trail" with a view of constructing a national roadway on this route to be known as "The Oglethorpe National Trail and Parkway"

June 16, 1938.

52 Stat., 752.

Whereas the ancient Indian trail, extending from Savannah, the scene of the English colonization of Georgia, northwestwardly along the route of the Savannah River in the direction of the city of Augusta, and thence in a northwesterly direction, furnished a trail along which passed the great Indian migrations and also furnished a means of communication between the Indian tribes traveling from the Middle West and North to the Southeast; and

Oglethorpe National
Preamble.

Whereas General Oglethorpe, in establishing a thoroughfare from Savannah to Augusta (upon returning, in September 1739, from his famous treaty conference with the Creek Nation, which was held at Coweta), followed this ancient Indian trail—this thoroughfare having been used thereafter by the colonists of Georgia in establishing their trading posts and outposts along the banks of the Savannah River into the great heart of the southeastern territory of the United States; and

Whereas this thoroughfare from Savannah to Augusta was designated in 1780 as a British military road; and

Whereas for nearly three-quarters of a century this thoroughfare was used as a stage road, President George Washington having traveled this road during his southern tour in 1791 in going from Savannah to Augusta; and

Whereas many important and historic sites are located on or near this road, including (ascending from Savannah) Old Yamacraw; the Hermitage Plantation; New Yamacraw; the Indian Mound Irene (site of John Wesley's Mission); Mrs. Musgroves Cowpen; Joseph's Town; Mulberry Grove (Nathanael Greene's plantation and site of invention of the cotton gin by Eli Whitney); the town of Abercorn; Dacre's Tavern; New Ebenezer; Old Ebenezer (site of the Salzburger settlement in 1734); the Palachocolas river crossing; Mount Pleasant (site of the trading post and fort); Hudson's Ferry; Uchee Town; Brier Creek Battlefield (site of important Revolutionary War battle); Burton's Ferry; Telfare's Saw Mill; Telfare's Plantation; Stony Bluff (site of prehistoric Indian stone implement factory); Gorham's Ferry; Shell Bluff (site of deposits of gigantic fossilized oysters five inches wide by twenty-four inches long); and

Whereas not only is the area traversed rich in historic and prehistoric sites but it contains tremendous scenic value, passing through deep, junglelike river swamps which abound in game; over small black-water creeks well stocked with bass, perch, and bream; across flat pine barren lands and rolling hills, and along commanding bluffs on the banks of the Savannah River; and in the springtime when dogwood, laurel, and magnolias are in bloom the area becomes a veritable garden; and

Whereas the entire Indian trail and the original thoroughfare from Savannah to Augusta lends itself particularly well to treatment as a national historic parkway (aside from its own significance it appears entirely feasible and desirable to link this proposed parkway to other national parkways, now under construction, by developing the Cherokee Indian trail from Augusta over the mountains to Tennessee); and Whereas the cities and counties located in the area through which this roadway passes are interested in the building of this national parkway—numerous organizations, associations, and private citizens having already sponsored many projects to mark various of the historic sites along the roadway; and

Whereas the Government has recently adopted a policy and set up a division in the Department of the Interior known as the "National Park Service" to engage in a national way in laying out parks, reservations, and building parkways: Therefore

Use of funds authorized for survey of old Indian and Oglethorpe Trail.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That the Secretary of the Interior is hereby authorized to use a sum not in excess of $10,000 of the regular roads and trails or parkway appropriations available to the National Park Service, with which to make a survey of the old Indian and Oglethorpe Trail throughout its entire length leading from the city of Savannah to the city of Augusta, Georgia, the same to be known as "The Oglethorpe National Trail and Parkway." The said survey shall locate the parkway as nearly as practicable in its original route. [No. 7792]

TRANSFER OF JURISDICTION OVER CERTAIN LANDS FROM THE SECRETARY OF AGRICULTURE TO THE SECRETARY OF THE INTERIOR

Whereas certain lands, together with the improvements thereon, largely contiguous or in close proximity to existing Indian reservations, in the State of New Mexico, have been, or are in process of being, acquired in connection with the projects hereinafter designated, under authority of Title II of the National Industrial Recovery Act, approved June 16, 1933 (48 Stat. 200), the Emergency Relief Appropriation Act, approved April 8, 1935 (49 Stat. 115), and section 55 of Title I of the act of August 24, 1935, 49 Stat. 750, 781; and

Whereas by Executive Order No. 7908, dated June 9, 1938,¹ all the right, title, and interest of the United States in such lands, acquired, or in process of acquisition, were transferred to the Secretary of Agriculture for use, administration, and disposition in accordance with the provisions of Title III of the Bankhead-Jones Farm Tenant Act, approved July 22, 1937 (50 Stat. 522, 525), and the related provisions of Title IV thereof; and immediately upon acquisition of legal title to those lands now in process of acquisition, said order, under the terms thereof, will become applicable to all the additional right, title, and interest thereby acquired by the United States; and

Whereas it appears that the transfer of jurisdiction over such lands from the Secretary of Agriculture to the Secretary of the Interior for administrative purposes would be in the public interest:

Now, therefore, by virtue of and pursuant to the authority vested in me by section 32 (c), Title III, of the said Bankhead-Jones Farm Tenant Act, and upon recommendation of the Secretary of Agriculture, it is hereby ordered that jurisdiction over the hereinafter-described lands, together with the improvements thereon, acquired, or in the process of acquisition, by the United States in connection with the hereinafter-designated projects, be, and it is hereby, transferred from the Secretary of Agriculture to the Secretary of the Interior: Provided, however, that the Secretary of Agriculture shall retain such jurisdiction over the lands now in process of acquisition by the United States as may be necessary to enable him to complete their acquisition; and the Secretary of the Interior is hereby authorized to administer such lands, through the Commissioner of Indian Affairs, for the benefit of such Indians as he may designate, under such conditions of use and administration as will best carry out the purposes of the land-conservation and land-utilization program for which such lands were acquired:

WASHINGTON

DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR,
Washington, D. C., April 6, 1927.

The PRESIDENT,
The White House.

MY DEAR MR. PRESIDENT: The Shoalwater Indian Reservation, Washington, embracing 334.75 acres, was established by Executive order of September 22, 1866, for the use of some 30 or 40 families of Indians residing at Shoalwater Bay. Most of these families have severed all connection with the reservation, and a large number have received full tribal rights and benefits on other reservations. There are now three families living on the reservation, the members of which have received allotments on the Quinaielt Reservation with the exception of four children.

It is proposed to allot the land in suitable areas to these children and to any other Indians entitled to allotment on the reservation in accordance with the act of February 8, 1887 (24 Stat. 388), as amended, reserving a suitable area for cemetery purposes to be used by the Indians in common. Inasmuch as presidential authority is required for the purpose, it is recommended that you attach your approval to this letter as our permission to have the work done.

Very truly yours,

(Sgd.) E. C. FINNEY,
Acting Secretary.

THE WHITE HOUSE, April 6, 1927.

TREATY WITH THE CAPOTE BAND OF UTAHS IN NEW MEXICO, AUGUST 8, 1855

Articles of agreement and convention, made and concluded at Abiquiu, in the Territory of New Mexico, this eighth day of August, one thousand eight hundred and fifty-five, by David Merriwether, sole commissioner, duly appointed August 8, 1855. for that purpose, on the part of the United States, and the undersigned chiefs, captains, and headmen, of the Capote band of the Utah tribe or nation of Indians, they being thereto duly authorized, and acting for and in behalf of said band. Unratified.

ARTICLE I

Peace, friendship, and amity, shall forever hereafter exist between the United States of America and the Capote Utahs, and this convention, and every article and stipulation thereof, shall be perpetual, and observed and performed in good faith.

ARTICLE II

The Capote Utahs hereby covenant and agree, that peaceful relations shall be maintained amongst themselves and all other bands, tribes, and nations of Indians, within the United States, and that they will abstain from committing hostilities or depredations in future, and cultivate mutual good will and friendship.

ARTICLE III

The Capote Utahs hereby cede, and forever relinquish to the United States, all title or claim whatsoever which they have to lands within the Territory of New Mexico, except so much as is hereinafter reserved to them. And the Capote Utahs further agree and bind themselves to remove to and settle on the lands herein reserved to them within one year after the ratification of this treaty, without any cost or charge to the United States whatever for their removal; and that they will cultivate the soil, and raise flocks and herds for a subsistence; and that the President of the United States may withhold the annuities herein stipulated to be paid, or any part thereof, whenever the Capotes shall violate, fail, or refuse to comply with any provision of this instrument, or to cultivate the soil in good faith.

ARTICLE IV

The United States agree to set apart and withhold from sale, for the use of the Capote Utahs for their permanent homes, and hereby guarantee to them the possession and enjoyment of a tract of country within that portion of New Mexico now claimed by them, and bounded as follows, viz: Beginning on the Rio San Juan at the mouth of the Rio de las Animas, thence up the Rio de las Animas to the northern boundary of New Mexico; thence east with the northern boundary of New Mexico to the top of the mountain which divides the waters of the Rio Grande from those of San Juan; thence southwardly with the top of said dividing ridge or mountain to the head of the Amarillo; thence down the same to the Rio San Juan, and down that river to the beginning.

ARTICLE V

The United States is hereby authorized to define the boundaries of the reserved tract, when it may be necessary, by actual survey or otherwise; and the President may, from time to time, at his discretion, cause the whole, or any part thereof, to be surveyed; and may assign to each head of a family, or single person, over twenty-one years of age, twenty acres of land for his or her separate use and benefit; and each family of three, and less than five persons, forty acres of land; and to each family of five or more persons, sixty acres; and he may, at his discretion, as fast as the occupants become capable of transacting their own affairs, issue patents therefor to such occupants, with such restrictions of the power of alienation as he may see fit to impose. And he may, also, at his discretion, make rules and regulations respecting the disposition of the lands in case of the death of the head of a family or a single person occupying the same, or in case of its abandonment by them; and he may also assign other lands in exchange for mineral lands, if any such are found on the tract herein set apart; and he may also make such changes in the boundary of such reserved tract as shall be necessary to prevent interference with any vested rights. All necessary roads, highways, and railroads, the lines of which may run through the reserved tract, shall have the right of way through the same, compensation being made therefor as in other cases; but the President may grant the right of way to any such roads free of charge, and establish such military posts as he may think proper.

ARTICLE VI

In consideration of, and full payment for, the country ceded, and the removal of the Capote Utahs, the United States agree to pay to the Capotes the following sums, without interest, to wit: The United States will, during the years 1856, 1857, and 1858, pay to the Capotes five thousand dollars each year; during the year 1859 and the two next succeeding years thereafter, the sum of three thousand dollars each year and during the year 1862, and the next succeeding twenty years thereafter, the sum of two thousand dollars each year. All of which several sums of money shall be paid to the Capotes, or expended for their use and benefit, under the direction of the President of the United States, who may, from time to time, determine at his discretion what proportion of the annual payments in this article provided for, if any, shall be paid to them in money, and what proportion shall be applied to and expended for their moral improvement and education; for such beneficial objects as, in his judgment, will be calculated to advance them in civilization; for building, opening farms, breaking lands, providing stock, agricultural implements, seeds, &c.; for employing farmers to teach the Indians to cultivate the soil; for clothing, provisions, and merchandise; for iron, steel, arms, and ammunition; for mechanics and tools, and for medical purposes.

ARTICLE VII

The annuities of the Indians are not to be taken to pay the debts of individuals, but satisfaction for depredations committed by them shall be made by the Indians in such manner as the President may direct. Nor shall any part of the amount stipulated to be paid ever be applied, by the chiefs or headmen, to the payment of tribal debts or obligations to traders or other persons.

ARTICLE VIII

No spirituous liquors shall be made, sold, or used, on any of the lands herein set apart for the residence of the Indians, and the sale of the same shall be prohibited in the country hereby ceded, until otherwise ordered by the President.

ARTICLE IX

The laws now in force, or which may hereafter be enacted by Congress, for the regulation of trade and intercourse with the Indian tribes, shall continue and be in force in the country set apart for the Capotes; and such portions of said laws as prohibit the introduction, manufacture, use of, and traffic in ardent spirits in the Indian country, shall continue and be in force in all the country ceded, until otherwise provided by law.

ARTICLE X

The Capotes do further agree and bind themselves to restore all prisoners held by them, and to make restitution, or satisfaction, for any injuries done by them, or any individual of their band, to the people of the United States, and to surrender to the proper authorities of the United States, when demanded, any individual or individuals who may commit depredations, to be punished according to law. And if any citizen of the United States shall, at any time, commit depredations upon the Indians, the Capotes agree that they will not take private satisfaction or revenge themselves, but instead thereof they will make complaint to the proper Indian agent for redress. And the said Indians do further agree to refrain from all warlike incursions into the Mexican provinces, and from committing depredations upon the inhabitants thereof.

ARTICLE XI

This treaty shall be obligatory upon the contracting parties as soon as the same shall be ratified by the President and Senate of the United States.

In testimony whereof, the said David Merriwether, commissioner as aforesaid, and the undersigned chiefs, captains, and headmen of the said band of Capote Utah Indians have hereunto set their hands and seals, at the place and on the day and year herein before written.

OFFICE SUPERINTENDENT OF INDIAN AFFAIRS,
Santa Fé, New Mexico, August 14, 1855.

SIR: I have the honor herewith to enclose you a treaty recently made by me with the Capote Utah Indians, together with a paper containing the substance of what was said on the occasion, and a hope is entertained that the treaty may meet your approval.

This band of Utahs numbers between two and three hundred warriors, and about one thousand souls; few of the women and children were present, but over two hundred warriors attended and sanctioned the treaty; only three men of any note were absent, and they are secondary characters. The country reserved to the Capotes embraces the head waters of the San Juan river, lays above and adjoining the Navajoe reserve, and contains about two thousand square miles, not over twenty square miles of which is susceptible of cultivation, but being the best hunting grounds within this Territory.

These Indians very reluctantly consented to commence the cultivation of the soil for a subsistence, but having done so I have strong hopes of success on this point, as I have found this band more reliable and better disposed than any other wild Indians within the Territory, and during all our difficulties with other bands of this tribe, we have had but little cause to complain of the Capotes. I therefore deemed it to be good policy to deal liberally with them, to grant them liberal annuities, and make them liberal presents, with a view of such a course having its effect upon the hostile Mohuaches; then if we can succeed in teaching the Capotes to cultivate the soil for a subsistence, it will have a powerful effect upon all the other bands of this savage tribe.

The Mohuaches did not meet me at Abiquiu as I had hoped and expected; but Cuniache, their head chief, sent me word by the Capotes that his band was too much scattered to collect together in time, but that he had given orders to his followers to cease hostilities and assemble on the Conejos during the next moon, when they would be prepared to meet me.

The reasons assigned in my letter enclosing the Apache treaties for an early action on the part of the Executive and Senate, will equally apply to the one enclosed.

I have the honor to be, very respectfully, your obedient servant,

D. MERRIWETHER,

Gov. and Sup't of Indian Affairs in New Mexico.

Hon. G. W. MANYPENNY,
Com'r of Indian Affairs, Washington City, D. C.

TREATY WITH THE MOHUACHE BAND OF THE UTAHS, IN NEW MEXICO, SEPTEMBER 11, 1855

 Unratified.

ARTICLE I

Peace, friendship and amity shall forever hereafter exist between the United States of America and the Mohuache Utahs, and this convention, and every article and stipulation thereof, shall be perpetual, and observed and performed in good faith.

ARTICLE II

The Mohuache Utahs hereby covenant and agree that peaceful relations shall be maintained amongst themselves and all other bands, tribes and nations of Indians within the United States; and that they will abstain from committing hostilities or depredations in future, and cultivate good will and friendship.

ARTICLE IV

The United States agree to set apart and withhold from sale, for the use of the Mohuaches for their permanent homes, and hereby guarantee to them the possession and enjoyment of a tract of country bounded as follows, viz: Beginning on the west side of the Rio Grande, at the mouth of the Jarro creek, thence with a line running due west to the top of the range of mountains which separates the waters of the Rio Grande from those of the San Juan; thence northwardly along the top of said range of mountains to the northern boundary of the Territory of New Mexico; thence east, with the northern boundary of New Mexico, to the Rio Grande; thence down the Rio Grande to the beginning. But if the said boundary should not contain one thousand square miles, then the Mohuache Utahs are to have other lands assigned to them adjoining the foregoing, sufficient to make up one thousand square miles.

ARTICLE V

The United States is hereby authorized to define the boundaries of the reserved tract, when it may be necessary, by actual survey, or otherwise, and the President may, from time to time, at his discretion, cause the whole or any part thereof to be surveyed; and may assign to each head of a family, or single person over twenty-one years of age, twenty acres of land for his or her separate use and benefit; and each family of three and less than five persons, forty acres of land; and to each family of five or more persons, sixty acres; and he may, at his discretion, as fast as the occupants become capable of transacting their own affairs, issue patents therefor to such occupants, with such restrictions of the power of alienation as he may see fit to impose; and he may, also, at his discretion, make rules and regulations respecting the disposition of the lands in case of the death of the head of a family or a single person occupying the same, or in case of its abandonment by them; and he may also assign other lands in exchange for mineral lands, if any such are found on the tract herein set apart. And he may also make such changes in the boundary of such reserved tract as shall be necessary to prevent interference with any vested rights. All of which several sums of money shall be paid to the Mohuaches, or expended for their use and benefit, under the direction of the President of the United States, who may, from time to time, determine, at his discretion, what proportion of the annual payments in this article provided for, if any, shall be paid to them in money, and what proportion shall be applied to and expended for their moral improvement and education; for such beneficial objects as in his judgment will be calculated to advance them in civilization; for building, opening farms, breaking lands, providing stock, agricultural implements, seeds, &c.; for employing farmers to teach the Indians to cultivate the soil; for clothing, provisions, and merchandise; for iron, steel, arms, and ammunition; for mechanics and tools; and for medical purposes.

No spirituous liquors shall be made, sold, or used, on any of the lands herein set apart for the residence of the Indians, and the sale of the same shall be prohibited in the country hereby ceded until otherwise ordered by the President.

ARTICLE IX

The laws now in force, or which may hereafter be enacted by Congress, for the regulation of trade and intercourse with the Indian tribes, shall continue and be in force in the country set apart for the Mohuaches, and such portions of said laws as prohibit the introduction, manufacture, use of, and traffic in ardent spirits, in the Indian country, shall continue and be in force in all the country ceded until otherwise provided by law.

ARTICLE X

The Mohuaches do further agree and bind themselves forthwith to liberate all captives in their possession, and to make restitution, or satisfaction, for any injuries done by them or any individual of their band, to the people of the United States, and to surrender to the proper authorities of the United States, when demanded, any individual or individuals who may commit depredations, to be punished according to law. And if any citizen of the United States shall at any time commit depredations upon the Indians, the Mohuaches agree that they will not take private satisfaction or revenge themselves; but, instead thereof, they will make complaint to the proper Indian agent for redress. And the said Indians do further agree to refrain from all warlike incursions into the Mexican provinces, and from committing depredations upon the inhabitants thereof.

ARTICLE XI

This treaty shall be obligatory upon the contracting parties as soon as the same shall be ratified by the President and Senate of the United States.

In testimony whereof, the said David Merriwether, commissioner as aforesaid, and the undersigned chiefs, captains, and headmen of the said band of Mohuache Utah

Indians, have hereunto set their hands and seals, at the place and on the day and year herein before written.

OFFICE OF SUPERINTENDENT OF INDIAN AFFAIRS,

Santa Fé, September 15, 1855.

SIR: I have honor herewith to enclose you two treaties recently concluded by me, one with the Jicarilla Apache, and the other with the Mohuache Utah Indians, and to inform you that these treaties again restore all the Indians of this superintendency to peace and quiet.

There was a very general attendance on the part of both of these bands of Indians, all the principal men being present except José Largo, a Jicarilla, whom they informed me had gone to join the Mescaleros and take shelter under the treaty of peace made with that band; and they manifested a great desire for peace, both professing a willingness to abandon their roving and predatory habits, and to resort to the cultivation of the soil for a subsistence. Before signing the treaties, every article was fully explained to the Indians, and I have no doubt that they fully comprehended every stipulation contained therein.

The Jicarillas number from two to three hundred souls; and the country assigned to them contains from two hundred to two hundred and fifty square miles, only about five or six square miles of which is susceptible of cultivation, but a portion of the remainder affords good pasture lands. These Indians appeared in the most abject and destitute condition imaginable; they had but few horses and but little clothing, and they informed me that they had lost about one hundred and forty of their people since the commencement of hostilities.

The Mohuaches number about one thousand souls, and the country assigned to them will probably contain a little less than one thousand square miles, but there is a provision in the treaty which secures to them that amount of the land contained within the boundary stipulated. Probably from ten to fifteen square miles is susceptible of cultivation, and a portion of the remainder affords good pasture lands. These Indians did not appear to be in so destitute a condition as the Jicarillas, but they acknowledge that they have lost many of their people, many horses, and other property, since the commencement of hostilities.

The reasons assigned in my communication enclosing the treaty with the Mescaleros and Mimbres Apaches, for a speedy action on the part of the Executive and Senate upon that treaty, applies with equal force to the treaties herewith enclosed.

I have the honor to be, very respectfully, your obedient servant,

D. MERRIWETHER,
Governor and Superintendent of Indian Affairs in New Mexico.

TREATY WITH THE UTAH, YAMPAH UTE, PAH-VANT, SANPETE UTE, TIM-P-NOGS
AND CUM-NM-BAH BANDS OF THE UTAH INDIANS, JUNE 8, 1865

Articles of Agreement and Convention made and concluded at Spanish Fork Indian Farm, in the Territory of Utah, this Eighth day of June, Eighteen hundred and sixty five, by O. W. Irish, Superintendent of Indian Affairs for said Territory, Commissioner, on the part of the United States, and the undersigned chiefs, head men and delegates of the Utah, Yampah Ute, Pah-vant, Sanpete Ute, Tim-p-nogs and Cum-nm-bah Bands of the Utah Indians occupying the lands within Utah Territory, on behalf of Said Indians and duly authorized by them.

June 8, 1865.

Unratified.

ARTICLE 1. The said bands of Indians hereby surrender and relinquish to the United States all their possessory right of occupancy in and to all of the lands heretofore claimed and occupied by them, as hereinafter mentioned, within the defined boundaries of the Territory of Utah as follows—towit, Commencing at a point formed by the intersection of the thirty second degree of longitude west from Washington with the forty first degree of north latitude; thence due west on the forty first degree of north latitude to the thirty eighth degree of longitude; thence due south on the thirty eighth degree of longitude to the thirty eighth degree of north latitude; thence due east on the thirty eighth degree of north latitude to the thirty second degree of longitude thence due north on the thirty second degree of longitude to the forty first degree of north latitude to the place of beginning.

ART. II. There is however reserved for the exclusive use and occupation of the said tribes the following tract of lands; viz “the entire valley of the Uintah River within Utah Territory extending on both sides of said river to the crest of the first range of contiguous mountains on each side” which said tract shall be, so far as is necessary, surveyed and marked out, set aside and reserved for their exclusive use and occupation nor shall any white person, unless he be in the employ of the Indian authorities, be permitted to reside upon the same, without permission of the said tribe, and of the Superintendent of Indian Affairs or United States Indian Agent. It is however understood that should the President of the United States hereafter see fit to place upon the reservation, any other friendly tribe or bands of Indians of Utah Territory, to occupy the same in common with those above mentioned, he shall be at liberty to do so.

ART. III. The said tribes and bands agree to remove to and settle upon the said reservation within one year after the ratification of this treaty, provided the means are furnished them by the United States to enable them to do so—In the meantime it shall be lawful for them to reside upon any land not in the actual claim and occupation of citizens of the United States, and upon any land claimed or occupied if with the permission of the owner.

ART. IV. The right of taking fish at usual and accustomed grounds, and stations is further reserved to said Indians in common with all white citizens of the Territory and of erecting temporary houses for the purpose of curing them, together with the privilege of hunting and gathering roots and berries on open and unclaimed lands.

ART. V. In consideration of the foregoing relinquishment of their right of possession the United States agree and stipulate as follows; viz:

First, To protect the Indians in the possession of the aforesaid tract of land reserved for their future homes, and their persons and property thereon, during good behavior on their part,

Second, To pay to them, or expend for their benefit the sum of twenty five thousand ($25,000^{00/100}) dollars per annum for ten years; commencing with the year in which they shall remove to and settle upon the tract of land hereby reserved for their exclusive use and occupation, twenty thousand ($20,000^{00/100}) dollars per annum for twenty years, from and after the expiration of the said ten years, and thereafter fifteen thousand ($15,000^{00/100}) dollars per annum for thirty years; all of which sums of money shall be applied to the use and benefit of the said Indians under the direction of the President of the United States, who may from time to time determine at his discretion upon what beneficial objects to expend the same. It being understood that these several amounts are fixed as the amounts to be paid to, or expended for the said tribes and bands of Indians upon the basis of their number being five thousand (5,000) persons including men, women and children—If it should, however, hereafter upon a census being taken, be found that there is a material increase or decrease of the said Indians from the number as above stated, then and in that case the said amounts to be paid to them, or expended on their behalf, shall in the same proportion be increased or diminished as the case may be.

Third, For the purpose of making improvements in the Uintah Valley Reservation for the comfort of the Indians who may inhabit the same, to enable them to become self sustaining by means of agriculture, and to procure Cattle for stock raising, the United States agree to expend in accordance with the terms of the Act of Congress approved May 5th 1864, and entitled "An Act to vacate and sell the present Indian reservations in Utah Territory, and to settle the Indians of said Territory in the Uintah Valley," the sum of thirty thousand ($30,000.00) dollars, that being the sum appropriated for this purpose by the said act of Congress.

The United States further agree in pursuance of the aforesaid Act of Congress to sell for the use and benefit of the Indians, for the best price that can be obtained, the Indian reservations known as the Spanish Fork Reservation, containing fifteen thousand (15,000) acres, the San Pete Reservation containing ninety-two thousand one hundred and sixty (92,160) acres, the Corn Creek Reservation containing ninety-two thousand, one hundred and sixty (92,160) acres, and the Deep Creek Reservation containing ninety-two thousand one hundred and sixty (92,160) acres, the four Indian Reservations aforesaid containing in all two hundred ninety-one thousand, four hundred and eighty (291,480) acres. The amount realized from the said sale shall be applied, under the direction of the Secretary of the Interior, in the construction of improvements upon the said Uintah Indian Reservation, or to the purchase of stock, agricultural implements, or such other useful articles as to him may seem best adapted to the wants and requirements of the Indians settled thereon in pursuance of this Treaty: Provided, that if the United States should sell the said lands at an average price of less than sixty-two and one-half cents per acre, then and in that case the amount that the said lands would have realized if sold at that price shall be made up to the Indians and be expended for their benefit by the Secretary of the Interior as aforesaid.

Fourth, The United States agree to establish and maintain for ten years, at an expense not to exceed ten thousand ($10,000.00) dollars per annum a manual labor school for the education and training of the Indian youth in letters, agriculture, the mechanic arts, and housewifery; which school shall be managed and conducted in such manner as the President of the United States shall direct; the said bands of Indians hereby stipulate to constantly keep thereat, during at least nine months in every year, all their children between the ages of seven and eighteen years. It is further agreed that such measures may be adopted, to compel the attendance of the children at the school, as the President may think proper and direct; and whenever he shall be satisfied of a failure to fulfil the aforesaid stipulation on the part of the Indians he may, at his discretion, diminish or wholly discontinue the allowance and expenditure of the sum herein set apart for the support and maintenance of said school.

Fifth, The United States agree to provide the Indians with a mill suitable for grinding grain and sawing timber, one or more mechanic shops, with the necessary tools for the same, and dwelling houses for an interpreter, miller, engineer for the mill, if one be necessary, farmer and the mechanics that may be employed for their benefit, the whole not to exceed in cost the sum of fifteen thousand ($15,000⁰⁰/₁₀₀) dollars, and also to expend annually, for ten years, an amount not exceeding seven thousand ($7,000⁰⁰/₁₀₀) dollars, for the purpose of furnishing said Indians with such aid and assistance in agricultural and mechanical pursuits, including the working of said mill, as the Secretary of the Interior may consider advantageous and necessary for them; the tribe and bands of Indians hereby stipulating to furnish from their tribe the number of young men that may be required as apprentices and assistants in the mill and mechanic shops, and at least three persons to work constantly with each laborer employed for them in agricultural pursuits, it being understood that such laborers are to be employed more for the instruction of the Indians than merely to work for their benefit.

They do further stipulate and bind themselves to prevent any of the members of their tribe from destroying or injuring the said houses, shops, mill, machinery, stock, farming utensils, or any other thing furnished them by the Government, and in case of any such destruction or injury, or of any of the things so furnished being carried off by any member or members of their tribe, the value of the same shall be deducted from the tribal annuities, and whenever the President shall be satisfied that the Indians have become sufficiently confirmed in habits of industry and advanced in acquiring a practical knowledge of agriculture and the mechanic arts, he may at his discretion, cause to be turned over to the tribe all of the said houses and other property furnished them by the United States, and dispense with the services of any or all of the persons hereinbefore stipulated to be employed for their benefit and assistance. And it is hereby provided, That all of the expenditures and expenses, contemplated by this treaty, in the transportation of supplies, machinery &c shall be defrayed by the United States and shall not be deducted from any one of the several sums herein mentioned, which the United States agree to pay to or expend for the benefit of the said Indians, in pursuance hereof.

ART. VI. The United States shall have the right to establish and maintain such roads or Telegraph lines, as may be deemed necessary, within or running through the tract of country hereby reserved for the use of the Indians, but no greater quantity of land or timber shall be used for said purposes than shall be actually requisite; and if in the establishment or maintenance of such roads, the property of any Indian shall be taken, injured or destroyed, just and adequate compensation shall be made therefor by the United States, and all roads, highways or telegraph lines authorized by competent authority, other than the United States, the lines of which shall lie through said tract, shall have the right of way through the same; the fair and just value of such right being paid to the said tribe and bands of Indians therefor by the party or parties authorizing the same or interested therein; to be assessed and determined in such manner as the President of the United States shall direct. And it is hereby further stipulated that any substantial improvements heretofore made by any Indian and which he shall be compelled to abandon in consequence of this treaty, shall be valued under the direction of the President and payment made accordingly therefor.

ART. VII. The President may hereafter when in his opinion, the interests of the Indians will be promoted by so doing, cause the whole or any portion of the lands hereby reserved to be surveyed into lots, and assign the same, under such terms and subject to such conditions as he may deem best for the Indians, to such individuals or families of the tribe or bands as are willing to avail themselves of the privilege and will locate on the same as a permanent home. The United States agree to build for the head chiefs of the Utah, Yampah Ute, Pah-vant, Sanpete Ute, Tim-p-nogs and Cum-um-bah bands, each, one dwelling house, and to plough and fence five acres of land for each, and to pay to each, one hundred ($$100^{\frac{00}{100}}$) dollars per annum for the term of twenty years. The first payment to each of the said chiefs to commence upon his removal to the said Reservation. The United States further agree to give to each, within three months of his removal to the Reservation, two yoke of oxen, two yokes and two chains, one wagon, one plow, ten hoes, six axes, two shovels, two spades, four scythes and snaths, one saddle and bridle and one set of harness.

ART. VIII. The Annuities of the aforesaid tribes and bands shall not be taken to pay the debts of individuals.

ART. IX. The said tribes and bands acknowledge their dependence on the Government of the United States and promise to be friendly with all Citizens thereof and they pledge themselves to commit no depredations on the property of such Citizens, should any one or more of them violate this pledge and the fact be satisfactorily proven before the Agent, the property taken shall be returned or in default thereof, or if injured or destroyed, compensation may be made by the Government out of their Annuities! Nor will they make war on any other tribe, except in self defence, but will submit all matters of difference between them and the other Indians to the Government of the United States or its Agent, for decision and abide thereby, and if any of the said Indians commit depredations on other Indians within the Territory, the same rule shall prevail as that prescribed in this Article in cases of depredations against Citizens, and the said tribes agree not to shelter or conceal offenders against the laws of the United States, but to deliver them up to the authorities for trial.

ART. X. The above tribes and bands are desirous to exclude from their reservation the use of ardent spirits and to prevent their people from using the same, and therefore it is provided, That any Indian, belonging to said tribe and bands, who is guilty of bringing Liquor onto said reservation, or who drinks Liquor, may have his or her proportion of the Annuities withheld from him or her for such time as the President may determine, also, that no person, not belonging to the tribe or tribes, or band or bands, occupying this Reservation as before stated, shall be permitted to take Liquor or any intoxicating drink on to Said Reservation without special permission from the Secretary of the Interior.

ART. XI. This treaty shall be obligatory on the contracting parties as soon as the same shall be ratified by the President and Senate of the United States.

In testimony whereof, the said O. H. Irish, Superintendent of Indian Affairs for Utah Territory, and the undersigned Chiefs, headmen and delegates of the aforesaid tribes and bands of Indians have hereunto set their hands and seals, at the place and on the day and year hereinbefore written.

ARTICLE 7. The following named persons, half breeds, of the Crow Nation or Tribe of Indians, shall receive annually for twenty years the sum of fifty dollars, payable in goods or money, at the discretion of the President of the United States, to wit, namely:

Peter Bonperre; Van Courte; David Pease; Fanny Boner; Adaline Murry; Mary Howard; David Nail; Mary Cross; Horse Guard, son of Gordon, and three daughters of Gordon, first names unknown; three daughters of Taleck, first names unknown; three daughters of Joseph Le Moines, first names unknown; Miss Ester Chien.

And in consideration of the friendship and services rendered to the Crow Indians by Pierre Chien, and of their having adopted him as one of their nation, the United States further agree to allow him two hundred dollars annually for the term of the above treaty payments; provided his conduct shall continue to be such as to entitle him to the above consideration.

ARTICLE 8. The United States agree that there shall be an agency and agent for the Crow Indians and such other tribes as may be associated near them, located at or near the mouth of Milk River; and said Crow Indians shall have the right to hold and occupy the country for twenty miles around said location; subject only to the treaty of Fort Benton of November 16th, 1865; also allowing through said reservation right of way, stages, telegraph, &c., &c., as provided in said treaty.

ARTICLE 9. It is understood and agreed by and between the parties to this treaty, that if any of the bands of Crow Indians, parties to this treaty, shall violate any of the stipulations, agreements, or obligations herein contained the United States may withhold for such length of time as the President may determine, any portion or all the annuities agreed to be paid to the Crow Nation or Tribe of Indians under the provision of this treaty.

ARTICLE 10. The annuities of the aforesaid Indians shall not be taken to pay the debts of individuals, but satisfaction for depredations committed by them shall be made by them in such manner as the President of the United States may direct.

This treaty shall be obligatory on the respective bands of Crow Indians, parties hereto, from the date hereof, and upon the United States so soon as the same shall be ratified by the President and Senate of the United States.

ARTICLE 11. Any amendment or modification of this treaty by the Senate of the United States, not materially changing the nature or obligation thereof, shall be considered final and binding on said respective bands, in the same manner as if it had been subsequently presented and agreed to by the chiefs and headmen of the Crow Nation or Tribe of Indians.

In testimony whereof, the commissioners on the part of the United States, and the chiefs and head men of the said Crow Nation or Tribe of Indians, have hereunto set their hands this sixteenth day of July, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and sixty-six, after the same had been previously read, interpreted, and explained.

Unratified.

ARTICLE I

The object of treaties being the strict maintenance of peace between the contracting parties, the faithful observance of each stipulation is absolutely necessary. ARTICLE II

The chiefs and headmen representing the Indians aforesaid do most solemnly promise and agree with the parties representing the United States as aforesaid, that they will surrender, and they do hereby surrender to the United States of America, all their right, title, interest, claims, and demands of, in, and to, all lands, tracts, or portions of land, which they may now or have heretofore possessed or occupied within the territory of the United States.

ARTICLE III

The United States sets apart for the use and occupation of Indian tribes, parties hereto, the following described section or portion of country: Two townships of land, commencing at or about a point known as "the Point of Rocks," on the north fork of the Salmon River, about twelve miles above Fort Lemhi. ARTICLE V

It is agreed and understood by and between the parties to this treaty that if any nation or tribe of Indians as aforesaid shall violate any of the agreements, obligations, or stipulations herein contained, the United States may withhold, for such length of time as the President may determine, any portion or all of the annuities agreed to be paid to said tribes under the sixth article of this treaty.

ARTICLE VI

In consideration of the foregoing and following agreements, stipulations, and cessions, and on condition of their faithful observance, the United States agree to expend for the mixed tribe of Shoshones, Bannacks, and Sheepeaters, the sum of thirty thousand dollars for the first year, twenty thousand dollars for the second year, and annually thereafter for eighteen years the sum of twelve thousand dollars, in such useful goods and provisions as the President, at his discretion, may from time to time determine; and the superintendent, or other proper Indian agent, shall each year inform the President of the wishes of the Indians in relation thereto.

ARTICLE VIII

And the United States doth further covenant and agree that, in addition to the appropriation heretofore made under article sixth, there shall be made an appropriation of $8,000 for the erection of a saw-mill upon the reservation as aforesaid.

ARTICLE IX

The United States do further agree that an annual appropriation shall be made for the compensation of one farmer, one physician, one blacksmith, one carpenter, one engineer, and one interpreter, who are to reside upon the reservation and to give their exclusive time, care, skill, and energy to the interests of the reservation in their respective departments, and to the instruction of the Indians.

ARTICLE X

The United States doth further covenant, promise, and agree, for and in consideration aforesaid, to appropriate annually the sum of $2,500 for the purpose of maintaining a mission school, to be under the direction of the Superintendent of Indian Affairs.

EXECUTIVE OFFICE, VIRGINIA CITY, M. T.,
September 25, 1868.

SIR: We, W. J. Cullen, commissioner, and James Tufts, secretary of Montana, and acting governor, and superintendent of Indian affairs, have the honor to make the following report respecting the mixed nation of Shoshone Indians, consisting of the Bannacks and Sheepeaters, and the treaty made and concluded with them near Virginia City, Montana Territory, on the 24th instant. This nation is scattered over a large extent of country westward from the Yellowstone to a mountain between the Bitter Root and Big Hole, running through Montana into Idaho. They are very poor, frequently being in great want both of provisions and clothing, and too weak, as a warlike nation, to contend with the more powerful tribes of Sioux upon the buffalo hunting grounds. They are sparsely supplied with stock, so that their game hunts are confined to very limited boundaries. Many of them depend, in a great measure, for subsistence upon the bounty of citizens in towns, and upon ranches. They are peacefully disposed towards the whites, and very few of them are ever engaged in the larceny or spoliation of the property belonging to the whites. The territory now occupied by the whites in Montana, and over which a land survey district has been extended, is entirely without treaty stipulations for the extinguishment of Indian titles. Many of these people are willing and anxious to work, and only require the encouragement and direction of the United States to cultivate the land and foster habits of thrift and industry, making themselves not only self-supporting but, to a limited extent, contribute to the agricultural development of the country. They are tractable and intelligent, receiving instruction quite readily and with profit. These being the circumstances which surround and govern these people, we have thought it advisable to make a treaty with them. We, therefore, assembled the chiefs and headmen, representing from 500 to 600 of these people, and proposed articles of treaty to them, which were readily and thankfully acceded to and endorsed by them, each provision of the treaty being plainly and fully explained to them.

The annual appropriations required of the Government under this treaty are exceedingly small, not being more than $18,000 or $19,000 after the first and second years, but sufficiently large to be of vast service to these dependent people.

We most earnestly recommend that this treaty be submitted to the United States Senate for ratification.

Very respectfully, your obedient servants,

W. J. CULLEN,
Commissioner.

JAMES TUFTS,
Secretary, Acting Gov'r. and Sup't Indian Affairs, M. T.

CHICKASAW TREATY OR CERTIFICATE OF OCTOBER 24, 1801

UNITED STATES DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR,
 OFFICE OF INDIAN AFFAIRS
Washington, July 10, 1939.

CHARLES J. KAPPLER, ESQ.,
*Attorney at Law, Transportation Building,

MY DEAR MR. KAPPLER:

* * * * *

For your consideration in connection with your compilation, attention is invited to the Act of February 25, 1799 (1 Stat. 618), which after providing for certain appropriations mentioned "An agreement made and entered into with the chiefs of the Chickasaw nation, in Philadelphia, on the fifteenth July, one thousand seven hundred and ninety-four, to pay to the said nation goods to the amount of three thousand dollars annually:"

This agreement was mentioned in Volume 1, American State Papers, Indian Affairs, page 816. Without mentioning all the appropriation acts relating to this matter, it may be said that appropriations were made with more or less regularity until 1903. Attention is invited specifically to the Act of March 3, 1835 (4 Stat. 780-788), which contains the following: "To the Chickasaws, for the permanent annuity, as provided for by the Act of the twenty-fifth of February seventeen hundred and ninety-nine, three thousand dollars." (See 2 Kappler, 55.)

In subsequent acts, to and including that for the fiscal year 1901 (Act May 31, 1900, 31 Stat. 221-225), the authority appears to have been based upon the Act of 1799 instead of the Agreement of 1794. The Act of March 3, 1901 (31 Stat. 1058-1062), however, referred to the agreement and authorized and directed the Secretary of the Treasury to credit the Chickasaws on the books of the Treasury with the sum of $60,000 in commutation of the annuities" * * * as guaranteed to them by the treaty of July fifteenth, seventeen hundred and ninety-four." This agreement is referred to as a "certificate" in Article II of the Treaty of October 24, 1801 (7 Stat. 65; 2 Kappler, 55).

A diligent search of the records of this and the State Department, the Library of Congress, and such records as may be in Philadelphia, made in 1935, did not reveal this certificate, agreement, treaty, or whatever it was.

The above information is given for your consideration should you desire to refer to or comment upon the above Chickasaw matters in your compilation.

Sincerely yours,

J. M. Stewart,
Director of Lands.

IMPORTANT COURT DECISIONS ON INDIAN TRIBAL RIGHTS AND PROPERTY ⁵

SUPREME COURT OF THE UNITED STATES

No. 2—OCTOBER TERM, 1934

The United States, Petitioner, vs. The Creek Nation

On Writ of Certiorari to the Court of Claims

[Decided April 29, 1935—295 U. S. 103]

Mr. Justice VAN DEVANTER delivered the opinion of the Court.

This is a suit by the Creek Nation or Tribe of Indians against the United States to recover compensation for certain lands of that tribe charged to have been appropriated by the United States. The tribe obtained a judgment and we granted a petition by the United States for certiorari. The suit was brought in 1926 under the act of May 24, 1924, c. 181, 43 Stat. 139, which declares:

“That jurisdiction be, and is hereby, conferred upon the Court of Claims, notwithstanding the lapse of time or statutes of limitation, to hear, examine, and adjudicate and render judgment in any and all legal and equitable claims arising under or growing out of any treaty or agreement between the United States and the Creek Indian Nation or Tribe, or arising under or growing out of any Act of Congress in relation to Indian affairs, which said Creek Nation, or Tribe may have against the United States, which claims have not heretofore been determined and adjudicated on their merits by the Court of Claims or the Supreme Court of the United States.”

In the course of the suit the United States set up certain cross-demands and recovered judgment thereon; but the judgment on the tribe's claim is all that is challenged now.

The principal facts relating to that claim were conceded below, as shown by the court's opinion and findings, and stand unquestioned here.

Under a treaty of 1833 ¹ the United States granted to the Creek Tribe, by a patent conveying a fee simple, a large tract of land in Indian Territory, now Oklahoma. By a treaty of 1866 ² the Creeks ceded to the United States the westerly half of that tract, but expressly retained the easterly half; and the United States stipulated it would cause a north and south line separating the ceded from the unceded lands to be surveyed under the direction of the Commissioner of Indian Affairs, and guaranteed to the Creeks quiet possession of their unceded lands.

In 1871 one Bardwell, acting under the direction of the Commissioner of Indian Affairs, surveyed the divisional line. A controversy soon arose as to whether the line was surveyed too far to the east, and thereby encroached on unceded lands of the Creeks; but that controversy, if not terminated before, was put to rest and the line effectively recognized by an agreement made between the Creek Tribe and the United States in 1889, ³ wherein the tribe's ownership of the lands east of that line was expressly recognized.

In 1867 ⁴ the United States entered into a treaty with the Sac and Fox Indians under which it assigned to them a tract of land within the area ceded by the Creeks and immediately west of the area retained by them.

² Treaty of June 14, 1866, Arts 3 and 8, 14 Stat. 785, 786, 788.

⁴ Treaty of February 18, 1867, Art. 6, 15 Stat. 495, 496.

In 1872 one Darling, a surveyor acting for the government, surveyed the Sac and Fox tract and erroneously extended his lines and closing corners eastward into the unceded Creek lands in disregard of the Bardwell dividing line. Darling's survey was approved by the Commissioner of the General Land Office in 1873; and as a result of this survey and its approval a strip of Creek lands between the Bardwell line and Darling's easterly closing corners, aggregating 5,575.57 acres, was erroneously included within the Sac and Fox tract as officially surveyed and platted, and thereafter was occupied by the Sac and Fox. In 1875 one Hackbusch, a government surveyor, subdivided the sections in the Sac and Fox lands into 40 acre tracts and followed Darling's lines into the unceded Creek lands, thereby perpetuating Darling's error. Hackbusch's survey, like that of Darling, was approved by the Commissioner of the General Land Office.

By an agreement ratified in the act of February 13, 1891,⁵ the Sac and Fox ceded to the United States the tract assigned to them under the treaty of 1867. In the agreement the United States stipulated it would make allotments in severalty to the Sac and Fox Indians out of lands within their cession; and the ratifying act required that these allotments be made and that the remaining lands be opened to settlement as public lands and sold to settlers at a stated price per acre, which was to be turned into the treasury as public money.

In carrying that act into effect the Indian and land bureaus of the United States erroneously treated the strip of unceded Creek lands between Bardwell's line on the west and Darling's closing corners on the east as part of the Sac and Fox cession, and accordingly allotted and patented part of the strip to Sac and Fox Indians, by way of fulfilling the government's obligation to them; sold and patented other lands therein to settlers; and turned the purchase price received from such sales into the treasury as public money. These disposals included nearly all of the 5,575.57 acres in the strip, and the grantees have since been holding the same adversely to the Creek tribe.

In the court below, as its opinion shows, the parties were agreed that the lands in the strip were unceded Creek lands; and that as to such of them as were disposed of under the act of 1891 the Creek tribe is "entitled to compensation." But the parties were not agreed respecting the time as of which the value should be ascertained. The tribe contended for the value in 1926, when the suit was brought; while the government stood for the value at the time of the appropriation, which it insisted was in 1873, when Darling's erroneous survey was approved by the Commissioner of the General Land Office, or, in the alternative, at the time the lands were disposed of under the act of 1891.

The court below held the tribe entitled to the value of the lands, ruled the value at the time of suit should be allowed, found the value at that time was $30 an acre, and gave judgment accordingly. There was no finding of the value at either of the times named in the government's contention; but it is inferable from the record that the value was less at those times than when the suit was begun.

1. Counsel for the government, assuming that the present claim is merely for damages arising out of errors on the part of administrative officers, contend that it does not come within the terms of the jurisdictional act—"any and all legal and equitable claims arising under or growing out of any treaty or agreement between the United States and the Creek Indian Nation or Tribe, or arising under or growing out of any Act of Congress in relation to Indian affairs, which said Creek Nation or Tribe may have against the United States." We think the contention is not tenable.

Counsel's assumption ignores several elements of the claim, such as the treaties of 1833 and 1866 and the acts of Congress of 1889 and 1891. It also neglects matters reflecting a confirmation of the acts of the administrative officers, such as the receipt by the United States of direct and material benefits from their acts and its retention of the benefits with knowledge of all the facts.

While the jurisdictional act is couched in general terms, there can be little doubt when it is read in the light of the circumstances leading to its passage that it is intended to include the present claim. The congressional committees on whose recommendation the act was passed were in possession of all data bearing on the claim. The facts had been laid before them in letters from the Secretary of the Interior, the Commissioner of Indian Affairs and the Commissioner of the General Land Office.⁶ In the letters these officers, besides reciting the facts in detail, expressed their own conclusions in the matter, which were to the effect that the settlers and allottees had acquired and improved the lands in good faith, and therefore deserved consideration; that the Creek tribe was "entitled to compensation" for the lands "lost" by it through what had been done; that the unfortunate situation "grew out of errors of representatives of the government," which made it reasonable to expect the government to bear the expense of an adjustment; and that there was need for legislation under which the matter could be examined and brought to an equitable and final solution. In view of this portrayal of the matter by the officers specially charged with the administration of Indian and public-land affairs, and the subsequent action of the committees in effecting the passage of the jurisdictional act, we regard it as reasonably manifest that the act is intended to provide for the adjudication of the present claim. The concessions made in the court below by those who were there representing the government show rather plainly that they so understood the act.

2. A question is raised as to whether there was an appropriation or taking of the lands by the United States.

The Creek tribe had a fee simple title, not the usual Indian right of occupancy with the fee in the United States. That title was acquired and held under treaties, in one of which the United States guaranteed to the tribe quiet possession. The tribe was a dependent Indian community under the guardianship of the United States, and therefore its property and affairs were subject to the control and management of that government. But this power to control and manage was not absolute. While extending to all appropriate measures for protecting and advancing the tribe, it was subject to limitations inhering in such a guardianship and to pertinent constitutional restrictions. It did not enable the United States to give the tribal lands to others, or to appropriate them to its own purposes, without rendering, or assuming an obligation to render, just compensation for them; for that "would not be an exercise of guardianship, but an act of confiscation." Lane v. Pueblo of Santa Rosa, 249 U. S. 110, 113; Cherokee Nation v. Hitchcock, 187 U. S. 294, 307-308.

Such was the situation when the lands in question were disposed of under the act of 1891. The disposals were made on behalf of the United States by officers to whom it had committed the administration of that act, and were consummated by the issue of patents signed by the President.

True, the tribe, if free and prepared to proceed in its own behalf, might have successfully assailed the disposals; but it was not in a position where it could be expected to assume that burden. It was in a state of tutelage and entitled to rely on the United States, its guardian, for needed protection of its interests. Plainly the United States would have been entitled to a cancellation of the disposals had it instituted suits for that purpose.⁷ But, although having full knowledge of the facts, it made no effort in that direction. On the contrary, it permitted the disposals to stand—not improbably because of the unhappy situation in which the other course would leave the allottees and settlers. In this way the United States in effect confirmed the disposals; and it emphasized the confirmation by retaining, with such full knowledge, all the benefits it has received from them.

We conclude that the lands were appropriated by the United States in circumstances which involved an implied undertaking by it to make just compensation to the tribe.⁸

3. Plainly the appropriation was not in 1873, when Darling's survey was approved by the Commissioner of the General Land Office. That survey did not effect any change in the existing ownership; nor was it intended to do so. The most that can be said of it is that it was done erroneously and, in the absence of correction, might lead to further error.

But not so of the disposals under the act of 1891. They were intended from their inception to effect a change of ownership and were consummated by the issue of patents, the most accredited type of conveyance known to our law. True, they rested on an erroneous application of the act of 1891 to the Creek lands in the strip; but, as that application was confirmed by the United States, the matter stands as if the act had distinctly directed the disposals. It was through them that the lands were taken; so the compensation should be based on the value at that time, and not, as ruled below, on the value when the suit was begun.

But the just compensation to be awarded now should not be confined to the value of the lands at the time of the taking but should include such addition thereto as may be required to produce the present full equivalent of that value paid contemporaneously with the taking.⁹ Interest at a reasonable rate is a suitable measure by which to ascertain the amount to be added.¹⁰ The treaty of 1866, the act of 1889 and other statutes show that five per cent per annum is a reasonable rate as between the parties here.¹¹

It follows that the judgment must be reversed, with directions for such further proceedings as may be necessary to bring the award of compensation into conformity with this opinion.

Judgment reversed.

SUPREME COURT OF THE UNITED STATES

Nos. 216 AND 328.—OCTOBER TERM, 1936

Shoshone Tribe of Indians of the Wind River Reservation in Wyoming, Petitioner, vs.
The United States

The United States, Petitioner, vs. Shoshone Tribe of Indians of the Wind River Reservation in Wyoming

On Writs of Certiorari to the Court of Claims

[January 4, 1937]

[299 U. S., 476—81 Law Ed. 360]

SYLLABUS

Damages, §116—invasion of Indians' right of exclusive occupancy of reservation—date of enactment of statute conferring jurisdiction in matter upon Court of Claims as fixing time as of which value of property is to be determined.

1. The value of lands of which an Indian tribe has been deprived by the act of the United States in permitting another tribe to encroach upon its reservation, in violation of the terms of a treaty by which the United States agreed that the tribe should have exclusive occupancy of the reservation, is not to be determined as of the date of an enactment permitting the tribe to submit its claim to adjudication in the Court of Claims, on the theory that the jurisdictional act has turned an unlawful trespass into a taking by the exercise of the power of eminent domain.

Eminent Domain, §46½—when power deemed exercised—effect of statute providing for adjudication of Indians' claim of violation of treaty rights by wrongful appropriation of reservation lands.

2. A statute conferring upon the Court of Claims jurisdiction to determine the claim of an Indian tribe against the United States arising under or growing out of a certain treaty whereby the tribe was guaranteed exclusive occupancy of a reservation, which right the United States is charged with having infringed by permitting another tribe jointly to occupy the reservation, and providing that the decree rendered by the Court of Claims shall be in full settlement of all damages, if any, committed by the United States and shall annul and cancel all claim, right, and title of the tribe in and to such lands, is not an exercise of the power of eminent domain, so as to require the value of the lands to be ascertained as of the date of its enactment, since the statute makes no admission of liability, or of any ground of liability, but merely provides a forum for the adjudication of the claims,—particularly where the legislative history of the statute makes it evident that the intention of Congress was to provide for reparation for an alleged unlawful appropriation effected in the past and not to make a new and lawful appropriation by an exercise of sovereign power.

Damages, 116—invasion of Indians' right of exclusive occupancy of reservation—time as of which value of land is to be ascertained.

3. The value of lands of which an Indian tribe has been deprived by the act of the United States in permitting another tribe to encroach upon its reservation, in violation of the terms of a treaty by which the United States agreed that it should have the exclusive occupancy, is not to be determined as of the date at which the Commissioner of Indian Affairs made a public statement of his opinion that the intruding Indians had equal rights in the reservation, but should be determined as of the time when the occupancy of the intruders began, where the United States, by action and inaction, has for half a century treated the intruders' occupancy as lawful.

Indians, 34—reservation lands—relative title of Indians and government.

4. Title to land in the Wind River Reservation is in the United States, though the Shoshone Tribe has a treaty right of exclusive occupancy with all its beneficial incidents.

Interest, #15—as element of damages recoverable against the United States by Indian Tribe for intrusion upon its exclusive reservation.

5. Damages recoverable by an Indian tribe against the United States for violation of treaty provisions that its right of occupancy of its reservation shall be exclusive includes such additional amount beyond the value of its property rights as of the time of intrusion with the acquiescence of the United States upon such right of exclusive occupancy, as may be necessary to the award of just compensation, the increment to be measured either by interest on the value or by such other standard as may be suitable in the light of all the circumstances; and it is unimportant that there was a partial taking only, or that the taking was tortious in its origin, where it has been made lawful by relation.

Interest 32—allowance against the United States in Court of Claims—failure of jurisdictional act to provide for such allowance.

6. The fact that an act of Congress conferring on the Court of Claims jurisdiction to adjudicate a claim of an Indian tribe against the United States for permitting, in violation of treaty rights, another tribe of Indians jointly to occupy its reservation, is silent as to an award of interest on the value of the property rights of which the tribe has been deprived, or any substitute for interest, does not preclude the allowance of interest or a fair equivalent.

Claims 26—against United States under treaty with Indians—invasion of right to exclusive occupancy of reservation.

7. An Indian tribe is entitled to recover damages from the United States for interference with a treaty right of exclusive occupancy of a reservation, though title to the reservation lands is in the United States.

Argued December 17 and 18, 1936. Decided January 4, 1937.

ON CROSS WRITS of Certiorari to the Court of Claims of the United States to review a judgment in favor of plaintiff on a claim of the Shoshone Tribe of Indians against the United States for damages for breach of treaty stipulations. Reversed and remanded.

See same case below, 82 Ct. Cl. 23.

Messrs. George M. Tunison and Albert W. Jefferis, both of Omaha, Nebraska, argued the cause, and, with Mr. Francis S. Howell, also of Omaha, Nebraska, and Mr. Charles J. Kappler, of Washington, D. C., filed a brief for the Shoshone Tribe of Indians.

Assistant Attorney General Harry W. Blair, of Washington, D. C., argued the cause, and, with Solicitor General Reed, Special Assistant to the Attorney General Frank Chambers, and Messrs. George T. Stormont, Charles H. Small, W. Marvin Smith, and Ralph S. Boyd, all of Washington, D. C., filed a brief for the United States.

Mr. Justice CARDOZO delivered the opinion of the Court.

The Shoshone Tribe of Indians of the Wind River Reservation in Wyoming has sued the United States in the Court of Claims for the breach of treaty stipulations, whereby the tribe has been permanently excluded from the possession and enjoyment of an undivided half interest in the tribal lands. Jurisdiction to hear the claim was conferred upon the Court of Claims by an act of March 3, 1927 (44 Stat. 1349, Part II), which, so far as its provisions are now material, is quoted in the margin.¹ The court gave judgment for the claimant. 82 Ct. Cls., 23. Neither party to the controversy was satisfied with the award of damages, the claimant finding it too low, and the Government too high. There were cross-petitions for certiorari. To fix with certainty and justice the rights and duties of the Government in its relations with an Indian tribe, the writs were allowed, and the case is here accordingly.

By treaty of July 3, 1868 (15 Stat. 673), the Shoshone Tribe of Indians relinquished to the United States a reservation of 44,672,000 acres in Colorado, Utah, Idaho and

Section 3 provides: "In said suit the court shall also hear, examine, and adjudicate any claims which the United States may have against said tribe, but any payment, including gratuities which the United States may have made to said tribe, shall not operate as an estoppel, but may be pleaded as an offset in such suit: Provided, however, that the United States may interpose to such suit or action any and all pleas of defense, affirmative and negative, legal and equitable, which it may have thereto not herein specifically barred by the provisions of this Act. In reference to all claims which may be the subject matter of the suits herein authorized, the decree of the court shall be in full settlement of all damages, if any, committed by the Government of the United States and shall annul and cancel all claim, right, and title of the said Shoshone Indians in and to such money, lands, or other property."

Wyoming, and accepted in exchange a reservation of 3,054,182 acres in Wyoming, with other benefits not now important. The United States agreed that the territory described in the treaty now generally known as the Wind River Reservation, would be "set apart for the absolute and undisturbed use and occupation of the Shoshone Indians . . . and for such other friendly tribes or individual Indians as from time to time they may be willing, with the consent of the United States, to admit amongst them." Reinforcing this covenant, there was a solemn pledge of faith by the United States that no persons, except a few specially enumerated, and governmental agents engaged in the discharge of duties enjoined by law, should "ever be permitted to pass over, settle upon, or reside" in the territory so reserved. The loyalty of the Shoshone tribe to the people of the United States has been conspicuous and unflinching. A fidelity at least as constant and inflexible was owing in return.

In 1869, a band of the Northern Arapahoes, separating from the main body of the nation, was wandering about the country, looking for a home. The Arapahoes had been allies of the Sioux, who were the foes of the Shoshones. None the less, the wanderers expressed a wish to have a refuge and a settlement on the Wind River Reservation. They came upon the Reservation in 1870, and were informed by Washakie, Chief of the Shoshones, that they would be permitted to stay there for a short time while the Government was seeking to place them elsewhere. After a few months they moved away. The Government had no success, however, in providing them with a satisfactory home, and they continued to cast longing eyes toward the fair and fertile acres set apart for their ancestral foes. At the instance of the Commissioner of Indian Affairs, acting in cooperation with the Secretary of the Interior, a new attempt was made in October, 1877, to bring the tribes together and relieve the growing tension developing between them. One Irwin, formerly the Indian agent on the Wind River Reservation, discussed the problem with Washakie. He said that the President had no intention of placing the Arapahoes on the Shoshone Reservation, but that the desire was merely to insure peace between the tribes and to find a place for the Arapahoes nearby, on a separate tract of land close to the eastern boundary. Washakie agreed that there should be peace, but insisted that the traditional enemies of his tribe be placed at a safe distance, predicting that close contact would bring friction and fresh hostility.

Irwin telegraphed the Commissioner of Indian Affairs at Washington on October 17, 1877: "I returned from Shoshone Agency today. Held a council and made peace between Shoshones and Arapahoes." A written report, dated February 21, 1878, gave the details of the council. Even so, the telegram, it seems, had been misunderstood by the Commissioner, for in his annual report for 1877 (dated November 1, 1877), he said (p. 19): "In a formal council held last month by Agent Irwin with the Shoshones, their consent to the arrangement desired by the Arapahoes was obtained, and the removal of the latter is now in progress." Ignoring many warnings in February and later that consent had been refused, the Commissioner adhered to his erroneous assumption. The consequences of his error are visible in the events that followed.

On March 18, 1878, a band of Northern Arapahoes was brought to the Reservation of the Shoshones under military escort. The Reservation had been reduced to 2,343,000 acres by the cession of 700,642 acres in 1874 for a money consideration. The Shoshones believed that for hunting and for husbandry it was not in excess of present needs. The unheralded arrival of the Arapahoes was the cause of much excitement. There was a council the next day, at which the leader of the Arapahoes explained to Washakie that they and their horses were weary and without food, and in need of rest and care. Thereupon Washakie agreed that they might remain for a short time to rest their horses and themselves. But the Indian Commissioner, it seems, had not brought them to the reservation for any temporary visit. On April 2, 1878, he telegraphed the agent at the Reservation to furnish the Arapahoes with the necessary food and supplies, and directed him to "report fully by mail what other measures are necessary to locate the Band of Northern Arapahoe Indians under Black Coal", their leader. The agent responded that the Shoshones looked upon the presence of the Arapahoes as "an encroachment on their rights." At the request of both tribes, he urged the calling of a council to be attended by the Department Commander, General Crook, in order that the location of the Arapahoes might be permanently settled. No reply to this request came from the Commissioner or from any one else.

The famished Arapahoes and their horses had been fed and cared for, but they did not move away. Instead of moving away, they came in increasing numbers. As early as April 8, 1878, nearly the whole tribe was on the scene. Washakie protested to the agent. The agent at frequent intervals communicated the protests to the Commissioner. There was nothing in return but silence. Months lengthened into years, and the signs accumulated steadily that the Arapahoes were there to stay. Schools were established for their benefit to the end that their youth might be adequately trained. Report of Commissioner of Indian Affairs, 1879, p. 169. Ditches were dug for the irrigation of their ranches. Report of Commissioner of Indian Affairs, 1889, p. 308. In numberless other ways their equality of right and privilege became a postulate of daily life. At length, in August, 1891, the flame of controversy blazed forth anew. The "Woodruff Commission" had been sent to the Reservation to treat with the Indians for a cession of a portion of their lands. The Shoshones took the ground that the Arapahoes should not be suffered to take part in the council and vote upon the projects. The Commission telegraphed the Commissioner of Indian Affairs asking for instructions. In reply, August 13, 1891, the Commissioner notified the Commission: "This office holds * * * that the Arapahoes have equal rights to the land on the said reservation which does not depend upon the further consent of the Shoshones, and you should conduct your negotiations with them upon that basis and with that understanding." Accordingly, both tribes participated in the council, though a cession was not effected.

The Commissioner continued to act on the assumption that the occupancy of the Arapahoes, initiated, as we have seen, under military escort, was permanent and rightful. What is more to the point, Congress did the same. Thus, in 1897, the Government by its agent concluded an agreement with the Shoshones and Arapahoes whereby the Indians ceded to the Government part of the Shoshones Reservation (55,040 acres) for $60,000, to be expended without discrimination among the members of the tribes. In preliminary conferences the Shoshones protested that they alone should receive the stipulated payments. Their protest was overruled, though they succeeded in adding a proviso that nothing in the agreement was to be construed to deprive them of their annuities or benefits under any existing agreements or treaty stipulations. This agreement with its clear recognition of the occupancy of the Arapahoes and their equal interest in the land, was ratified by act of Congress. Act of June 7, 1897, c. 3, 30 Stat. 62, 93, 94. Again, on April 21, 1904, the Government made an agreement with the two tribes for the cession of a large tract (1,480,000 acres), leaving only 808,500 acres in the diminished reservation. Again the Shoshones protested that the Arapahoes were intruders, and refused to sign without a proviso similar to the one in the agreement of 1897.² Again the Government dealt with the two tribes as lawful occupants and equals. This agreement like the earlier one was ratified by act of Congress. Act of March 3, 1905, c. 1452, 33 Stat. 1016. It provides inter alia that "any individual Indian, a member of the Shoshone or Arapahoe tribes, who has, under existing laws or treaty stipulations, selected a tract of land within the portion of said reservation hereby ceded, shall be entitled to have the same allotted and confirmed to him or her, and any Indian who has made or received an allotment of land within the ceded territory shall have the right to surrender such allotment and select other lands within the diminished reserve in lieu thereof at any time before the lands hereby ceded shall be open for entry." There is a finding that 245,058 acres were allotted to Shoshone and Arapahoe Indians between 1907 and 1919 under the power thus conferred. Many other provisions of the agreement and the statute are almost equally explicit and significant in their recognition of the status quo. Nowhere is there a suggestion that the occupancy of the newcomers is impermanent or provisional.

The Arapahoes held their ground, pushing the Shoshones farther to the west, and retaining for themselves the eastern section of the Reservation, found by the Court of Claims to be the most eligible portion. At all times the population of each of the two tribes has been approximately equal. There continued to come forth from the Shoshones intermittent protests, which at last reached the halls of Congress, and in 1927 had a long delayed fruition. In that year the Committee on Indian Affairs of the House of Representatives reported a bill to make atonement for the wrongs that for nearly half a century had been left without redress. House Report No. 1628, 69th Congress, 2nd Session, Congressional Record, vol. 68, part 1, p. 625. Extracts from that report are printed in the margin.³ The bill so proposed was passed, but was vetoed by the President, chiefly for the reason that it made provision for the payment of interest at five per cent per annum on the value of any property appropriated in violation of the treaty or wrongfully disposed of. Congressional Record, vol. 68, part 3, page 2414, 69th Congress, 2nd session. On February 4, 1927, the Senate Committee on Indian Affairs reported a new bill, with the statement that it had been redrafted to correct the objection of the President and that it was identical with the earlier bill except for the interest provision, though in truth other verbal changes had been made in the process of revision. Senate Report No. 1389, Congressional Record, vol. 68, part 3, p. 2921. The bill so revised became Chapter 302 of the Laws of 1927, the jurisdictional act under which the present suit has been maintained.

It is further understood that nothing in this agreement shall be construed to deprive the said Indians of the Shoshone or Wind River Reservation, Wyoming, of any benefits to which they are entitled under existing treaties or agreements, not inconsistent with the provisions of this agreement."

Upon these facts the Court of Claims decided that the occupancy of the Arapahoes became definitive and permanent on August 13, 1891, when the Commissioner of Indian Affairs made public statement of his opinion that they were entitled to enjoy the Reservation equally with the Shoshones. The value at that time of an undivided half interest in the land was found to be $2,050,597.50. The value of the use and occupation between March 18, 1878 and August 13, 1891, was fixed at $332,475. The sum of these values, along with a few minor items, was $2,483,467.99, from which there was a deduction of $1,689,646.50, for offsets owing to the Government, and not in controversy here. The balance, $793,821.49 is the amount of the judgment now before us for review. As already stated, neither the claimant nor the Government is content with the decision. Both agree that there was error in fixing the value of the land as of August 13, 1891. The claimant insists that it should be reckoned as of March 3, 1927, the date of the jurisdictional act, and that compensation should be added for the value of the intermediate use and occupation. The Government insists that the value should be reckoned as of March 18, 1878, when the unlawful occupancy began. The claimant makes the additional point that, irrespective of the date at which the value is computed, interest must be awarded up to the date of the judgment on the recovery allowed.

First: The Court of Claims did not err in refusing to fix the damages on the basis of the value of the land on March 3, 1927.

The claimant takes the ground that the jurisdictional act is an exercise of the power of eminent domain. The argument is that by force of its provisions a trespass which had been unlawful, though continuous, since March 18, 1878, was turned as of March, 1927, into a definitive and lawful taking. But this is to mistake utterly the design and meaning of the statute. The jurisdictional act is not a taking of anything. It "makes no admission of liability, or of any ground of liability, on the part of the Government, but merely provides a forum for the adjudication of the claim according to applicable legal principles." United States v. Mille Lac Band of Chippewa Indians, 229 U. S. 498, 500. No cause of action can be vindicated thereunder unless such a cause of action as, apart from the impediment of governmental immunity from suit, was already in existence. Under the jurisdictional act the court is to inquire whether the violation of the treaty of 1868 or of some later treaty or agreement or some later act of Congress has given rise to legal or equitable grounds of liability. True, the decree when it is made "shall be in full settlement of all damages, if any, committed by the Government of the United States and shall annul and cancel all claim, right, and title of the Shoshone Indians in and to such money, lands, or other property." But the claimant is not subject to a duty either under that act or any other to sue the Government at all. In the event of a failure to sue or to prosecute the suit to a decree, rights and liabilities will remain as they were before any act was passed. The sovereign power is not exercised ³ "Despite the fact that the United States expressly guaranteed to these Indians the uninterrupted use and occupancy of the reservation, and against the protests of the Shoshones of said Wind River Reservation in Wyoming, and the northern band of the Arapahoes, under military escort, were moved upon said reservation in the winter of 1877-78.

"In order to disarm the Shoshones they were assured by the military authorities that the Arapahoes would be removed from the reservation the following year. Since then the Shoshones have frequently protested against the alleged unlawful appropriation of their reservation but have received no relief from the Government. On the contrary, the Government has allowed the Arapahoes upon the reservation and treated the funds claimed by the Shoshones as though they were the joint property of both tribes.

"The purpose of the bill is to permit the Shoshones to submit their claims for alleged appropriation of property to the Court of Claims, and your committee feels that in view of the strong showing made the bill should be enacted at an early date."

to extinguish titles or other interests against the will of tribal occupants by force of eminent domain.

If this conclusion might otherwise be doubtful (which we do not suggest), the doubt would be dispelled by a consideration of the history of the statute. The reports of the Committees of Congress preceding the two bills—the one vetoed by the President and the one enacted into law—make it plain that the purpose was to give reparation to the claimant for an “alleged unlawful appropriation” effected in the past, not to make a new and lawful appropriation by an exercise of sovereign power. So the message of the President vetoing the first bill which permitted an award of interest, adds this comment to a sketch of the grievance of the tribe: “It seems to me unreasonable to expect that the Government should be charged with interest from the dates of origin of such ancient claims.” Congress had no thought in its revision of the rejected bill to prescribe present expropriation in lieu of present reparation. As pointed out already, the bill redrafted was understood to be identical with the first one except that the interest provision had been dropped to meet the President’s objection.

Second: The Court of Claims erred in holding that damages should be measured as of August 13, 1891, the date of the letter from the Commissioner of Indian Affairs to the Woodruff Commission, and in failing to measure them as of 1878, the date of the unlawful entry.

The treaty of 1868 charged the Government with a duty to see to it that strangers should never be permitted without the consent of the Shoshones to settle upon or reside in the Wind River Reservation. That duty was not fulfilled. Instead, the Arapahoes were brought upon the Reservation with a show of military power, and kept there in defiance of the duty to expel them. The decision below is based upon the theory that the letter of August 13, 1891, is the earliest overt act evincing a definitive purpose to make the occupancy permanent. But the Commissioner of Indian Affairs was not empowered to fix the future policy of the Government, still less to exercise in its behalf the power of eminent domain. He made no such attempt. All that his letter of August, 1891, expresses is an opinion as to the meaning and operation of notorious and accomplished facts. By deed as well as by word, he had done his part for more than thirteen years in shaping those facts to conform to his opinion. He had made report to the Secretary of the Interior in November, 1877, that the transfer of the Arapahoes to the Wind River Reservation was a movement then in progress. He had notified the local agent in April, 1878, to indicate any other measures necessary to settle the intruders. He had turned a deaf ear to many a remonstrance by the tribe whose possession had been violated. In so far as his own opinion and intention were facts of any moment, he had manifested them too often and too plainly, by conduct and by speech alike, to leave his attitude in doubt. Little wonder that counsel for the claimant are at one with counsel for the Government in rejecting August, 1891, as the date when occupancy became more than a temporary trespass.

If the date adopted by the Court of Claims is not accepted as the true one, the question is before us, what other shall be substituted? Looking at events in retrospect through the long vista of the years we can see that from the outset the occupancy of the Reservation was intended to be permanent; that, however tortious in its origin, it has been permanent in fact; and that the Government of the United States through the action and inaction of its executive and legislative departments for half a century of time, has ratified the wrong, adopting the de facto appropriation by relation as of the date of its beginning. To see the facts in true perspective we must view them in their totality and not in isolation. There are the reports at the beginning as to the purpose of the settlement; the words and the silence of administrative officers when entreated to banish the intruders; the creation of schools for the education of their youth as for that of the youth already there (Report of Commissioner of Indian Affairs, 1879, p. 169); and most important of all, the statutes already summarized, recognizing the Arapahoes equally with the Shoshones as occupants of the land, accepting their deeds of cession, assigning to the tribes equally the privilege of new allotments, and devoting to the two equally the award of future benefits. What meaning can be ascribed to all these cumulative tokens of intention unless it be that the intruders have been confirmed in their occupancy as of the date of the intrusion? Cf. United States v. Creek Nation, 295 U. S. 103, 110. The Shoshones might protest, as they did, that in setting their hands to the agreement, they did not assent to the violation of treaty stipulations. They might reserve as much as they pleased claims, present and past, for the recovery of damages. Whatever their provisos, the outstanding fact remained that for good or for ill, the Arapahoes were to dwell upon the soil along with them. "The adoption by the United States of the wrongful act of any officer is of course an adoption of the act when and as committed, and causes such act of the officer to be, in virtue of the statute, a rightful appropriation by the Government, for which compensation is provided." Crozier v. Krupp, 224 U. S. 290, 305.

Confusion is likely to result from speaking of the wrong to the Shoshones as a destruction of their title. Title in the strict sense was always in the United States, though the Shoshones had the treaty right of occupancy with all its beneficial incidents. United States v. Creek Nation, supra, p. 109. What those incidents are, it is needless to consider now. Cf. United States v. Cook, 19 Wall. 591; Pine River Logging Co. v. United States, 186 U. S. 279; United States v. Paine Lumber Co., 206 U. S. 467. The right of occupancy is the primary one to which the incidents attach, and division of the right with strangers is an appropriation of the land pro tanto, in substance, if not in form.

Third: The claimant's damages include such additional amount beyond the value of its property rights when taken by the Government as may be necessary to the award of just compensation, the increment to be measured either by interest on the value or by such other standard as may be suitable in the light of all the circumstances

The fact is unimportant that the taking was tortious in its origin, if it was made lawful by relation. Crozier v. Krupp, supra. The fact also is unimportant that it was a partial taking only, and that eviction was not complete. Jacobs v. United States, 290 U. S. 13, 16; United States v. Cress, 243 U. S. 316, 327-330; Hurley v. Kincaid, 285 U. S. 95, 104. Finally the fact is unimportant, there having been an appropriation of property within the meaning of the Fifth Amendment, that the jurisdictional act is silent as to an award of interest or any substitute therefor. United States v. Creek Nation, supra, p. 110, 111. Cf. Yankton Sioux Nation v. United States, 272 U. S. 351, 359. Given such a taking, the right to interest or a fair equivalent, attaches itself automatically to the right to an award of damages. Jacobs v. United States, supra; Phelps v. United States, 274 U. S. 341; Brooks-Scanlon Co. v. United States, 265 U. S. 106, 123; Seaboard Air Line Co. v. United States, 261 U. S. 299, 306. These cases distinguish United States v. North American Co., 253 U. S. 330, cited by the Government which "rested upon its special facts." Jacobs v. United States, supra. Nor does the nature of the right divested avail to modify the rule. Power to control and manage the property and affairs of Indians in good faith for their betterment and welfare may be exerted in many ways and at times even in derogation of the provisions of a treaty. Lone Wolf v. Hitchcock, 187 U. S. 553, 564, 565, 566. The power does not extend so far as to enable the Government "to give the tribal lands to others, or to appropriate them to its own purposes, without rendering, or assuming an obligation to render, just compensation . . . ; for that 'would not be an exercise of guardianship, but an act of confiscation.'" United States v. Creek Nation, supra, p. 110; citing Lane v. Pueblo of Santa Rosa, 249 U. S. 110, 113; Cherokee Nation v. Hitchcock, 187 U. S. 294, 307-308. The right of the Indians to the occupancy of the lands pledged to them, may be one of occupancy only, but it is "as sacred as that of the United States to the fee." United States v. Cook, supra, p. 593; Lone Wolf v. Hitchcock, supra; Choate v. Trapp, 224 U. S. 665, 671; Yankton Sioux Nation v. United States, supra. Spoliation is not management.

The judgment should be reversed and the cause remanded to the Court of Claims for further proceedings in accord with this opinion.

Ordered accordingly.

IN THE COURT OF CLAIMS OF THE UNITED STATES

(Decided June 1, 1937, 85 Ct. Cls. 331.)

Shoshone Tribe of Indians of the Wind River Reservation in Wyoming v. the United States. No. H-219

Mr. George M. Tunison and Mr. Albert W. Jefferis for the plaintiff.
Mr. Charles J. Kappler and Mr. Francis S. Howell were on the brief.
Mr. Charles H. Small and Mr. George T. Stormont, with whom was Mr. Assistant Attorney General Carl McFarland, for the defendant.

This suit was instituted to recover $37,150,279.90, together with interest on certain amounts. It was brought under an act of Congress of March 3, 1927, 44 Stat. 1349, part 2, and is based upon the claim that the treaty with plaintiff made July 3, 1868, specifying a reservation of 3,054,182 acres of land in the State of Wyoming, was violated by the taking by the United States of a one-half interest in the reservation by placing the Northern Arapahoe Tribe of Indians on the Shoshone Reservation when the plaintiff tribe was not willing that such Indians be placed upon the reservation and the consent of the plaintiff tribe and the United States to such an arrangement was not obtained as required by the treaty.

Plaintiff contended that the taking of their land occurred March 3, 1927, when the Jurisdictional Act giving them a right to sue was enacted, and we held, 82 C. Cls. 23, that the taking of a one-half interest in the reservation for the Northern Arapahoe Indians occurred August 13, 1891. We determined the value, as of that date, to be $1.75 an acre, or $2,050,597.50 for a one-half interest in 2,343,540 acres composing the reservation at that time. Certain additional amounts totaling $100,395.49 were allowed and a number of items making up the total of plaintiff's claim were denied and the total amount found to be due the plaintiff tribe was $2,483,467.99. After deducting $1,689,646.50, determined to be the total offset to which defendant was entitled on account of gratuity payments and disbursements made for the benefit of plaintiff tribe, we entered judgment for $793,821.49. We denied plaintiff's claim for an additional amount measured by interest from the date of taking. Upon appeal by both parties the Supreme Court held, 299 U. S. 476, that the taking of a one-half interest in plaintiff's reservation for the Northern Arapahoe Indians occurred in March 1878 and that "the claimant's damages include such additional amount beyond the value of its property rights when taken by the Government as may be necessary to the award of just compensation, the increment to be measured either by interest on the value or by such other standard as may be suitable in the light of all the circumstances."

A further hearing was had and the case is now before the court on the questions (1) the character and extent of the property rights of the Shoshone Indians in the reservation of 3,054,182 acres specified in the Treaty of 1868 and the value on March 19, 1878, of such property rights in one-half of the reservation of 2,343,540 acres on that date, or 1,171,770 acres, and (2) the rate of interest to be used in measuring the amount to be added to the value of the interest taken to make just compensation.

Plaintiff contends (1) that the value in 1878 of the one-half interest in its reservation taken by the Government was $1.75 an acre, or $2,050,597.50; (2) that, in addition to this value plaintiff tribe sustained damages to the remaining one-half undivided interest of 87½ cents an acre amounting to $1,025,298.75; (3) that to the total value of $3,075,896.25 there should be added, as a part of the just compensation, interest at the rate of 7% per annum from the date of taking amounting to $12,703,451.51, thus making the total amount of $15,779,347.76 due on April 8, 1937, as just compensation, to which should be added other amounts totaling $100,395.49 allowed by the court and not now in controversy; and (4) that from the total amount of $15,879,743.25 thus determined to be due there should be deducted on defendant's counterclaim under section 3 of the Jurisdictional Act an offset of $1,956,233.68, and judgment should be entered for $13,923,509.57 with interest at 7% per annum on $3,075,896.25 from April 8, 1937, until paid.

Counsel for defendant contend that the only interest, legal or beneficial, which an Indian tribe has in a reservation is the right to live upon it, to hunt over it, and to use such parts of it as the Indians may desire for farming purposes, and that this is the character and full extent of the Indian title; that all other incidents affecting value of the reservation lands belong, and have always belonged, absolutely to the United States, which may be disposed of by the Government for its own benefit without legal or equitable accountability to the Indians under any treaty or any Act of Congress, and that in valuing the interest of plaintiff tribe to one-half of the reservation taken in 1878 for the benefit of the Arapahoe tribe no consideration whatever should be given to the value at that time of the land, as such, or to the value of timber or minerals thereon; that the fair and reasonable value of the right of the Shoshones to occupy and use the reservation of 2,343,540 acres was approximately 4 cents an acre in 1878, or a total value for the entire reservation of $92,000, and that the value of an undivided one-half interest therein taken for the Arapahoe tribe was $46,000; that in no event did the value in 1878 of a one-half interest in the reservation exceed $469,000, or approximately 40 cents an acre.

SPECIAL FINDINGS OF FACT

1. On July 2, 1863, plaintiff tribe of Indians and the United States entered into a treaty, 18 Stat. 685, which set apart for plaintiff a reservation of 44,672,000 acres located in Colorado, Utah, Idaho, and Wyoming in consideration of certain matters mentioned in the treaty. The United States agreed to pay to the tribe annually for twenty years the sum of $10,000 in such amounts as the President might deem suitable for their wants or conditions, either as hunters or herdsmen.

2. By the Treaty of July 3, 1868, 15 Stat. 673, plaintiff gave up and relinquished this reservation to the United States and accepted in lieu thereof the present reservation consisting originally of 3,054,182 acres in the State of Wyoming, together with the agreement of the United States to deliver at the agency house on the reservation annually for thirty years, in lieu of all sums of money or other annuities provided to be paid under any and all treaties theretofore made, certain articles of clothing and other supplies, and to construct certain buildings upon the reservation and furnish certain employees and instructors for the Indians, together with a school and a teacher. The important provisions of this treaty were as follows:

ARTICLE 1. From this day forward, peace between the parties to this treaty shall forever continue. The Government of the United States desires peace, and its honor is hereby pledged to keep it. The Indians desire peace, and they hereby pledge their honor to maintain it. If bad men among the whites, or among other people subject to the authority of the United States, shall commit any wrong upon the person or property of the Indians, the United States will, upon proof made to the agent and forwarded to the Commissioner of Indian Affairs at Washington City, proceed at once to cause the offender to be arrested and punished according to the laws of the United States, and also reimburse the injured person for the loss sustained.

If bad men among the Indians shall commit a wrong or depredation upon the person or property of any one, white, black, or Indian, subject to the authority of the United States, and at peace therewith, the Indians herein named solemnly agree that they will, on proof made to their agent and notice by him, deliver up the wrongdoer to the United States, to be tried and punished according to its laws; and in case they willfully refuse so to do, the person injured shall be reimbursed for his loss from the annuities or other moneys due or to become due to them under this or other treaties made with the United States. And the President, on advising with the Commissioner of Indian Affairs, shall prescribe such rules and regulations for ascertaining damages under the provisions of this article as in his judgment may be proper. But no such damages shall be adjusted and paid until thoroughly examined and passed upon by the Commissioner of Indian Affairs, and no one sustaining loss while violating or because of his violating the provisions of this treaty or the laws of the United States, shall be reimbursed therefor.

ARTICLE 2. * * * The United States further agrees that the following district of country, to-wit: Commencing at the mouth of Owl Creek and running due south to the crest of the divide between the Sweetwater and Papo Agie Rivers; thence along the crest of said divide and the summit of Wind River Mountains to the longitude of North Fork of Wind River thence due north to mouth of said North Fork and up its channel to a point twenty miles above its mouth; thence in a straight line to headwaters of Owl Creek and along middle of channel of Owl Creek to place of beginning, shall be and the same is set apart for the absolute and undisturbed use and occupation of the Shoshone Indians herein named, and for such other friendly tribes or individual Indians as from time to time they may be willing, with the consent of the United States, to admit amongst them; and the United States now solemnly agrees that no persons except those herein designated and authorized so to do, and except such officers, agents, and employees of the Government as may be authorized to enter upon Indian reservations in discharge of duties enjoined by law, shall ever be permitted to pass over, settle upon, or reside in the territory described in this article for the use of said Indians, and henceforth they will and do hereby relinquish all title, claims, or rights in and to any portion of the territory of the United States, except such as is embraced within the limits aforesaid.

 ARTICLE 4. The Indians herein named agree, when the agency house and other buildings shall be constructed on their reservations named, they will make said reservations their permanent home, and they will make no permanent settlement elsewhere; but they shall have the right to hunt on the unoccupied lands of the United States so long as game may be found thereon, and so long as peace subsists among the whites and Indians on the borders of the hunting districts.

ARTICLE 5. The United States agrees that the agent for said Indians shall in the future make his home at the agency building on the Shoshone Reservation, but shall direct and supervise affairs on the Bannack Reservation, and shall keep an office open at all times for the purpose of prompt and diligent inquiry into such matters of complaint by and against the Indians as may be presented for investigation under the provisions of their treaty stipulations, as also for the faithful discharge of other duties enjoined by law. In all cases of depredation on person or property he shall cause the evidence to be taken in writing and forwarded, together with his finding, to the Commissioner of Indian Affairs, whose decisions shall be binding on the parties to this treaty.

ARTICLE 6. If any individual belonging to said tribes of Indians, or legally incorporated with them, being the head of a family, shall desire to commence farming, he shall have the privilege to select, in the presence and with the assistance of the agent then in charge, a tract of land within the reservation of his tribe, not exceeding three hundred and twenty acres in extent, which tract so selected certified, and recorded in the "landbook", as herein directed, shall cease to be held in common, but the same may be occupied and held in the exclusive possession of the person selecting it, and of his family, so long as he or they may continue to cultivate it.

Any person over eighteen years of age, not being the head of a family, may in like manner select and cause to be certified to him or her, for purposes of cultivation, a quantity of land not exceeding eighty acres in extent, and thereupon be entitled to the exclusive possession of the same as above described. For each tract of land so selected a certificate, containing a description thereof, and the name of the person selecting it, with a certificate endorsed thereon that the same has been recorded, shall be delivered to the party entitled to it by the agent, after the same shall have been recorded by him in a book to be kept in his office subject to inspection, which said book shall be known as the "Shoshonee (eastern band) and Bannack Land Book."

The President may at any time order a survey of these reservations, and when so surveyed Congress shall provide for protecting the rights of the Indian settlers in these improvements, and may fix the character of the title held by each. The United States may pass such laws on the subject of alienation and descent of property as between Indians, and on all subjects connected with the government of the Indians on said reservations, and the internal police thereof, as may be thought proper.

ARTICLE 7. In order to insure the civilization of the tribes entering into this treaty, the necessity of education is admitted, especially of such of them as are or may be settled on said agricultural reservations, and they therefore pledge themselves to compel their children, male and female, between the ages of six and sixteen years, to attend school; and it is hereby made the duty of the agent for said Indians to see that this stipulation is strictly complied with; and the United States agrees that for every thirty children between said ages who can be induced or compelled to attend school, a house shall be provided and a teacher competent to teach the elementary branches of an English education shall be furnished, who will reside among said Indians and faithfully discharge his or her duties as a teacher. The provisions of this article to continue for twenty years.

ARTICLE 8. * * * And it is further stipulated that such persons as commence farming shall receive instructions from the farmers herein provided for, and whenever more than one hundred persons on either reservation shall enter upon the cultivation of the soil, a second blacksmith shall be provided, with such iron, steel, and other material as may be required.

ARTICLE 9. In lieu of all sums of money or other annuities provided to be paid to the Indians herein named, under any and all treaties heretofore made with them, the United States agrees to deliver at the agency house on the reservation herein provided for, on the first day of September of each year, for thirty years, the following articles, to wit:

For each male person over fourteen years of age, a suit of good substantial woolen clothing, consisting of coat, hat, pantaloons, flannel shirt, and a pair of woolen socks; for each female over twelve years of age, a flannel skirt, or the goods necessary to make it, a pair of woolen hose, twelve yards of calico, and twelve yards of cotton domestics.

For boys and girls under the ages named, such flannel and cotton goods as may be needed to make each suit as aforesaid, together with a pair of woolen hose for each.

And in order that the Commissioner of Indian Affairs may be able to estimate properly for the articles herein named, it shall be the duty of the agent each year to forward to him a full and exact census of the Indians, on which the estimate from year to year can be based; and in addition to the clothing herein named, the sum of ten dollars shall be annually appropriated for each Indian roaming and twenty dollars for each Indian engaged in agriculture, for a period of ten years, to be used by the Secretary of the Interior in the purchase of such articles as from time to time the condition and necessities of the Indians may indicate to be proper. And if at any time within the ten years it shall appear that the amount of money needed for clothing under this article can be appropriated to better uses for the tribes herein named, Congress may by law change the appropriation to other purposes; but in no event shall the amount of this appropriation be withdrawn or discontinued for the period named. And the President shall annually detail an officer of the Army to be present and attest the delivery of all the goods herein named to the Indians, and he shall inspect and report on the quantity and quality of the goods and the manner of their delivery.

ARTICLE 10. The United States hereby agrees to furnish annually to the Indians the physician, teachers, carpenter, miller, engineer, farmer, and blacksmith, as herein contemplated, and that such appropriations shall be made from time to time, on the estimates of the Secretary of the Interior, as will be sufficient to employ such persons.

ARTICLE 11. No treaty for the cession of any portion of the reservations herein described which may be held in common shall be of any force or validity as against the said Indians, unless executed and signed by at least a majority of all the adult male Indians occupying or interested in the same; and no cession by the tribe shall be understood or construed in such manner as to deprive without his consent, any individual member of the tribe of his right to any tract of land selected by him as provided in Article 6 of this treaty.

The plaintiff tribe immediately went upon this reservation and has ever since remained thereon. Certain portions of the original reservation defined by the 1868 Treaty were ceded to the United States by agreements in 1872, 1896, and 1904—the last cession being in trust for the purpose of sale or lease.

3. At the time of the making of the Treaty of 1868 the plaintiff tribe of Indians were full-blood blanket Indians, unable to read, write, speak, or understand English, with little previous contact with whites; but in all their contacts with the white people they had always been friendly. They lived mostly by hunting wild game and fishing. The affairs of the tribe were handled almost entirely by and under the advice of Chief Washakie until his death in 1900, and thereafter by the chief men and members of the tribal council.

The same condition existed in 1872 and in 1896 when agreements were made under which the tribe ceded portions of the reservation to the United States. Practically the same condition as to their education existed at the time the agreement of 1904, herein-after mentioned, was made, except, at that time, the Shoshones had considerable contact with white settlers and the Indian agents of the reservation, and a few of them could speak and understand English fairly well.

4. The plaintiff's reservation, set apart by the Treaty of July 3, 1868, is located in the central-western part of Wyoming. The Owl Creek range of mountains, constituting the northern boundary of the reservation, rises to an approximate elevation of 12,000 feet. The Wind River range of mountains, constituting the west and southwest boundaries, rises to a maximum elevation of approximately 14,000 feet. The reservation is protected from the elements by these two ranges of mountains; also by the Beaver Divide to the south. The ancient Indian name for the reservation is Warm Valley.

The reservation comprises the choicest and best-watered portion of the State of Wyoming. The character of the land ranges from precipitous mountains at the extreme north and west, down through heavily timbered upland, lower down through well-grassed bench land, to a series of river valleys with level, deep soil toward the eastern portion of the reservation. In the lower altitudes between these river valleys are wide areas of rolling upland covered with salt sage, black sage, and grasses. The reservation is made up in part of unsurpassed mountain scenery. These mountains are the source of some of the largest rivers on the North American continent, and contain within their recesses numerous fresh-water lakes well stocked with trout and waterfowl, and on whose banks live beaver, otter, and other fur-bearing animals. The mountains contain more than 400,000 acres of spruce, pinon, hemlock, balsam, and yellow and white pine timber. The river valleys are level, easily irrigated, several miles in width, and contain a warm, rich, and productive soil. Stock lives the year round without other feed than being herded on the grasses growing from the mountain tops to the lowest valleys in greatest abundance, affording ample feed and range for livestock in the mountains in the summer season and in the lower reaches of the reservation in the fall and winter seasons. The water is pure, and the climate is mild and regular. The soil is rich and compares favorably in fertility to that of Illinois and Iowa. The climatic conditions are such that the grasses grown on the lower portions of the reservation cure on the ground without cutting or harvesting, and are available in that condition as feed for the livestock in the fall and winter. The average wind velocity is 4.1 miles an hour. This low-wind velocity makes for a low rate of evaporation of moisture from the soil and plants, thus facilitating the growth and preservation of plant life.

The soil and climatic conditions on the reservation are well suited for the production of alfalfa, sweet clover, hard and soft wheat, oats, barley, corn, beans, peas, tomatoes, sugar beets, garden vegetables, small fruits, and melons. The land has a high average yield of crops.

The reservation was known in 1878 to contain substantial deposits of coal, oil, gas, and gypsum. On the northern and western boundaries of the reservation are numerous streams, which, generally, converge toward the east and south boundaries of the reservation, where they unite to form the Big Horn River. These streams traverse level valleys in the lower portions of the reservation, ranging from a half mile to five miles in width and from a few miles to 30 or 40 miles in length. A tracing showing the boundaries of the reservation and the rivers that run through it is in evidence as an exhibit to the report of the General Accounting Office, and is made a part hereof by reference.

The land on the reservation best suited for agricultural purposes lies toward the eastern portion thereof, where the river valleys are wider, the soil deeper and free from boulders, easy to irrigate, and nearer a railroad; and due to elevation, the growing season is from three to four weeks longer in the eastern portion of the reservation than in the western portion. The Arapahoes were placed on the eastern portion of the reservation. The average annual precipitation on the reservation is from about ten to twenty inches in the lower portions thereof and from twenty to twenty-five inches in the mountainous portions. Ample water is available to irrigate all agricultural land on the reservation. The reservation is supplied with sufficient water power for the production of electric light and power.

At the time of the execution of the Treaty of July 3, 1868, buffalo, elk, bear, antelope, deer, and other wild animals suitable for food were in great abundance on the reservation. Such game was native and indigenous to the mountains and valleys of the reservation, and was found sufficiently adequate for subsistence of the Indians for many years. The plaintiff tribe of Indians went on annual hunts into the mountains for food, and the skins of certain wild animals were used for robes and other necessary uses for members of the tribe. Prior to and after execution of the Treaty of July 3, 1868, defining the original reservation for the Shoshone Indians, hunters and trappers killed many of the wild animals native to the territory covered by the treaty, and many of them were frightened away—all with the result that in the years following the date of the treaty the number of buffalo and other wild animals roaming the reservation and within the mountainous regions thereof was greatly reduced.

5. Promptly following the execution of the Treaty of 1868, the United States constructed on the reservation the agency house and other buildings mentioned therein, and furnished an agent, together with other employees, provided for in the treaty. Thereupon the Shoshone Tribe occupied the reservation, and ever since that date it has made the same its permanent home, making no settlement elsewhere, and that tribe has claimed the reservation as its own exclusive property continually and uninterruptedly since that date, and during such period it has held possession of and occupied the same. Ever since entering into the treaty the Shoshones have fulfilled all the obligations, terms, and conditions therein required of them.

6. Prior to the execution of the Shoshone Treaty, July 3, 1868, gold had been discovered at a point near the boundary line of the Shoshone Reservation on the south end of the Wind River Mountains and the gold-mining district extended within the boundary line of the reservation as fixed in the treaty and a large quantity of gold was removed from the mines on the reservation by persons engaged in that enterprise. As a result of this intrusion, Felix R. Brunot was appointed a commissioner to negotiate with the Shoshone Indians for the cession of a portion of the reservation located in the gold-mining district. The best gold mines in the district had been found to be located within the reservation. As a result, Brunot obtained an agreement from the Shoshones ceding 700,642 acres of the reservation for a total consideration of $27,500. At that time the Indians had no conception of the value of money or the value of the property they were surrendering to the Government and they accepted, without question, Brunot's first offer of the amount stated. With reference to the consideration to be paid for this cession, Brunot reported to the Commissioner of Indian Affairs that "Acting upon my experience of the general habit of Indians, the Shoshones were offered a sum as the basis of further negotiation, and which I supposed would have to be increased to meet the demand of the Indians. When the terms first offered were promptly accepted, I did not feel at liberty to make an addition. It seems eminently proper to solicit from Congress." No further amount was ever paid for this cession.

Between July 3, 1868, the date of the treaty, and 1874, when the cession agreement above mentioned was ratified, gold of the value of $500,000 was mined and removed from land within the boundary of the undiminished reservation. After this cession the diminished reservation contained 2,343,540 acres.

7. On March 19, 1878, the United States took from the Shoshone Tribe of Indians an undivided one-half interest in their reservation of 2,343,540 acres described and set apart for said tribe in the Treaty of July 3, 1868, and on the same date permanently placed and settled the Northern Arapahoe Tribe of Indians on the eastern and most valuable portion thereof with equal rights with the Shoshones in and to the entire reservation. The Shoshone Tribe was not willing that this be done and the Northern Arapahoe Tribe was placed upon the reservation without the consent of the plaintiff tribe and in violation of the provisions of the treaty with the Shoshone Tribe of Indians of July 3, 1868, 15 Stat. 673. Some of the facts which were known concerning the reservation of plaintiff tribe at the time it was set apart to the Shoshone Tribe by the Treaty of July 3, 1868, are accurately set forth in the annual report of the Secretary of the Interior, 1866 (Serial 1284, p. 127), in the form of a quotation from a report of Indian Agent Mann, as follows:

The valley of the Wind River Mountains is the territory which the tribe has selected for its home, and this is the place where such a reservation should be set apart and any agency established. The country abounds in game, has a very mild climate, and possesses agricultural advantages which make it a great desideratum to the white man. Numerous oil springs have been discovered and located in the valley of the Pawpawgee, but this tribe is strongly opposed to any invasion of its territory by the whites. I greatly fear that these mineral and agricultural resources will turn out to be a bone of contention between the whites and the reds, and would therefore urge that the tribe have a reservation staked out which may be held sacred to them, and not be encroached upon by the whites. Several of our citizens are looking towards the Wind River country with a view to its development, and I give you a few extracts from a letter written by one who passed the winter and a part of the spring in the valley. He says, "The air is pure, the water of the best, the climate mild and regular. The soil is not second in fertility to that in Illinois or Iowa, farming land enough to support a population of two hundred thousand persons, the climate well adapted to the growth of small grain and fruit, especially apples and vegetables. There is plenty of timber for building and fencing purposes; the scenery is most beautiful and picturesque. There are two oil springs in the valley, one of which pours forth one hundred barrels per day. There are good indications of stone, coal, and iron, with numerous quarries of limestone suitable for building purposes. The foot-hills and valleys are covered, winter and summer, with a luxuriant growth of nutritious grass, making the finest grazing west of the Missouri. The mountains have indications of mineral deposits. But little snow fell and what did fall soon disappeared. Stock can be wintered without any feeding. Buffalo and other game abounds," etc., etc.

The annual report of the Secretary of the Interior for 1878, Serial 1850, page 644, also stated true facts concerning the Shoshone reservation, in part, as follows:

The mountains are the source of some of the most magnificent rivers on the continent, and contain within their recesses an almost innumerable number of fresh-water lakes, many of which are of unknown depths, full of the finest trout and thousands of water-fowls, and on whose banks live the beaver, otter, and many other fur-bearing animals. The mountains * * * contain an inexhaustible supply of spruce, pinon, hemlock, balsam, and yellow and white pine timber. The whole reservation is the fairest and best watered portion of the territory, and includes all of the Wind River valleys, which are level, easily irrigated, and from one-half to five miles in width; soil warm and rich, and with ordinary care very productive. No part of the reservation can be considered valueless for all purposes. For agriculture and grazing purposes it is simply a wonderful country. Stock lives all the year without any other care than being herded on the nutritious grasses growing from the mountain tops to the lowest valleys in the greatest abundance * * *.

The fertility and productiveness of the farming land comprised within the Shoshone Reservation are accurately illustrated in the annual report of territorial Governor Hoyt, of Wyoming, to the Secretary of the Interior for 1878, pages 42 and 43, describing the farm products produced on land bordering the Shoshone Reservation as follows:

There are now in this office some as fine samples of wheat, oats, clover, timothy, red-top, and other grasses, gathered by my own hand in the valley of the Big Popo Agie (Lander Valley), 15 miles this side of Camp Brown, as can be found in any state in the Union. And they were not the product of garden culture. They were gathered off a farm of 160 acres all in cultivation, and itself but one of a number of farms in that immediate neighborhood aggregating 1,500 acres under thorough and very successful cultivation, whole fields of wheat standing over 5 feet, and so thick that I walked through it with difficulty; oats, also over 5 feet in height, as heavy as they could stand and nodding with the weight of grain; timothy, 4 feet and of first quality; clover, 3½ feet, standing erect; and other grasses equally luxuriant, and all promising to mature a most abundant harvest.

The assessed value of the land in Fremont County in the State of Wyoming for the year 1887, which was the earliest assessment, was $5.44 an acre. Fremont County at that time included the Shoshone Reservation. The prices in effect in 1878 for various types of lands recognized by the land laws at that time and sold by the Federal Government were as follows: Agricultural land (tillable), $2.50 an acre; desert land (tillable only under irrigation), $1.25 an acre; mineral land containing lode deposits, $5 an acre; mineral land containing placer deposits, $2.50 an acre; coal lands, $20 an acre if within fifteen miles of a completed railroad or $10 an acre if otherwise situated; and timber and stone lands, $2.50 an acre. Lands containing oil and gas, phosphate rock, or gypsum, or involving power site or reservoir value, or valuable only for grazing, were not differentiated in 1878 from lands in the categories mentioned. Railroad facilities were near at hand.

On April 21, 1896, the plaintiff tribe, after negotiations with Indian Inspector James McLaughlin, acting for and on behalf of the United States, ceded 55,040 acres of land embracing Big Horn Hot Springs, and this agreement was approved June 7, 1897, 30 Stat. 62, 93. This land was located in the northeast corner of the reservation and, as a tract, was not as valuable as the remainder of the Shoshone Reservation as a whole. The consideration agreed to be paid, and which was paid, for this cession was $60,000.

April 21, 1904, the Shoshone Indians and the Northern Arapahoe Indians entered into an agreement with the United States ceding 1,480,000 acres of land to the United States in trust for the sale of such lands, timber thereon, and other products on the reservation and for the making of leases for various purposes. The net proceeds derived from such ceded lands were to be credited to the Shoshone and Arapahoe Indians. After these agreements the diminished reservation consisted of 808,500 acres. No further cessions have been made. During the period 1907 to 1919 a total of 245,058 acres of land on the diminished reservation was allotted in severalty to the Shoshone and Arapahoe Indians. Additional lands have subsequently been allotted, but the record does not disclose the extent of such allotments. The lands allotted to the Arapahoe Indians were located on the eastern portion of the reservation, which were the most valuable of the farming lands within the reservation. The respective population of the Shoshone and the Northern Arapahoe Tribes of Indians from 1878 to date has been approximately equal.

8. The fair and reasonable value of a one-half undivided interest of the Shoshone or Wind River Reservation of a total of 2,343,540 acres, which was taken by the United States on March 19, 1878, from the Shoshone Tribe of Indians for the Northern Arapahoe Tribe, was, on March 19, 1878, $1,581,889.50.

9. The amount to be added to the value of plaintiff's property rights of $1,581,889.50 when taken by the Government March 19, 1878, necessary to the award of just compensation is $4,682,392.92. This additional amount is measured by interest on such value at March 19, 1878, at 5 percent per annum, which was the usual and customary rate of interest provided in Indian treaties, agreements, and statutes concerning funds belonging to Indian tribes and held and used by the Government in the management of Indian affairs and in the use of Indian funds generally for the benefit of the Indian tribes.

The above-mentioned additional amount of $4,682,392.92 is arrived at by computing interest, not as interest but as a part of just compensation, on the value of the property rights taken from March 19, 1878, to June 1, 1937.

10. Under finding 24 of the findings of fact and item 14 of the opinion heretofore rendered December 2, 1935, 82 C. Cls. 23, plaintiff is entitled to recover the amount of $89,704.17 due it to June 30, 1927, on account of the proceeds from the Wind River Reservation erroneously credited to the Northern Arapahoe Tribe of Indians.

Under the agreement of September 26, 1872, 18 Stat. 291, plaintiff is entitled to recover the unpaid balance of $14.50.

Under the agreement of April 21, 1896, 30 Stat. 62, 93, covering the Big Horn Hot Springs cession of 55,040 acres, plaintiff is entitled to recover $7,661.84.

Under the agreement of April 21, 1904, 33 Stat. 1016, plaintiff is entitled to recover $3,014.98.

11. Offsets under gratuity disbursements.—Section 3 of the Jurisdictional Act provided that "In said suit the court shall also hear, examine, and adjudicate any claim which the United States may have against said tribe, but any payment, including gratuities which the United States may have made to said tribe, shall not operate as an estoppel, but may be pleaded as an offset in such suit." During the period July 1, 1867, to June 30, 1927, the Congress appropriated and the Indian Department made gratuity disbursements totaling $1,223,266.26, of which $166,189.28 was charged against the plaintiff tribe directly and $1,057,076.98 against the Shoshone, Bannock, and Arapahoe Tribes jointly for the purposes and in the amounts following:

12. All of the charges made directly against plaintiff tribe totaling $166,189.28, except $12,294.73 thereof, represented expenditures after the advent of the Arapahoe Indians upon the Shoshone Reservation. Of the last-mentioned amount of $12,294.73 charged directly against the plaintiff, the amount of $7,510.31 represented expenditures for purposes in the benefits of which the Bannock Tribe shared equally with plaintiff during the time that tribe lived on the Shoshone Reservation. The population of the Bannock Tribe during the period they shared in expenditures for the Shoshones was 800 and that of plaintiff tribe during that time was 2,400. The amount of $4,784.42 of the above-mentioned $12,294.73 represented that portion of the total expenditure of $166,189.28 disbursed and charged directly against the plaintiff tribe before the Arapahoe Tribe of Indians moved to the Shoshone Reservation. The Arapahoe Indians shared equally with the Shoshones in the benefits of $127,661.58 of the total expenditures charged directly to plaintiff for the purposes specified in items 4, 7, 14, 17, 18, 24, 26, 38, 50, 51, and $6,815.62 of item 33 of the above-mentioned tabulation.

13. The direct charges made against the plaintiff tribe out of expenditures for the period mentioned for purposes in which the Arapahoe Tribe did not share equally with the Shoshones total $38,527.70. Of the last-mentioned amount, $7,510.31 represented expenditures for the benefit of the plaintiff tribe of Indians and the Bannock Indians jointly, and on the basis of population of these two tribes during the time the Bannock Indians were on the Shoshone Reservation the amount of $2,503.44 represented the share of the Bannock Indians, leaving a total direct expenditure for the benefit of the plaintiff tribe of Indians, in the benefits of which neither the Bannocks nor the Arapahoes shared, of $36,024.26. The defendant is entitled to offset this amount against plaintiff.

14. With respect to the above-mentioned sum of $127,661.58, being that portion of the disbursements of $166,189.28 charged directly against the plaintiff tribe for purposes in the benefits of which the Arapahoes shared equally with the Shoshones, the defendant is entitled to an offset against plaintiff in the amount of $63,958.45 on the basis of the average annual population of plaintiff tribe to the total population of both tribes in the proportion of 50.18 percent for the Shoshones for the period 1878 to 1927, inclusive.

15. During the period July 1, 1867, to June 30, 1927, the United States appropriated and expended for the benefit of plaintiff tribe jointly with the Bannock and the Northern Arapahoe tribes on the Shoshone Reservation a total of $1,057,076.98, which included the amount of $116,820.84 made reimbursable by the act of February 8, 1887, but which amount has not been repaid.

The amount of $32,502.52 of the total joint charges of $1,057,076.98 represented expenditures made for the joint benefit of plaintiff and the Bannock tribes during the years July 1, 1867, to the fiscal year 1876, inclusive. The records are such that it is now impossible to determine what portion of this amount of $32,502.52 should be charged to plaintiff tribe. However, both tribes shared equally in the benefits and the plaintiff tribe should be charged with $21,668.34. The defendant is entitled to offset this amount in respect of this item.

On the basis of percentage of population of plaintiff tribe in each year during the period 1878 to 1927, inclusive, the defendant is entitled to an offset of $511,791.92 in respect of expenditures totaling $1,024,574.46 charged jointly to plaintiff and the Arapahoe Tribe.

16. During the fiscal years 1882 to 1921, inclusive, gratuity disbursements were made out of appropriations in the total sum of $4,147,322.55 for the benefit of the Shoshone and the Arapahoe tribes of Indians on the Shoshone Reservation in Wyoming. The sum of $611,842.22 of this amount was charged directly against the plaintiff tribe, and $3,535,480.33 was charged against the Northern Arapahoe and plaintiff tribes jointly. The purposes for which these disbursements were made and the direct and joint charges were as follows:

Item nos.		Direct	Jointly with Northern Arapahoe Tribe of Indians	Totals

17. With reference to the amount of $611,842.22 charged directly against plaintiff, as above mentioned, the amount of $96,847.94 under items 7, 10, 11, 16, 17, 18, 22, and 26 of the above tabulation represented the total of disbursements directly charged to plaintiff for facilities and services in the benefits of which the Northern Arapahoe Indians shared equally with plaintiff tribe, and for which the record does not show any direct charge against the Northern Arapahoe Indians, leaving a balance of $514,994.28 which the defendant is entitled to offset against plaintiff.

With respect to the above-mentioned amount of $96,847.94, the defendant is entitled to offset against plaintiff the amount of $49,198.75 on the basis of the average annual population of plaintiff tribe of 50.8 percent during the period 1882 to 1921, inclusive.

18. In the expenditures for the joint benefit of plaintiff tribe and the Northern Arapahoe Tribe in the sum of $3,535,480.33, disbursed during the period July 1, 1882, to June 30, 1927, there was included the sum of $235,963.07 disbursed during the years 1913 to 1927, inclusive, for roads and bridges on the Shoshone Reservation which was made reimbursable by the acts authorizing such expenditures.

By the act of July 1, 1932 (47 Stat. 564), it was provided:

That the Secretary of the Interior is hereby authorized and directed to adjust or eliminate reimbursable charges of the Government of the United States existing as debts against individual Indians or tribes of Indians in such a way as shall be equitable and just in consideration of all the circumstances under which such charges were made. * * * Provided further, That any proceedings hereunder shall not be effective until approved by Congress unless Congress shall have failed to act favorably or unfavorably thereon by concurrent resolution within sixty legislative days after the filing of said report, in which case they shall become effective at the termination of the said sixty legislative days.

On December 15, 1932, the Secretary of the Interior reported to Congress that the outstanding indebtedness for roads and bridges on the Shoshone Reservation was $131,492.50, and he recommended that the entire amount of the unpaid reimbursable balance be canceled. Congress not having disapproved this recommendation within sixty legislative days after December 1932, the outstanding reimbursable balance was no longer a charge against the Shoshone Tribe of Indians, as appears from the statement of the Commissioner of Indian Affairs of July 10, 1933, that "In accordance with the terms of the act of July 1, 1932, this sum is no longer regarded as a reimbursable charge against the tribal funds."

The aforementioned expenditures of $3,535,480.33 also included disbursements for "Irrigation System, Wind River Diminished Reservation, Wyoming", totaling $2,264,123, made during the period 1906 to 1927, and more than one-half of which was expended in the years 1918 to 1925. Of this last-mentioned amount, expenditures totaling $1,582,285.25 were made reimbursable by the appropriation acts under which that amount was expended.

19. Allotments of land on the diminished reservation were made to the Shoshone and Arapahoe Indians in severalty and during the period 1907 to 1919, 245,058 acres had been allotted. By the act of August 1, 1914, 38 Stat. 582, 583, it was provided that the costs of irrigation systems incurred by the Government, before or after the date of the act, were to be assessed against the landowners who were to receive the benefits of the irrigation. Under this act the cost of such irrigation development was transferred from the tribe to the individual Indian allottee having irrigable land under any project on the reservation. The act provided that "all moneys expended heretofore or hereafter under this provision shall be reimbursable where the Indians have adequate funds to repay the Government, such reimbursements to be made under such rules and regulations as the Secretary of the Interior may prescribe." Apportionment of such irrigation construction cost was directed by the act of February 14, 1920, 41 Stat. 408, 409, and the apportionment was made and approved by the Department. That act provided that "The Secretary of the Interior is hereby authorized and directed to require the owners of irrigable land under any irrigation system heretofore or hereafter constructed for the benefit of Indians and to which water for irrigation purposes can be delivered to begin partial reimbursement of the construction charges, where reimbursement is required by law, at such times and in such amounts as he may deem best; all payments hereunder to be credited on a per-acre basis in favor of the land in behalf of which such payments shall have been made and to be deducted from the total per-acre charge assessable against said land."

In order to insure the United States reimbursement for the advancement of money for the construction, operation, and maintenance of irrigation projects on the Shoshone Reservation, Congress, by the act of March 7, 1928 (45 Stat. 200, 210), created a lien on the land of allottees under the Shoshone Indian irrigation projects. This act provided as follows:

That the costs of irrigation projects and of operating and maintaining such projects, where reimbursement thereof is required by law, shall be apportioned on a per-acre basis against the lands under the respective projects and shall be collected by the Secretary of the Interior as required by such law, and any unpaid charges outstanding against such lands shall constitute a first lien thereon which shall be recited in any patent or instrument issued for such lands.

In accordance with the provisions of these acts the cost of irrigation projects on the Shoshone Reservation has been apportioned.

The Superintendent of the Indian Field Service reported, on June 17, 1931, that the cost of the irrigation project constructed for Indians on the Shoshone or Wind River Reservation has been apportioned in accordance with the benefits received by each individual Indian so far as practicable against such Indians on a per-acre basis against the lands under the respective projects, and the unpaid charges outstanding against such lands constitute a first lien thereon.

On July 3, 1931, the Commissioner of Indian Affairs stated of record in this case with reference to expenditures for irrigation involved in the case at bar that the statements contained in Superintendent Haas' letter * * * are in accord with the facts. Prior to the act of August 1, 1914 (38 Stat. 582), the cost of irrigation work on this reservation was payable out of tribal funds. By that act the cost was shifted from the tribal burden to that of the individual Indian or allottee having irrigable land under the project on that reservation. The equitable way of distributing costs is by taking the acreage under a unit or a project and dividing same into the cost of the works, thereby giving the per-acre assessment of charge against each acre of land under the particular unit or project. This method is consistent with usual practice and works the greatest equity to all under the project. Apportionment of construction costs was directed by the act of February 14, 1920 (41 Stat. 408). The act of March 7, 1928 (45 Stat. 200), created a lien against lands of the Shoshone Indian irrigation project, which lien is recited in patents issued for irrigable lands thereunder prior to the payment of the share of the cost of the irrigation works.

20. The elimination of the item of $2,264,123 for irrigation and $235,963.07 for roads and bridges, totaling $2,500,086.07, from the total expenditure of $3,535,480.33 made during the period July 1, 1881, to June 30, 1927, for the joint benefit of the Northern Arapahoe and plaintiff tribes, leaves $1,035,394.26, and from this sum there should be further eliminated the item of "Payment to settlers", set forth in item 27 of the tabulation above, amounting to $9,121.50, representing payments made by the United States to persons who had settled upon the Shoshone Reservation in order to obtain their removal therefrom; this leaves a balance of $1,026,272.76 in respect of which the defendant is entitled to offset against the plaintiff tribe the amount of $508,005.02, on the basis of the average annual population of plaintiff tribe of 49.5 percent to the total population of both tribes during the period 1884 to 1927, inclusive.

21. The total amounts of $2,264,123 and $235,963.07 expended for irrigation and roads and bridges, respectively, under specific appropriations for the joint benefit of plaintiff tribe and the Northern Arapahoe Tribe of Indians were expended in the years and in the amounts following:

22. Subsequent to the accounting report filed in this case for the period July 1, 1878, to June 30, 1927, on the basis of which the foregoing offsets totaling $1,705,641.02 against the plaintiff tribe have been determined, a supplemental report of accounting of payments made by the United States from appropriations for the Indian Service generally and out of available funds has been filed showing disbursements for the benefit of the plaintiff tribe for the period July 1, 1927, to June 30, 1934. During this period the amount of $6,904.48 was disbursed and charged directly to plaintiff tribe. This amount the defendant is entitled to offset.

23. During the same period, July 1, 1927, to June 30, 1934, the defendant expended out of other than Treaty Appropriations for the benefit of plaintiff tribe and the Northern Arapahoe Tribe, jointly, a total of $487,376.36 for the following purposes:

CONCLUSION OF LAW

Upon the foregoing special findings of fact, which are made a part of the judgment herein, the court decides, as a conclusion of law, that plaintiff is entitled to recover $6,364,677.91.

The defendant on its counterclaim is entitled to offset against the total amount due plaintiff the amount of $1,956,233.68, leaving a balance of $4,408,444.23 due plaintiff.

It is therefore adjudged and ordered that the plaintiff recover of and from the United States four million four hundred eight thousand four hundred forty-four dollars and twenty-three cents ($4,408,444.23), with interest at 5 percent per annum on $1,581,889.50 from June 1, 1937, to date of payment.

OPINION

LITTLETON, Judge, delivered the opinion of the court:

The Jurisdictional Act, under which this suit was instituted, was approved March 3, 1927, 44 Stat. 1349. It conferred jurisdiction upon this court, with right of appeal to the Supreme Court by either party, to hear, examine, adjudicate, and render judgment in any and all legal and equitable claims which the Shoshone Tribe of Indians of the Wind River Reservation in the State of Wyoming might have against the United States arising under or growing out of the Treaty of July 3, 1868, or arising under or growing out of any subsequent treaty or agreement between said Shoshone Tribe and the United States or any subsequent act of Congress affecting the tribe which claims have not heretofore been determined and adjudicated upon their merits by this court or the Supreme Court. In section 3 it was provided that "In said suit the court shall also hear, examine, and adjudicate any claims which the United States may have against said tribe, but any payment, including gratuities which the United States may have made to said tribe, shall not operate as an estoppel but may be pleaded as an offset in such suit: Provided, however, That the United States may interpose to such suit or action any and all pleas of defense, affirmative and negative, legal and equitable, which it may have thereto not herein specifically barred by the provisions of this act. In reference to all claims which may be the subject matter of the suits herein authorized, the decree of the court shall be in full settlement of all damages, if any, committed by the Government of the United States, and shall annul and cancel all claim, right, and title of the said Shoshone Indians in and to such money, lands, or other property."

The questions now involved in this case are (1) the value on March 19, 1878, of the property rights of the plaintiff in and to one-half of a reservation of 2,343,540 acres of land, known as the Shoshone or Wind River Reservation, in the State of Wyoming taken by the government on the date mentioned for the Northern Arapahoe Tribe of Indians; (2) the amount to be added to such value necessary to the award of just compensation.

The property taken by the government consisted of a one-half undivided interest in the entire reservation, or 1,171,770 acres. For this plaintiff contends for a value of $1.75 an acre, or $2,050,597.50 on March 19, 1878, and an additional amount as a part of just compensation at the rate of 7 percent per annum to date of payment. As further damages plaintiff contends for an allowance of 87½ cents an acre to the remainder of the reservation on the ground that the Arapahoes were placed on and given the most valuable portion. From the total of these amounts plaintiff deducts the total allowable disbursements made by the government for the benefit of plaintiff tribe from 1878 to June 30, 1934, the date on which the evidence of accounting between the government and the plaintiff tribe ended, and asks judgment for the balance, which it computes as $13,923,509.57, as follows:

Reasonable value of a one-half undivided interest.....	$2, 050, 597. 50
Damages to remaining one-half interest at 87½ cents.....	1, 025, 298. 75
Additional amount measured by interest at 7 percent per annum.....	12, 703, 451. 51
Total of other amounts allowed by Court.....	100, 395. 49
Less offset.....	15, 879, 743. 25
	1, 956, 233. 68
Balance due to date of judgment.....	13, 923, 509. 57

Counsel for the defendant contend that the only rights of plaintiff in and to the reservation specified in the Treaty of July 3, 1868, which may be considered in arriving at the just compensation to which the tribe may be entitled because of a taking by the government of a one-half undivided interest in the reservation for the Arapahoe Indians were the rights to live upon the reservation, to use such materials thereon as might be necessary for building and farming purposes and for the purpose of carrying on farming operations thereon, and that no consideration whatsoever should be given by the court in fixing the amount of just compensation to any value existing in March 1878 for the value of land, as such, or for the timber or mineral content of the land. On this theory counsel contend that the value of the property rights taken was approximately 4 cents an acre, or $46,000, to which should be added 5 percent per annum. In the alternative, it is contended that, in any event, the value of the property rights of plaintiff tribe did not exceed $469,000, arrived at on the basis of $25 for each Arapahoe Indian, or $23,450 for the entire population of the tribe in March 1878 capitalized at 5 percent per annum. This total of $469,000 amounts to approximately 40 cents an acre for 1,171,770 acres. In support of the contention that the extent of the property rights of plaintiff tribe consisted merely of the right to live upon the reservation, counsel for the defendant rely upon the case of United States v. Cook, 19 Wall. 591, and subsequent cases involving the same or similar questions, namely, whether individual Indians upon a reservation had a right to cut and sell timber from the reservation and retain the proceeds and otherwise deal with the tribal property as a private owner might do. We shall discuss that case later in the opinion. It is also argued that the Supreme Court in the case at bar, 299 U. S. 476, affirmed the rule contended for by the government in the following language: "Confusion is likely to result from speaking of the wrong to the Shoshones as a destruction of their title. Title in the strict sense was always in the United States, though the Shoshones had the treaty right of occupancy, with all its beneficial incidents. United States v. Creek Nation, supra, p. 109. What those incidents are, it is needless to consider now. Cf. United States v. Cook, 19 Wall. 591; Pine River Logging Co. v. United States, 186 U. S. 279; United States v. Paine Lumber Co., 206 U. S. 467." In that statement the court was discussing the contention of plaintiff tribe that the taking of their property occurred in March 1927 upon the passage of the Jurisdictional Act authorizing this suit to be brought, for the reason that this act destroyed their title to one-half of the reservation. We think it is clear that the court did not intend to hold as counsel for defendant now contend, but reserved the question of the character and extent of the property rights of an Indian tribe in and to a reservation specified and set apart by a treaty, inasmuch as the case was being remanded for consideration and determination of just compensation to which the plaintiff tribe was entitled as of March 1878. Following the quotation above mentioned, the court also said: "The right of occupancy is the primary one to which the incidents attach, and division of the right with strangers is an appropriation of the land pro tanto, in substance, if not in form." Article 2 of the Treaty of July 3, 1868, provided that the reservation in question "is set apart for the absolute and undisturbed use and occupation of the Shoshone Indians * * *; and the United States now solemnly agrees that no persons except those herein designated [the Shoshones] and authorized so to do, and except such officers, agents, and employees of the government as may be authorized to enter upon Indian reservations in discharge of duties enjoined by law, shall ever be permitted to pass over, settle upon, or reside in the territory described in this article for the use of said Indians, and henceforth they will and do hereby relinquish all title, claims, or rights in and to any portion of the territory of the United States except such as is embraced within the limits aforesaid." We are of the opinion that this right to "absolute and undisturbed use and occupation" of the reservation includes, as beneficial incidents, the net value of the land, including the net value of any timber or minerals within the boundaries of the reservation, and, so far as we have been able to ascertain, this view is consistent with the established policy of the government from the beginning of its dealings with the Indian tribes, the making of treaties providing reservations for them, and in the management of tribal lands and other affairs of the Indian tribes at least for several years prior to 1878 and at all times subsequent thereto. Reference to various treaties and cession agreements at very early dates when the government was endeavoring to locate all Indian tribes upon definitely defined reservations does not overcome this conclusion. Instances can be found where commissioners dealing with Indian tribes secured agreements ceding lands for small amounts on a "per acre" basis, but, standing alone, these transactions indicate nothing more than that perhaps the Indian tribes concerned were paid or allowed much less than the amount to which they were really entitled. Iowa Tribe of Indians v. United States, 68 Ct. Cls. 585. Other transactions of a similar nature can be found where much larger amounts per acre were paid, and where, in arriving at the amounts paid to the Indian tribes concerned, consideration was given to the value of the land, as such, and all that went with it.

The nature of the Indian title has been discussed in many cases. In Worcester v. State of Georgia, 6 Pet. 515 (1832), the court said, "* * * Their right of occupancy has never been questioned, but the fee in the soil has been considered in the government. This may be called the right to the ultimate domain, but the Indians have a present right of possession."

Again, in Mitchel v. United States, 9 Pet. 711, 746 (1835), it was said:

Indian possession or occupation was considered with reference to their habits and modes of life; their hunting-grounds were as much in their actual possession as the cleared fields of the whites; and their rights to its conclusive enjoyment in their own way and for their own purposes were as much respected, until they abandoned them, made a cession to the government, or an authorized sale to individuals. * * *

* * * it is enough to consider it as a settled principle that their right of occupancy is considered as sacred as the fee-simple of the whites.

In Holden v. Joy, 17 Wall. 211, 244 (1872), the court held as follows:

Throughout, the Indians, as tribes or nations, have been considered as distinct, independent communities, retaining their original natural rights as the undisputed possessors of the soil, from time immemorial, subject to the conditions imposed by the discoverers of the continent, which excluded them from intercourse with any other government than that of the first discoverer of the particular section claimed. They could sell to the government of the discoverer, but they could not sell to any other governments or their subjects, as the government of the discoverer acquired, by virtue of their discovery, the exclusive preemption right to purchase, and the right to exclude the subjects of all other governments, and even their own, from acquiring title to the lands.

Enough has already been remarked to show that the lands conveyed to the United States by the treaty were held by the Cherokees under their original title, acquired by immemorial possession, commencing ages before the New World was known to civilized man. Unmistakably their title was absolute, subject only to the preemption right of purchase acquired by the United States as the successors of Great Britain, and the right also on their part as such successors of the discoverer to prohibit the sale of the land to any other governments or their subjects, and to exclude all other governments from any interference in their affairs.

In United States v. Cook, supra (1873), on which counsel for defendant rely, the controversy concerned the ownership of logs cut from the Oneida Indian Reservation in Wisconsin by a member of the tribe for the sole purpose of sale. In holding, as had always been held, and as was clearly stated in Holden v. Joy, supra, that the Indians in possession of a reservation had only a right of occupancy in the land, that the fee is in the United States, and that the Government had the power to manage the property and affairs of the tribe, the court decided that the members of the Oneida Tribe had no right to cut the timber on the land solely for the purpose of sale; that to do so was waste as in the case of the cutting of timber by a trespasser; and that the United States as the owner of the fee became the owner of the logs. In reaching its conclusion, the court said that "The right of the Indians to their occupancy is as sacred as that of the United States to the fee." Page 593. And further, that—

This right of use and occupancy by the Indians is unlimited. They may exercise it at their discretion. If the lands in a state of nature are not in a condition for profitable use, they may be made so. If desired for the purposes of agriculture, they may be cleared of their timber to such an extent as may be reasonable under the circumstances. The timber taken off by the Indians in such clearing may be sold by them. But to justify any cutting of the timber, except for use upon the premises, as timber or its product, it must be done in good faith for the improvement of the land. The improvement must be the principal thing, and the cutting of the timber the incident only. Any cutting beyond this would be waste and unauthorized.

The timber, while standing, is a part of the realty, and it can only be sold as the land could be. The land cannot be sold by the Indians, and consequently the timber, until rightfully severed, cannot be. It can be rightfully severed for the purpose of improving the land, or the better adapting it to convenient occupation, but for no other purpose. When rightfully severed it is no longer a part of the land, and there is no restriction upon its sale. Its severance under such circumstances is, in effect, only a legitimate use of the land.

In that case two points were decided: first, it was decided by analogy to the law relating to the respective rights of life-tenant and remainder-man, that the Indians have no right to cut the timber on an Indian reservation for the purpose of sale only; that to do so is waste, and that the title to timber so cut vests in the United States as the owner of the fee or "ultimate domain"; second, that the Indians have an exclusive right of use and occupancy of unlimited duration, and the right to cut the standing timber during the whole period of such occupancy not only for use upon the premises but "for the purpose of improving the land or the better adapting it to convenient occupation"; also the right to sell all timber cut for the latter purpose. It is clear therefore that this decision did not hold that the government had the right to cut or dispose of the timber on Indian Reservations, or to sell Indian lands for its own use and benefit without accounting therefor to the Indian tribe. When a reservation is definitely set apart for an Indian tribe by treaty or statute, the Government has only the right and power to control and manage the property and affairs of the Indians in good faith for their betterment, but, as stated by the court in Shoshone Tribe of Indians v. United States, 299 U. S. 476:

Power to control and manage the property and affairs of Indians in good faith for their betterment and welfare may be exerted in many ways and at times even in derogation of the provisions of a treaty. Lone Wolf v. Hitchcock, 187 U. S. 553, 564, 565, 566. The power does not extend so far as to enable the Government "to give the tribal lands to others, or to appropriate them to its own purposes, without rendering, or assuming an obligation to render, just compensation * * *; for that would not be an exercise of guardianship, but an act of confiscation." United States v. Creek Nation, supra, p. 110, 113; * * *.

Government counsel argue here that United States v. Cook, supra, decided that the interest of the Indians in the reservation lands and timber thereon is that of a life-tenant and no more. In that case the court did say that "What a tenant for life may do upon the lands of a remainder-man the Indians may do upon their reservations, but no more." But in thus comparing the position of the Indian with that of a life-tenant for the purpose of stating what the Indians may or may not do on their reservations, we think the court did not intend definitely to hold that the interest of the Indians in the lands of their reservations is only that of a tenant for life. Such a holding would have been in conflict with the statement of the court after reviewing prior cases concerning the nature of Indian title, that the Indians have the right of use and occupancy of unlimited duration. We think also that the contention of counsel for defendant is inconsistent with the holding of the Supreme Court in the case at bar—that the power of the government to control and manage the property and affairs of the Indians in good faith for their betterment and welfare does not extend so far as to enable the government to give the land to others or to appropriate them to its own purposes.

The case of Leavenworth, et al. R. R. Co. v. United States, 92 U. S. 733, 742 (1875), arose under the Treaty of June 2, 1825, between the United States and the Osage Tribe of Indians; that treaty (7 Stat. 240) reserved for the occupancy of the Indians for an unlimited period a tract of land lying within the boundaries of what subsequently became the State of Kansas. By an act approved March 3, 1863 (12 Stat. 772), Congress granted to the State every alternate section of land on each side of a projected line of the railroad to aid in its construction. The state assigned the grant to the plaintiff in error. The line of the proposed railroad traversed part of the reservation of the Osage Indians. By a Treaty of January 21, 1867, the Indians ceded a part of their reservation to the government, including the part through which this railroad passed. The question before the court was whether the grant made by the Act of March 3, 1863, supra, included the interest of the United States in the sections of land contiguous to the railroad in the Osage Reservation. It was held that this could not have been intended for the reason, among others, that the interest of the United States was only an "ultimate fee", subject to a "perpetual right of occupancy" in the Indians, and, therefore, would have been of no immediate practicable benefit for the purpose of the grant. In discussing the nature of the Indian title, the court said:

As long ago as in Cherokee Nation v. Georgia, 5 Pet. 1, this court said that the Indians are acknowledged to have the unquestionable right to the lands they occupy, until it shall be extinguished by a voluntary cession to the Government; and, recently, United States v. Cook, 19 Wall. 591, that right was declared to be as sacred as the title of the United States to the fee. * * * This perpetual right of occupancy, with the correlative obligation of the Government to enforce it, negatives the idea that Congress, even in the absence of any positive stipulation to protect the Osages, intended to grant their lands to a railroad company, either absolutely or cum onere. For all practical purposes, they owned it; as the actual right of possession, the only thing they deemed of value, was secured to them by Treaty, until they should elect to surrender it to the United States. In the free exercise of their choice, they might hold it forever; and whatever changed this condition, or interfered with it, violated the guaranties under which they had lived. [Italics ours.]

See, also, Beecher v. Wetherby, 95 U. S. 517, 525, 526, and also 34 Ops. Atty. Gen. 171, 181, in which it was held, on the question whether the Indians' rights of occupancy and use included any right to the hidden and latent resources of land, as follows:

If a transfer by the United States would convey only the naked fee, it goes without saying that the complete equitable property was in the Indians. The earlier and fundamental decisions make this plain. In Worcester v. Georgia, 6 Pet. 515, 544, 545, Chief Justice Marshall clearly states that the right asserted in behalf of the discovering European nations was merely a right, as against each other, which he defines as "the exclusive right of purchasing such lands as the natives were willing to sell." As late as 1872 the Supreme Court said: "Unmistakably their title was absolute, subject only to the preemption right of purchase acquired by the United States as the successors of Great Britain, and the right * * * to prohibit the sale of the land to any other governments or their subjects" (Holden v. Joy, 17 Wall. 211, 244). [Italics ours.]

The position of counsel for the government is that this opinion of the Attorney General did not rule on the question of the Indians' rights in the natural resources of their reservations, but only expressed an inclination, as shown by the statement that "If it were necessary here to decide as between these opposing views I should incline strongly to the latter." This position is based, we think, on an erroneous interpretation of what the opposing views were to which the Attorney General referred. They were not whether in 1924 the Indian tribes had a mere right to use and occupancy or the equivalent of a fee-simple title to their reservation, but, as shown in the same paragraph of the opinion, they were whether the Indians' interest in the natural resources of their reservations was bestowed upon them by the grace of Congress or whether it was a preexisting right. P. 180. On either theory, the Indians at the time in question were the beneficial owners of these resources, and the Attorney General so held. Inasmuch as either theory supported his conclusion it was not necessary, as he said, to decide between them, but he expressed the clear preference for the view that the Indians' beneficial ownership of the natural resources of their reservations was a preexisting or treaty right, and that the acts of Congress merely recognized and confirmed it, adding, "Support for this view is found in many expressions of the courts", some of which, as we have seen, he then proceeded to cite. Pp. 180-181.

Again in an opinion relating to the rights in standing timber on lands of the White Mountain Apache Indian Reservation, a reservation created by Executive Order, which had been subsequently included in a forest reservation proclaimed by the President under authority of an act of Congress, the Attorney General, 29 Ops. A. G., 239, 244, said:

From the character of the legislation so passed in review,¹ there can be little doubt that in the mind and policy of Congress this reservation was not only a valid reservation set apart for the occupancy and enjoyment of the various tribes which have inhabited it from the beginning, and subject to be allotted in part to the individual members composing them, but was also devoted to them in its entirety in such a sense that no part of it should be taken from them without their consent or giving something in return by way of compensation. And, of course, no distinction here is to be taken between the land and the timber growing upon it and, presumably, constituting its chief value. (U. S. v. Cook, 19 Wall. 591.) [Italics ours.]

The decisions cited establish, first, that the Indians have the right of possession and absolute use and occupancy in perpetuity until voluntary abandonment, subject to the power of the United States to control and manage the property and affairs of the Indians for their betterment and welfare, and that the beneficial incidents of this right of perpetual possession and absolute use and occupancy consist of the net value of the land, including any timber or minerals upon the reservation. In other words, the beneficial interest belongs to the Indians. Second, that the United States has a naked fee and the right to the ultimate domain which gives it the right to prevent waste and to recover the proceeds of anything severed from the land by acts constituting waste, and also the right to control alienation of the Indians' interest, but nothing more unless the Indians should abandon possession, in which event the right of possession would attach to the fee.

Acts of Congress relating to the disposition of Indian lands likewise recognize, we think, that the beneficial interest in the lands of an Indian reservation, including standing timber, mineral deposits, etc., belongs to the Indians.

Prior to the Act of March 3, 1883 (22 Stat. 582, 590), numerous acts of Congress relating to Indian lands dealt with each tribe separately. Prior to 1871 the disposition of Indian lands was handled by treaties and agreements made with the Indians by the executive department of the government subject to ratification by Congress. An examination and study of many cession agreements, made at very early dates in the history of the relationship between the Indian tribes and the government, disclose that scant consideration was given by the commissioners, acting on behalf of the government, to the actual value of the possessions of the Indians. As was said by this court in Blackfeet Indians v. United States, 81 C. Cls. 101, 136, that—

Few, if any, Indian treaties disclose a bargain and sale of the Indians' lands upon the strict commercial basis observed in ordinary transfers of landed property. For this reason the court is firmly convinced that an established value applicable in all cases is not available to the parties as a precedent. Too many factors varying with respect to the case to be adjudicated enter into the issue to warrant the court in sustaining a fixed value upon the theory that the sum claimed is the same sum fixed in some prior litigation.

In 1863 and 1891 Indian lands were sold at $1.25 and $2.50 an acre. Sisseton & Wahpeton Bands of Sioux Indians v. United States, 58 C. Cls. 302. The annual report of the Secretary of the Interior for 1879, Serial 1910, page 454, shows the amounts received for the sale of Indian lands during the year ending June 30, 1879, as follows:

Name	Acres	Amount
Cherokee.....	80. 07	$100. 09
Sioux.....	12, 929. 08	16, 189. 34
Sac and Fox.....	2, 398. 15	8, 140. 51
Ote and Missouri.....	37, 777. 20	73, 718. 05

Shawnee absentee.....	80. 00	200. 00
Total.....	335, 737. 57	556, 501. 66

The above tabulation, which embraces a large area of land in ten Indian reservations located in several states, shows an average sales price of approximately $1.65 an acre.

From 1871 many acts were passed by Congress dealing with reservation lands of various Indian tribes. The Act of February 6, 1871, 16 Stat. 404, sections 1-4, relating to the lands of the Stockbridge-Munsee Tribe of Indians in the State of Wisconsin, provided for an appraisement and the sale of a portion of their reservation, including timber, the net proceeds of such sales to be paid to or deposited to the credit of the Indians. No instance is cited where the government, through either the Executive or Legislative Departments, ever took a position or expressed a definite policy that the rights and interests of Indian tribes in and to reservations described and given to them by treaties, acts of Congress, or Executive Order were other than the rights and interest of a beneficial owner prior or subsequent to 1871. The established course of conduct has been that the Indians were entitled to all net proceeds from lands, timber, etc., not as a gratuity but as of right. In other words, the position of the government and the Indian tribes has ever been that of the primary right of Indian tribes to the absolute and undisturbed use, occupancy, and possession of their reservations carried with it, as beneficial incidents, an interest in the lands, as such, and timber, etc., embraced within the reservation, and the right to have the net proceeds derived from the control and management of their properties by the government held and used in good faith for their benefit, betterment, and welfare. It seems clear that no other conclusion is justified under the established principle that the United States stands in the position of guardian for the Indians and is without power to give the tribal lands to others or to appropriate them to its own purposes without payment of just compensation. Shoshone Tribe of Indians v. United States, supra; United States v. Creek Nation, 295 U. S. 103, 110; Lane, et al. v. Pueblo of Santa Rosa, 249 U. S. 110, 113; Cherokee Nation v. Hitchcock, 187 U. S. 294, 307-308. This consistent policy in the construction of Indian treaties was, prior to 1883, definitely expressed in specific acts of Congress relating to Indian reservations and the proceeds from resources thereon, and in 1883 (22 Stat. 582, 590), and subsequently, was expressed in acts of Congress of general application to all Indian reservations. Counsel for the defendant argue that these acts of Congress relating to lands, timber, etc., within the boundaries of Indian reservations, which acts in great number prior to 1883 concerned specific reservations, and thereafter applied to all Indian reservations generally, gave the Indians no greater property rights or interests in their reservations than they previously possessed or subsequently acquired by treaty or other method employed in setting apart a reservation for them. We agree in principle with this statement, but we cannot agree with the conclusion which counsel attempt to draw, namely, that these acts of Congress and the long-continued uniform practice of the government in its dealings with Indian tribes did not amount to a construction of Indian treaties and a recognition that, under a proper construction and in accordance with the intent and purpose of the parties, the Indian title of absolute and undisturbed use and occupancy carried with it an interest in the land and the net proceeds derived therefrom so long as they continued to hold, use, and occupy the reservation solemnly set apart for them by treaty. The right to any net proceeds derived from a reservation is, it seems to us, no more than a necessary incident to the property right of absolute and exclusive use and occupancy which, it has been held, is a "perpetual right of occupancy", Leavenworth, et al. R. R. Co. v. United States, supra; Spalding v. Chandler, 160 U. S. 394, 402-403; and "as sacred as that of the United States to the fee", United States v. Cook, supra. Nor can we agree with counsel for the defendant in the further conclusion which they seek to draw from the same premise, i. e., that use and occupancy is only the right to live upon and cultivate the land, that the holding by the government in trust for the Indians and use for their exclusive benefit of all the net proceeds derived from the sale of Indian lands, timber, etc., and the products from Indian reservations constituted only the granting of a gratuity to the Indians which, if necessary, could be set up as a charge against the Indian tribe concerned. This last proposition advanced by counsel demonstrates, it seems to us, the weakness of the underlying premise that the Indian title consisted merely of the right to live upon a reservation. No attempt has ever been made to charge such funds against the Indians as reimbursable items or to include them as offsets in suits by the Indian Tribes to recover for reservation lands taken by the government. In the case at bar such proceeds amounted for the period 1885 to 1927 to $1,628,744.56, and we are giving plaintiff judgment for such portion of such funds as were taken and used for the benefit of the Arapahoe Indians. The guardianship of the Federal Government over an Indian does not cease when an allotment of land is made and the allottee becomes a citizen of the United States. Bowling v. United States, 233 U. S. 528. The Congress of the United States has undertaken from the earliest history of the government to deal with the Indians as dependent people, and to legislate concerning their property with a view to their protection as such. Tiger v. Western Investment Co., 221 U. S. 286. No right which is actually conferred on the Indians can be arbitrarily abrogated by statute. Choate v. Trapp, 224 U. S. 665. The fact that Indians own property in fee simple and are citizens of the United States does not prevent the Congress having full power to legislate concerning the tribal property, and lands so held are still subject to the legislation of Congress enacted in the exercise of the government's guardianship over such Indian communities and their affairs. Tiger v. Western Investment Co., supra. U. S. v. Sandoval, 231 U. S. 28. But the ownership of the government or its interest in Indian lands, timber, etc., is, it seems to us, no greater than its right to use for its own purpose, or otherwise than for the benefit of the Indians concerned, any of the net proceeds derived from the sale of Indian lands, timber, etc. It has been consistently held that the government is liable for any such proceeds which may have been appropriated to its own use or diverted to other purposes, and it has also been held that the Indians are the beneficial owners of treaty lands. In United States v. Brindle, 110 U. S. 688, 693 (1884), the court said: "These Indian trust lands were never public lands of the United States, and were never subject to sale at the Lecompton land office. The cessions to the United States were in trust, to survey, manage, and sell the lands and pay the net proceeds to or invest them for the Indians. There was never a time that the United States occupied any other position under the cessions than that of trustees, with power to sell for the benefit of the Indians. In equity, under the operation of the treaties, the Indians continued, until sales were made, the beneficial owners of all their country ceded in trust. Of this we have no doubt." (Italics ours.) In Iowa Tribe of Indians v. United States, 68 C. Cls. 585, where, as here, the Indian title was a right of use and occupancy, and representations were made to the Indians by the commissioners of the United States in acquiring 219,803 acres of their lands for 38 cents an acre that they had but a limited and qualified interest (p. 594), which is the contention made by government counsel here, the court, at page 609, said:

Without ascribing improper motives to the commissioners, the record at the very outset discloses an obvious and serious misconception of the Indians' title to their lands, and the making of representations to the Indians, calculated to inspire fear, which had absolutely no basis in law or in fact.

Counsel for defendant also point to a statement in the former opinion of this court in the case at bar, 82 C. Cls. 23, where, in discussing the interest of Indian tribes in reservation lands subsequent to the Act of March 3, 1883 (22 Stat. 582, 590), it was indicated that prior to that time the Indians were not the beneficial owners of the reservation lands. In that opinion we held that the taking occurred in 1891, and the statement was dictum. The reasons hereinbefore stated in this opinion demonstrate its inaccuracy.

Most of the prior opinions in cases brought to recover the value of Indian lands appear to have proceeded, in the determination of the value of the property rights taken, on the principle that the value of the ole and absolute right of use and occupancy was the value of the land, without otherwise discussing the nature and extent of the Indian title or defining the beneficial incidents which attach to the primary right of absolute use and occupancy. Thus, in the case of The Ute Indians v. United States, 45 C. Cls. 440, the court, after referring to the provisions of section 3 of the Ute Agreement of June 15, 1880 (21 Stat. 199), and quoting the Act of April 24, 1820 (3 Stat. 566), which fixed the minimum price of public lands at $1.25 an acre, said, at pp. 462 and 463:

A similar question was involved in an appeal from this court to the Supreme Court in the case of United States v. Blackfeather (155 U. S. 180; 28 C. Cl. 447). In commenting upon the obligation of the United States to expose the lands in question at public sale, Mr. Justice Brown, in delivering the opinion of the Court, said:

"In the absence of any proof of the actual value of these lands at this time, there would seem to be no method of estimation except by taking the price at which public lands were subject to be sold at private sale, namely, $1.25 per acre. Not only is there some presumption that the Government would not sell them for less than they were worth, but the very fact that at that time all public lands were subject to entry at $1.25 per acre would render it impossible to sell them at a greater price unless by reason of their peculiar location, abundant timber, or extraordinary fertility they were exceptionally valuable." (Id. 191.) [Italics supplied.]

The average price at which the lands within the Ute reservation were sold between the date of the agreement (1880) and June 30, 1908, was $1.68 per acre. Presumably the choicest lands were selected by the purchasers. The forest reservations were set apart at different dates between 1891 and 1905. While it is doubtless true that considerable of the land within these forest reservations is quite valuable, on the other hand, the official reports show, and it is a fact so well known as to come within judicial notice, that considerable portions of them are valueless and can never be sold at any price.

In view, therefore, of the law and the facts as stated, we have found the value of the lands thus set apart in forest reservations to be $1.25 per acre, amounting to $3,835,323.75 [covering 3,199,258 acres].

The title of the government in Indian lands, which has been designated as the "naked fee", is a sovereign title. The government has no landlord from whom it holds the "fee."

The interpretation of defendant's counsel of the Indians' "right of absolute use and occupancy" is too restricted. "A treaty with Indians must be construed not according to the technical meaning of its words to learned lawyers, but in the sense in which they would naturally be understood by the Indians." Jones v. Meehan, 175 U. S. 1, 11. The right of occupancy is the real ownership. It is the full title, or as much title, as, under our conception, any other than the sovereign usually holds. After the Treaty of July 3, 1868, the government had no real ownership of the Shoshone Reservation, but only the right to control and manage the property and affairs of the Shoshone Indians for their betterment and welfare, and a possibility of acquiring an ownership of the reservation lands. As held by the court in California & Oregon Land Co. v. Worden, 85 Fed. 94, 96 (1898), after discussing United States v. Cook, supra. "For all purposes, therefore, save only that of private sale, the Indians were in fact the owners of these lands. And this right, title, or interest has never been surrendered by them." Although Indians are under the protection of the general government, and are, of necessity, kept as a separate, subordinate, and independent people, United States v. Lariviere, 93 U. S. 188, and though dependent political communities, with whom the United States may deal only through treaties or Acts of Congress, Indians are in a dependent condition which cannot be put off without the consent of the United States. Elk v. Wilkins, 112 U. S. 94; nevertheless, it was held by the Supreme Court in The Chippewa Indians of Minnesota v. United States, 301 U. S. 358, 375. "Our decisions, while recognizing that the government has power to control and manage the property and affairs of its Indian wards in good faith for their welfare, show that this power is subject to constitutional limitations and does not enable the government to give the lands of one tribe or band to another, or to deal with them as its own." From what has been said, it seems clear that the beneficial incidents attaching to the absolute right of possession, use, and occupancy were more than the mere right to live upon the lands and cultivate them. If the latter were the full extent of the Indians' interest, few, if any, Indian tribes could secure compensation for the taking of their lands, for in most, if not all, of such cases sufficient territory has been left to supply the Indians with a place to live and with farms as large as the adult Indians of the tribes were capable of cultivating. But we think it is clear that under a proper construction of the treaties this is not the measure of their right to compensation for treaty lands taken from them.

The next question concerns the value of a one-half interest in the lands of plaintiff taken for the Arapahoe Tribe. The contentions of the parties with reference to the value of a one-half interest in plaintiff's reservation taken for the Northern Arapahoe Indians in 1878 have already been stated. Upon the whole record and in the light of conditions existing in March 1878, when a one-half interest in the reservation was taken, we are of opinion that the value of the property rights of plaintiff in and to one-half of their reservation, taking into consideration the fact that the portion of the reservation on which the Arapahoe Indians was placed, namely, the eastern portion, from which the plaintiff tribe was thereafter excluded, and which has subsequently been allotted in severalty to the Arapahoe Indians, was $1,581,889.50, or at the rate of $1.35 an acre for 1,171,770 acres, being one-half of the Indian Reservation of 2,343,540 acres. The greater portion of the lands embraced within this reservation was very fertile and unusually well adapted to farming by reason of an adequate supply of water well situated for the use of irrigation purposes. The reservation also embraced a very large area of fine grazing land from which a large amount of income has been derived from grazing leases. The reservation contained more than a billion feet of excellent timber and portions of the reservation were underlaid with bituminous coal. It contained a large but undetermined quantity of oil and gas, and these conditions were known to exist in 1878. The 1926 present value of the oil reserves on the reservation were fixed by the government at $6,000,000.

Net income has been steadily derived from various sources on the reservation, and for the period from 1885 to 1927 net proceeds totaling $1,628,744.56 were derived from the reservation and deposited in the Treasury to the credit of the plaintiff and the Arapahoe tribes of Indians. This amount does not include any portion of the amounts paid for lands ceded. In 1872 plaintiff tribe ceded 700,642 acres of their reservation from which private parties had, without the consent of the government or plaintiff, mined gold to the value of $500,000. The consideration offered by the government's commissioner appointed to negotiate for the cession, and included in the cession agreement, was $27,500. This government commissioner drove a hard bargain with the Indians, and he so stated in returning the cession agreement to the government. Obviously the consideration paid was inadequate, but, as stated in the previous opinion in this case, the agreement having been made and ratified, and the consideration paid, the matter is not now before the court. In making that agreement no consideration was given to the value of the property rights of the Indians or to the value of the land. The transaction is obviously of no value in the determination of the value of the property rights of plaintiff in one-half of the entire reservation taken in March 1878. Cession agreements of this character, negotiated and brought about in the manner in which the one in 1872 was obtained, are not helpful in arriving at the net value of Indian lands, for in most, if not all, of such agreements negotiated and obtained at an early date the lands were secured for an amount which the Indians could be induced to take rather than for an amount based upon what their property rights were really worth. Iowa Tribe of Indians v. United States, supra, p. 612. This is illustrated by the fact that under the 1872 cession agreement approximately three cents an acre was paid, and twenty years later another cession agreement was obtained to a portion of the reservation not nearly so valuable as that ceded under the 1872 agreement, nor as valuable as the remaining portions of the reservation, at a price of more than one dollar an acre.

The established prices at which the Federal Government sold agricultural, timber, and mineral lands in 1878 ranged from $1.25 an acre for desert land, tillable only under irrigation, to $20 an acre for coal lands. The lands embraced within the Shoshone Reservation, by reason of their peculiar location, abundant supply of water for irrigation purposes, and timber, and their extraordinary fertility, were especially valuable. As found by the Secretary of the Interior in 1878, "No part of the reservation can be considered valueless for all purposes." The facts concerning the character and location of the lands in question, their productiveness and capabilities, and their yield of profits to the Indians have been set forth in detail in the findings and need not be repeated here.

Prior to the controlling date in this case, a trusted representative of the government in its dealings with Indian tribes, with many years experience, and fully familiar with the reservations set apart for Indian tribes, reported that the Shoshone Indians "are rich in valuable land" and further stated, "I have visited many other reservations, but I have found none that excels or even equals the land in Big Wind, Little Wind, and Popo Agie Valleys." He also described the lands embraced within this reservation as "the finest grazing west of the Missouri." In arriving at the value on March 19, 1878, of the property rights of plaintiff tribe, which were taken on that date by the government for the Northern Arapahoe Tribe, we have taken into consideration and given due weight to the fact that the eastern portion of the reservation on which the Arapahoe Tribe was placed was the choicest portion and more valuable than the other farming and grazing lands of the reservation, and these lands were subsequently allotted to the Arapahoe Indians. The facts of record clearly support the net value of $1,581,889.50 for a one-half interest in plaintiff's reservation in 1878, and we have so found. Plaintiff is therefore entitled to recover this amount. In arriving at the net value of $1.35 an acre for 1,171,770 acres constituting a one-half interest in plaintiff's reservation we have, in addition to considering all factors affecting value, given consideration and due weight to well-known facts, which are also disclosed by this record—first, that large areas of Indian lands, if sold, are not disposed of and have never been sold as a whole, but usually in small or comparatively small tracts; second, that such lands if not sold are, and were in 1878, capable of returning to the Indians large annual net profits over a long period of time; third, that the timber and oil and gas rights, etc., are sold or leased separately from the lands, as such; fourth, that if sold the reasonable and necessary costs of surveying and selling the lands must be deducted from the gross proceeds.

In addition to this value, plaintiff's damages include an additional amount beyond the value of its property rights when taken by the government, which is necessary to the award of just compensation. The parties agree that such additional amount should be measured by interest at a reasonable rate on the value of the property rights taken in 1878 to the date of payment and from the total amount determined to be due at the date of judgment there should be deducted the total offset to which the government is held entitled. The government claims a total offset under its counterclaim of $2,141,070.75. In accordance with the findings and for the reasons therein stated, we have reduced the total of the defendant's counterclaim to $1,956,233.68.

Plaintiff contends that the additional amount to be added to the value of the property in 1878 to make just compensation should be measured by interest at the rate of 7 percent per annum, which has been the statutory rate of interest in Wyoming since 1923. The statutory interest in that state was 12 percent prior to 1895 and 8 percent from that date until 1923.

The defendant insists upon the use of an interest rate of 5 percent, which we think, under all the circumstances, is reasonable and the rate that should be used in this case. Cf. United States v. Creek Nation, supra.

As a general rule, treaties, acts of Congress, and agreements have in practically every case in which interest is mentioned, provided for interest on funds held in trust by the government for the benefit of Indians at a rate of 5 percent per annum. There are a number of reasons which support the use of this rate in cases of this character, notwithstanding a higher rate was provided by state statutes and notwithstanding, also, the Act of February 26, 1931, 46 Stat. 1421, U. S. Code, 1934 Edition, Title 40, section 258 (a), provided an interest rate of 6 percent per annum in just compensation cases.

The field for investment by an Indian tribe was and is limited in the absence of an agreement to a deposit of the amount due the Indians in the Treasury of the United States and the payment thereon by the government of interest at the rate of 5 percent. The field for investment by citizens of funds received for property taken, and paid contemporaneously with the taking, is unlimited, and he is in a position and capable of taking full advantage of the local rate of interest. If, therefore, his money is not paid at the time of the taking, but later, the courts add to the value of his property at the time of taking an additional amount measured by interest, usually at 6 percent per annum, and, in some cases, a higher rate which he probably would have earned with his capital to the date of payment. We think a rate of 5 percent is reasonable between the parties here. The additional amount to which plaintiff is entitled to have added to the value of its property rights at the date of taking, computed as above to June 1, 1937, is $4,682,392.92. There is, therefore, due plaintiff on June 1, 1937, the total amount of $6,264,282.42 plus $100,395.49 (Finding 10), totaling $6,364,677.91.

Section 3 of the Act of March 3, 1927, under which this suit was brought, provides that the court shall hear, examine, and adjudicate any claims which the United States may have against plaintiff, that the government may plead as an offset against any amount determined to be due the tribe any payment made by the United States, including gratuities. The total payment, including gratuities made by the United States for the benefit of plaintiff, which we have determined to be a proper offset against the Shoshone Indians, is $1,956,233.68. The deduction of this amount from the amount of $6,364,677.91 due plaintiff leaves $4,408,444.23 for which judgment will be entered in favor of plaintiff with interest at 5 percent per annum on $1,581,889.50 from June 1, 1937, until date of payment. It is so ordered.

WILLIAMS, Judge; GREEN, Judge; and BOOTH, Chief Justice, concur.

WHALEY, Judge, dissents on the ground that the valuation placed on the land taken is excessive.

SUPREME COURT OF THE UNITED STATES

No. 668.—OCTOBER TERM, 1937

The United States, Petitioner, vs. Shoshone Tribe of Indians of the Wind River Reservation in Wyoming.

On Writ of Certiorari to the Court of Claims

[April 25, 1938]

[304 U. S. 111—82 Law Ed., 1213]

SYLLABUS

Indians, 52—Ownership of minerals and timber on reservation.

1. In determining the compensation to which an Indian tribe is entitled for the taking by the United States, without the tribe's consent, of reservation lands of which, under treaty, the tribe was to have "absolute and undisturbed use and occupation," the timber and mineral resources are properly to be taken into consideration, even though the legal title to the reservation is in the United States and the Indian right is a right of use and occupation.

Appeal, 1044—Resort to opinion to supplement findings.

2. On appeal from a determination of the Court of Claims its opinion may not be referred to for the purpose of eking out, controlling, or modifying the scope of the findings.

Indians, 28.—Treaties—construction—"absolute and undisturbed use and occupation."

3. The phrase "absolute and undisturbed use and occupation" in a treaty between an Indian tribe and the United States which provides that the tribe shall have "absolute and undisturbed use and occupation" of lands reserved, is to be read with other parts of the document, having regard to the purpose of the arrangement made, the relation between the parties, and the settled policy of the United States fairly to deal with Indian tribes.

Indians, 28.—Treaties—construction—liberal interpretation.

4. Treaties between the United States and Indian tribes are not to be interpreted narrowly, as sometimes may be writings expressed in words of art employed by conveyancers, but are to be construed in the sense in which naturally the Indians would understand them.

Indians, 29.—Treaties—ambiguities to be resolved in favor of Indians.

5. In interpreting a treaty between the United States and an Indian tribe, any doubts as to the ownership of lands, or minerals or timber on lands reserved to the tribe, should be resolved in favor of the tribe.

Former decision distinguished.

6. United States v. Cook, 19 Wall. 591; 22 L. Ed. 210, distinguished.

Argued March 31 and April 1, 1938. Decided, April 25, 1938.

On writ of certiorari to the Court of Claims of the United States to review a judgment awarding compensation to the Shoshone Tribe of Indians of the Wind River Reservation for a part of its reservation taken by the United States. Affirmed.

See same case below, 85 Ct. Cls. 331.

Assistant Attorney General Carl McFarland, of Washington, D. C., argued the cause, and, with Solicitor General Jackson and Messrs. Oscar Provost and Raymond M. Kell, also of Washington, D. C., filed a brief for petitioner.

Messrs. George M. Tunison and Albert W. Jefferis, both of Omaha, Nebraska, argued the cause, and, with Mr. Charles J. Kappler, of Washington, D. C., filed a brief for respondent.

Mr. Justice BUTLER delivered the opinion of the Court.

The Shoshone Tribe brought this suit to recover the value of part of its reservation taken by the United States by putting upon it, without the tribe's consent, a band of Arapahoe Indians. The Court of Claims found the taking to have been in August, 1891, ascertained value as of that date, on that basis fixed the amount of compensation, and gave judgment accordingly. We held, 299 U. S. 476, that the court erred as to the date of the taking, declared it to have been March 19, 1878, reversed the judgment and remanded the case for further proceedings. Then the lower court proceeded to determine the value of the tribe's right at the time of the taking, and the amount to be added to produce the present worth of the money equivalent of the property, paid contemporaneously with the taking. It heard evidence, made additional findings, and gave plaintiff judgment for $4,408,444.23, with interest from its date until paid. This Court granted writ of certiorari. 303. U. S. 629.

The sole question for decision is whether, as the United States contends, the Court of Claims erred in holding that the right of the tribe included the timber and mineral resources within the reservation.

The findings show: The United States, by the treaty of July 2, 1863, set apart for the Shoshone Tribe a reservation of 44,672,000 acres located in Colorado, Utah, Idaho and Wyoming. By the treaty of July 3, 1868, the tribe ceded that reservation to the United States. And by it the United States agreed that the "district of country" 3,054,182 acres definitely described "shall be and the same is set apart for the absolute and undisturbed use and occupation of the Shoshone Indians * * , and the United States now solemnly agrees that no persons," with exceptions not important here, "shall ever be permitted to pass over, settle upon, or reside in" that territory. The Indians agreed that they would make the reservation their permanent home. The treaty provided that any individual member of the tribe having specified qualifications, might select a tract within the reservation which should then cease to be held in common, and be occupied and held in the exclusive possession of the person selecting it, and of his family, while he or they continued to cultivate it. It declared: " * * Congress shall provide for protecting the rights of the Indian settlers * * * and may fix the character of the title held by each. The United States may pass such laws on the subject of alienation and descent of property as between Indians, and on all subjects connected with the government of the Indians on said reservation, and the internal police thereof, as may be thought proper."

The treaty emphasized the importance of education; the United States agreed to provide a schoolhouse and teacher for every thirty children, and the tribe promised to send the children to school. The United States also agreed to provide instruction by a farmer for members cultivating the soil, clothing for members of the tribe, and a physician, carpenter, miller, engineer and blacksmith. It stipulated that no treaty for the cession of any portion of the reservation held in common should be valid as against the Indians, unless signed by at least a majority of all interested male adults; and that no cession by the tribe should be construed to deprive any member of his right to any tract of land selected by him.

When the treaty of 1868 was made, the tribe consisted of full-blood blanket Indians, unable to read, write, or speak English. Upon consummation of the treaty, the tribe went, and has since remained, upon the reservation. It was known to contain valuable mineral deposits—gold, oil, coal and gypsum. It included more than 400,000 acres of timber, extensive well-grassed bench lands and fertile river valleys conveniently irrigable. It was well protected by mountain ranges and a divide, and was the choicest and best-watered portion of Wyoming.

In 1904 the Shoshones and Arapahoes ceded to the United States 1,480,000 acres to be held by it in trust for the sale of such timber lands, timber and other products, and for the making of leases for various purposes. The net proceeds were to be credited to the Indians. From 1907 to 1919 there were allotted to members of the tribes 245,058 acres.

The court's finding of the ultimate fact is: "The fair and reasonable value of a one-half undivided interest of the Shoshone or Wind River Reservation of a total of 2,343,540 acres, which was taken by the United States on March 19, 1878, from the Shoshone Tribe of Indians, for the Northern Arapahoe Tribe, was, on March 19, 1878, $1,581,889.50." That is $1.35 per acre for 1,171,770 acres, one-half of the reservation in 1878, at the time of taking. The United States does not challenge the principle or basis upon which the court determined the amount to be added to constitute just compensation.

The substance of the Government's point is that in fixing the value of the tribe's right, the lower court included as belonging to the tribe substantial elements of value, ascribable to mineral and timber resources, which in fact belonged to the United States.

It contends that the Shoshones' right to use and occupy the lands of the reservation did not include the ownership of the timber and minerals and that the opinion of the court below departs from the general principles of law regarding Indian land tenure and the uniform policy of the Government in dealing with Indian tribes. It asks for reversal with "directions to determine the value of the Indians' right of use and occupancy but to exclude therefrom 'the net value of the lands' and 'the net value of any timber or minerals.'"

The findings are unambiguous; there is no room for construction. The opinion of the Court of Claims may not be referred to for the purpose of eking out, controlling, or modifying the scope of the findings. Stone v. United States, 164 U. S. 380, 383. Luckenbach S. S. Co. v. United States, 272 U. S. 533, 539-540. Cf. American Propeller Co. v. United States, 300 U. S. 475, 479-480.

In this case we have held, 299 U. S. 476, 484, that the tribe had the right of occupancy with all its beneficial incidents; that, the right of occupancy being the primary one and as sacred as the fee, division by the United States of the Shoshones' right with the Arapahoes was an appropriation of the land pro tanto; that although the United States always had legal title to the land and power to control and manage the affairs of the Indians, it did not have power to give to others or to appropriate to its own use any part of the land without rendering, or assuming the obligation to pay, just compensation to the tribe, for that would be, not the exercise of guardianship or management, but confiscation.

It was not then necessary to consider, but we are now called upon to decide, whether, by the treaty, the tribe acquired beneficial ownership of the minerals and timber on the reservation. The phrase "absolute and undisturbed use and occupation" is to be read, with other parts of the document, having regard to the purpose of the arrangement made, the relation between the parties, and the settled policy of the United States fairly to deal with Indian tribes. In treaties made with them the United States seeks no advantage for itself; friendly and dependent Indians are likely to accept without discriminating scrutiny the terms proposed. They are not to be interpreted narrowly, as sometimes may be writings expressed in words of art employed by conveyancers, but are to be construed in the sense in which naturally the Indians would understand them. Worcester v. Georgia, 6 Pet. 515, 582. Jones v. Meehan, 175 U. S. 1, 11. Starr v. Long Jim, 227 U. S. 613, 622-623.

The principal purpose of the treaty was that the Shoshones should have, and permanently dwell in, the defined district of country. To that end the United States granted and assured to the tribe peaceable and unqualified possession of the land in perpetuity. Minerals and standing timber are constituent elements of the land itself. United States v. Cook, 19 Wall. 591. British-American Oil Co. v. Board, 299 U. S. 159, 164-165. For all practical purposes, the tribe owned the land. Grants of land subject to the Indian title by the United States, which had only the naked fee, would transfer no beneficial interest. Leavenworth, etc. R. R. v. United States, 92 U. S. 733, 742-743. Beecher v. Wetherby, 95 U. S. 517, 525. The right of perpetual and exclusive occupancy of the land is not less valuable than full title in fee. See Holden v. Joy, 17 Wall. 211, 244. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Penn. R. R. et al., 195 U. S. 540, 557.

The treaty, though made with knowledge that there were mineral deposits and standing timber in the reservation, contains nothing to suggest that the United States intended to retain for itself any beneficial interest in them. The words of the grant, coupled with the Government's agreement to exclude strangers, negative the idea that the United States retained beneficial ownership. The grant of right to members of the tribe severally to select and hold tracts on which to establish homes for themselves and families, and the restraint upon cession of land held in common or individually, suggest beneficial ownership in the tribe. As transactions between a guardian and his wards are to be construed favorably to the latter, doubts, if there were any, as to ownership of lands, minerals or timber would be resolved in favor of the tribe. The cession in 1904 by the tribe to the United States in trust reflects a construction by the parties that supports the tribe's claim, for if it did not own, creation of a trust to sell or lease for its benefit would have been unnecessary and inconsistent with the rights of the parties.

Although the United States retained the fee, and the tribe's right of occupancy was incapable of alienation or of being held otherwise than in common, that right is as sacred and as securely safeguarded as is fee simple absolute title. Cherokee Nation v. State of Georgia, 5 Pet. 1, 48. Worcester v. State of Georgia, supra, 580. Subject to the conditions imposed by the treaty, the Shoshone Tribe had the right that has always been understood to belong to Indians, undisturbed possessors of the soil from time immemorial. Provisions in aid of teaching children and of adult education in farming, and to secure for the tribe medical and mechanical service, to safeguard tribal and individual titles, when taken with other parts of the treaty, plainly evidence purpose on the part of the United States to help to create an independent permanent farming community upon the reservation. Ownership of the land would further that purpose. In the absence of definite expression of intention so to do, the United States will not be held to have kept it from them. The authority of the United States to prescribe title by which individual Indians may hold tracts selected by them within the reservation, to pass laws regulating alienation and descent and for the government of the tribe and its people upon the reservation detracts nothing from the tribe's ownership, but was reserved for the more convenient discharge of the duties of the United States as guardian and sovereign.

United States v. Cook, supra, gives no support to the contention that in ascertaining just compensation for the Indian right taken, the value of mineral and timber resources in the reservation should be excluded. That case did not involve adjudication of the scope of Indian title to land, minerals or standing timber, but only the right of the United States to replevin logs cut and sold by a few unauthorized members of the tribe. We held that, as against the purchaser from the wrongdoers, the United States was entitled to possession. It was not there decided that the tribe's right of occupancy in perpetuity did not include ownership of the land or mineral deposits or standing timber upon the reservation, or that the tribe's right was the mere equivalent of, or like, the title of a life tenant.

The lower court did not err in holding that the right of the Shoshone Tribe included the timber and minerals within the reservation.

VALIDITY OF THE FORT LARAMIE TREATY OF SEPTEMBER 17, 1851¹

COURT OF CLAIMS OF THE UNITED STATES

(Decided Dec. 1, 1930—71 Ct. Cls., 308.)

THE INDIANS OF THE FORT BERTHOLD INDIAN RESERVATION IN THE STATE OF NORTH DAKOTA, COMPRISING THE TRIBES KNOWN AS THE ARICKAREES, THE GROS VENTRES, AND THE MANDANS, AND THE INDIVIDUAL MEMBERS THEREOF, v. THE UNITED STATES. No. B-449

Mr. Charles H. Merillat for the plaintiffs. Mr. Charles J. Kappler was on the briefs. Mr. George T. Stormont, with whom was Mr. Assistant Attorney General Herman J. Galloway, for the defendant.

This cause having been heard by the Court of Claims on the evidence adduced, the court makes the following

SPECIAL FINDINGS OF FACT

I

This suit is brought under a special jurisdictional act, approved February 11, 1920 (41 Stat. 404), which provides as follows:

Whereas the Indians of the Fort Berthold Indian Reservation in the State of North Dakota, including the tribes known as the Arickarees, the Gros Ventres, and the Mandans, and the individual members of such tribes, make claim against the United States on account of various treaty provisions, which, it is alleged, have not been complied with, and on account of various encroachments upon the appropriation by said Government of territory of said tribes and Indians: Therefore

Be it enacted, [&c.] That all claims of whatsoever nature which any or all of the tribes of Indians of the Fort Berthold Reservation, North Dakota, may have against the United States, which have not heretofore been determined by the Court of Claims, may be submitted to the Court of Claims, with the right of appeal to the Supreme Court of the United States by either party, for determination of the amount, if any, due said tribes from the United States under any treaties, agreements, or laws of Congress, or for the misappropriation of any of the funds of said tribes, or for the failure of the United States to pay said tribe any money or other property due; and jurisdiction is hereby conferred upon the Court of Claims, with the right of either party to appeal to the Supreme Court of the United States, to hear and determine all legal and equitable claims, if any, of said tribe against the United States, and to enter judgment thereon.

SEC. 2. That if any claim or claims be submitted to said courts, they shall settle the rights therein, both legal and equitable, of each and all the parties thereto, notwithstanding lapse of time or statutes of limitation, and any payment which may have been made upon any claim so submitted shall not be pleaded as an estoppel, but may be pleaded as an offset in such suits or actions, and the United States shall be allowed credit for all sums heretofore paid or expended for the benefit of said tribe or any band thereof. The claim or claims of the said tribes or band or bands thereof may be presented separately or jointly by petition, subject, however, to amendment, suit to be filed within five years after the passage of this Act; and such action shall make the petitioner or petitioners party plaintiff of [sic] plaintiffs and the United States party defendant, and any band or bands of said tribe the court may deem necessary to a final determination of such suit or suits may be joined therein as the court may order. Such petition, which shall be verified by a petitioner or an attorney employed by said petitioner, tribes of any bands thereof, shall set forth all the facts on which the claims for recovery are based, and said petition shall be signed by the attorney or attorneys employed, and no other verifications shall be necessary. Official letters, papers, documents, and public records, or certified copies thereof, may be used in evidence, and the departments of the Government shall give access to the attorney or attorneys of said tribe or bands thereof to such treaties, papers, correspondence, or records as may be needed by the attorney or attorneys for said tribes or bands of Indians.

SEC. 3. That upon the final determination of such suit, cause, or action the Court of Claims shall decree such fees as it shall find reasonable to be paid the attorney or attorneys employed therein by said tribe or bands of Indians, under contracts negotiated and approved as provided by existing law, and in no case shall the fee decreed by said Court of Claims be in excess of the amounts stipulated in the contracts approved by the Commissioner of Indian Affairs and the Secretary of the Interior, and no attorney shall have a right to represent the said tribe or any band thereof in any suit, cause, or action under the provisions of this act until his contract shall have been approved as herein provided. The fees decreed by the court to the attorney or attorneys of record shall be paid out of any sum or sums recovered in such suits or actions, and no part of such fee shall be taken from any money in the Treasury of the United States belonging to such tribes or bands of Indians in whose behalf the suit is brought unless specifically authorized in the contract approved by the Commissioner of Indian Affairs and Secretary of the Interior as herein provided: Provided, That in no case shall the fees decreed by said court amount to more than 10 per centum of the amount of the judgment recovered in such case.

II

A petition under the provisions of the foregoing act was filed in this court July 31, 1924.

III

The plaintiff tribes during the period hereinafter referred to were blanket Indians, illiterate, unskilled, and not advanced in civilization; few, if any, could speak or understand the English language. They were uninformed and had no knowledge of the units of measure of land, or understanding of the technical description of a tract of land except in terms of natural boundaries.

IV

Following the discovery of gold on the Pacific coast, travel across the plains and through the country exclusively occupied by the plaintiff tribes increased greatly and caused great destruction of the buffalo and game, the chief means of livelihood of the plains and mountain Indians, and the grass and timber in the region traversed, occasioned serious resentment among the Indians in occupancy of the land, who considered themselves entitled to compensation for the right of way through the territory claimed by them, and also for the destruction of the buffalo, game, etc.

Prior to the year 1851 costly Indian wars had been experienced. The defendant was desirous of promoting peace among the various tribes and securing their friendship and the safe transit of emigrants over the plains.

To this end, an appropriation was made by Congress February 27, 1851 (9 Stat. 572), to defray "the expenses of holding treaties with the wild tribes of the prairie, and for bringing delegates on to the seat of Government." In compliance with the provisions of the said act the President appointed D. D. Mitchell, Superintendent of Indian Affairs, and Thomas Fitzpatrick, Indian agent, as commissioners to conduct the authorized negotiations. The commissioners were instructed that the Indians with whom the negotiations were to be held were "entirely ignorant of their position and relation to the Government," and should be made to understand the policy to be pursued by the Government towards them; that—

A paramount objective will be . . . to define by treaty stipulations what is and will be the reciprocal obligations existing between them and the Government and our citizens.

It was further stated:

A portion of the tribes own or claim the country through which the inland routes pass to Oregon, California, Utah, and New Mexico. Our emigrants make free use of the grass and timber on the routes, and not only destroy much game but disturb and scatter it so as materially to interfere with the success of the Indians in their hunting expeditions, by which they procure their only means of subsistence. For the unrestricted right of way through the country and for the other advantages enjoyed and the injuries committed by the emigrants the Indians consider themselves entitled to a reasonable compensation, and have for some time been led to expect it by the promises which have been made on the authority of the Government. * * * Justice and good policy, therefore, alike require that such compensation be made to the Indians as will satisfy their reasonable expectations and conciliate their good will.

It was added:

It is important, if practicable, to establish for each tribe some fixed boundaries within which they should stipulate generally to reside, and each should agree not to intrude within the limits assigned to another tribe without its consent. If in arranging such boundaries there should be a portion of country not included where it has been their habit to go periodically in pursuit of game, it should be recognized as a neutral ground, where all will enjoy equal privileges and have no right to molest or interfere with one another.

In due course the following tribes of Indians assembled at Fort Laramie, Wyoming, to negotiate with the commissioners of the United States, the Sioux of the Missouri, River country, the Assinaboins, Gros Ventres, Mandans, Arickarees, Crows, Shoshonesi Cheyennes, and Arapahoes, comprising all the important tribes of the Great Plains and eastern Rocky Mountains. A peace treaty was signed September 17, 1851 (11 Stat. 749), to which the United States was party of the first part and the assembled Indian tribes parties of the second part, except the Shoshones, whom the commissioners did not consider were embraced within the terms of their authority. In the report by the defendant's commissioners dated November 11, 1851, it was stated that "the most important provisions" in the treaty were—

1. The right * * * granted * * * to the United States to establish roads, military and other posts through the Indian country, so far as they claim or exercise ownership over it.
2. The solemn obligation * * * to maintain peaceful relations among themselves and to abstain from all depredations upon whites passing through the country, and to make restitution for any damage or loss that a white man shall sustain by the acts of their people.
3. The settling up of all former complaints * * * for the destruction of their buffalo, timber, grass, caused in passing of the whites through their country; * * *
4. The promise of annuity of $50,000 for 50 years * * *.

And further, that—

The laying off of the country into geographical, or rather national domains, I regard as a very important measure, inasmuch as it will take away a great cause of quarrel among themselves, and at the same time enable the Government to ascertain who are the depredators, should depredations hereafter be committed. The accompanying map, from which these national boundaries are clearly marked and defined, was made in the presence of the Indians, fully approved and sanctioned by all * * * having the treaty in all its provisions, I am clearly of the opinion that it is the best that could have been made for both parties. I am moreover of the opinion that it will be observed and carried out in as good faith on the part of the Indians as it will on the part of the United States and the white people thereof. There was an earnest solemnity and deep conviction of the necessity of adopting some such measures evident in the conduct and manners of the Indians throughout the whole council.

The treaty of Fort Laramie, dated September 17, 1851 (11 Stat. 749), is as follows:

Articles of a treaty made and concluded at Fort Laramie, in the Indian Territory, between D. D. Mitchell, Superintendent of Indian Affairs, and Thomas Fitzpatrick, Indian agent, commissioners specially appointed and authorized by the President of the United States, of the first part, and the chiefs, headmen, and braves of the following Indian nations, residing south of the Missouri River, east of the Rocky Mountains, and north of the lines of Texas and New Mexico, viz., the Sioux or Dahcotahs, Cheyennes, Arapahoes, Crows, Assinaboines, Gros Ventres, Mandans, and Arickarees, parties of the second part, on the seventeenth day of September, A. D., one thousand eight hundred and fifty-one.

ARTICLE 1. The aforesaid nations, parties to this treaty, having assembled for the purpose of establishing and confirming peaceful relations amongst themselves, do hereby covenant and agree to abstain in future from all hostilities whatever against each other, to maintain good faith and friendship in all their mutual intercourse, and to make an effective and lasting peace.

ARTICLE 2. The aforesaid nations do hereby recognize the right of the United States Government to establish roads, military and other posts, within their respective territories.

ARTICLES 3. In consideration of the rights and privileges acknowledged in the preceding article, the United States bind themselves to protect the aforesaid Indian nations against the commission of all depredations by the people of the said United States, after the ratification of this treaty.

ARTICLE 4. The aforesaid Indian nations do hereby agree and bind themselves to make restitution or satisfaction for any wrongs committed, after the ratification of this treaty, by any band or individual of their people, on the people of the United States, whilst lawfully residing in or passing through their respective territories.

ARTICLE 5. The aforesaid Indian nations do hereby recognize and acknowledge the following tracts of country, included within the metes and boundaries hereinafter designated, as their respective territories, viz:

The territory of the Sioux or Dahcotah Nation, * * *

The territory of the Gros Ventre, Mandan, and Arickaree Nations, commencing at the mouth of the Heart River; thence up the Missouri River to the mouth of the Yellowstone River; thence up the Yellowstone River to the mouth of Powder River in a southeasterly direction to the headwaters of the Little Missouri River; thence along the Black Hills to the head of Heart River; and thence down Heart River to the place of beginning.

The territory of the Assinaboin Nation. * * *

The territory of the Blackfoot Nation. * * *

The territory of the Crow Nation. * * *

The territory of the Cheyennes and Arapahoes. * * *

It is, however, understood that, in making this recognition and acknowledgment, the aforesaid Indian nations do not hereby abandon or prejudice any rights or claims they may have to other lands; and further, that they do not surrender the privilege of hunting, fishing, or passing over any of the tracts of country heretofore described.

ARTICLE 6. The parties to the second part of this treaty having selected principals or head chiefs for their respective nations, through whom all national business will hereafter be conducted, do hereby bind themselves to sustain said chiefs and their successors during good behavior.

ARTICLE 7. In consideration of the treaty stipulations, and for the damages which have or may occur by reason thereof to the Indian nations, parties hereto, and for their maintenance and the improvement of their moral and social customs, the United States bind themselves to deliver to the said Indian nations the sum of fifty thousand dollars per annum for the term of ten years, with the right to continue the same at the discretion of the President of the United States for a period not exceeding five years thereafter, in provisions, merchandise, domestic animals, and agricultural implements, in such proportions as may be deemed best adapted to their condition by the President of the United States, to be distributed in proportion to the population of the aforesaid Indian nations.

ARTICLE 8. It is understood and agreed that should any of the Indian nations, parties to this treaty, violate any of the provisions thereof, the United States may withhold the whole or a portion of the annuities mentioned in the preceding article from the nation so offending, until, in the opinion of the President of the United States, proper satisfaction shall have been made.

The Blackfoot Nation did not reach Fort Laramie in time to take part in the treaty negotiations nor to execute the treaty. They subsequently made a separate treaty in harmony with the foregoing.

VI

The treaty of Fort Laramie of September 17, 1851, was approved by the Senate May 24, 1852, after amending article 7, as provided above, by reducing the period of annual payments from 50 to 10 years with authority, in the discretion of the Executive, to extend its terms for an additional period of 5 years.

The treaty as modified was returned to the tribes concerned and the assent of all was in due course secured. Due to an administrative oversight the treaty was never formally proclaimed. However, Congress thereafter made annual appropriations to carry its terms into effect.

VII

Owing to the failure of the formality of proclaiming and establishing the treaty of Fort Laramie, the defendant's administrative officials erroneously assumed that it had not been ratified; that its provisions were not binding upon the defendant Government and that the plaintiffs were not possessed of any property or reservation rights. Instructions to this effect were given, by defendant's officials in answer to inquiries relative to the administration of plaintiff's affairs and in connection with the disposition of plaintiffs' appeals and complaints concerning encroachments and depredations on their land.

VIII

Following the outbreak of the War of Rebellion of 1862, many of the tribes west of the Mississippi, but not including the plaintiffs, resumed their hostilities. Frontier settlements were attacked, communications between the Mississippi Valley and the Pacific coast were interrupted and emigrant trains were attacked and destroyed. In 1865 military operations against the offending tribes were pushed with vigor, with the result that the warring tribes sued for peace. A commission was in due course appointed by the President and proceeded to the regions of the upper Arkansas and upper Missouri to negotiate treaties of peace.

Under date of July 12, 1866, a treaty was negotiated with the plaintiffs, but never ratified by Congress by the terms of which the plaintiffs stipulated to grant defendant the right to lay out and construct roads, highways and telegraphs through "their country" and to cede to the defendant certain lands situated on the northeast side of the Missouri River. In consideration of the foregoing, the provisions contemplated a payment by the defendant of $20,000 annually for twenty years to the plaintiff tribes.

IX

Under the provisions of an Executive order dated August 18, 1868, there was established, within the boundaries of the plaintiffs' territory as described in the treaty of Fort Laramie, the Fort Buford Reservation, comprising 98,645.67 acres.

X

Owing to the uncertainty in the minds of the defendant's officers of the validity and effect of the Treaty of Fort Laramie and of the existence of reservation rights in the plaintiff tribes, the major general commanding the military department of Dakota, under date of July 21, 1869, reported to his superior that he had visited the Indians at Fort Berthold; had had a council with them and had received complaints from them that white men were coming on their land at Berthold and cutting the wood for sale to the steamboats; that he had told the Indians that he did not know whether they had a reservation or not; that if they had, they should be protected in their rights; that he had promised to report the matter; and that he had instructed the commanding officer at Fort Stevenson to examine the country around Berthold and to recommend what portion should be set off for them. This report was forwarded through official channels to the Commissioner of Indian Affairs. The commissioner in reply, under date of August 16, 1869, advised the military commander of the department of Dakota of the "boundaries of the reservation for the Gros Ventres, Arickarees, and Mandans," as set out in the treaty of Fort Laramie of September 17, 1851; and of the provisions of the unratified treaty of July 27, 1866, and added that "there are no treaty stipulations with these Indians relative to a reservation for them, which have been ratified."

On September 25, 1869, the commanding officer at Fort Stevenson, in compliance with orders duly given, reported that he had consulted the best guides and had obtained all available information, in addition to his own examination as far as it was practicable in regard to a reservation for the Arickaree, Gros Ventre, and Mandan Indians; that he had had an interview with the chiefs of the three tribes; had read to them the communication from the Commissioner of Indian Affairs, forwarded by the commanding general of the department, and had "proposed to them the following reservation,

From a point on the Missouri River four miles above [below] the Indian village of Berthold in a NE. direction three miles (so as to include the wood and grazing around the village), from this point a line to run so as to strike the Missouri River at the junction of Little Knife River with it, thence along the left bank of the Missouri River, to the mouth of the Yellowstone River along the south bank of the Yellowstone River to the Powder River, up the Powder River to where the Little Powder River unites with it, thence in a direct line across to the starting point four miles above [below] Berthold.

He further reported that the Indians desired that the reservation should extend to Mouse River, 75 or 100 miles north of the Missouri River, but that he explained to the Indians why this could not be done, which explanation satisfied them; and that in the proposed reservation he had endeavored to give them land enough to cultivate and for hunting and grazing purposes.

This report was forwarded to the Commissioner of Indian Affairs and by him to the Secretary of the Interior, with a recommendation that the reservation as proposed be set apart by Executive order. The recommendation was laid before the President on April 12, 1870, with a recommendation of adoption, and on the same date the President issued the following order:

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 12, 1870.

Let the lands indicated in the accompanying diagram be set apart as a reservation for the Arickaree, Gros Ventre, and Mandan Indians, as recommended in the letter of Secretary of the Interior of the 12th instant.

U. S. GRANT.

The reservation thus established formed part of the territory claimed by the plaintiff Indians in the Fort Laramie treaty, with the addition of a strip of land on the east (or north) bank of the Missouri River from the Indian village to the mouth of Little Knife River.

XI

Under the provisions of an act of July 2, 1864 (13 Stat. 365), amended by joint resolution of May 31, 1870 (16 Stat. 378), the Northern Pacific Railroad Co. was incorporated and authorized to build a railroad from St. Paul, Minnesota, to the Pacific coast, and in aid of construction the defendant granted to the railroad company every alternate section of public land along the line of its road. Section 2 of the same act made provision for the extinguishment of Indian title to whatever lands were held by Indians in the said grant. The line of the Northern Pacific Railroad ran through the lands of the plaintiff as described by the treaty of Fort Laramie.

XII

On June 23, 1878, the officials of the Northern Pacific Railroad Company formally advised the Commission of Indian Affairs that the Missouri division of the railroad, then under construction, ran through the reservation of the Arickaree, Gros Ventre, and Mandan Indians, as established by the Executive order of April 12, 1870; that the lands granted by Congress in aid of construction of the railroad, to a considerable extent, embraced the reservation of the said tribes and requested that the plaintiff's reservation be so altered by Executive order and the Indian title extinguished as soon as possible so as to free the grant to the railroad company from any claim of title.

XIII

On July 9, 1879, the Commissioner of Indian Affairs reported to the Secretary of the Interior, with reference to the request of the officials of the Northern Pacific Railroad Co.:

In view of the fact that the existence, in their present form, of these reservations is a bar to the settlement and development of a large portion of two of our most important territories and it appearing upon investigation that outside of hunting purposes the Indians have no particular use for the same, and considering also the opinions advanced by military officers upon the subject, I am of the opinion that a reduction of both reservations, to the extent hereinafter suggested, may be made without detriment to the service and with material advantage to the country locally and at large.

It was recommended that the reservation be reduced by the boundaries therein suggested and as described in the next finding, and that in lieu of the Indian lands thus restored to the public domain there be added to the Fort Berthold Reservation by Executive order certain described lands bordering on the north bank of the Missouri River.

XIV

In compliance with the foregoing recommendations, under date of July 13, 1880, the President by Executive order directed that a portion of the reservation set up in the Executive order of April 12, 1870, "be restored to the public domain", to wit:

Beginning at a point where the northern forty-mile limit of the grant to the Northern Pacific Railroad intersects the present southeast boundary of the Fort Berthold Indian Reservation; thence westerly with range line of said forty-mile limit to its intersection with range line, between ranges 92 and 93, west of the fifth principal meridian; thence north along said range line to its intersection with the south bank of the Little Missouri River; thence northwesterly along and up the south bank of the said Little Missouri River, with the meanders thereof to its intersection with the range line between ranges 96 and 97 west of the fifth principal meridian; thence westerly in a straight line to the southeast corner of the Fort Buford military reservation; thence west along the south boundary of said military reservation to the south bank of the Yellowstone River, the present northwest boundary of the Fort Berthold Indian Reservation; thence along the present boundary of said reservation to the south bank of the Yellowstone River to the Powder River; thence up the Powder River to where the Little Powder River unites with it; thence northeasterly in a direct line to the point of beginning.

It was also ordered that further described territory "should be withdrawn from sale and set apart for the use of the Arickaree, Gros Ventre, and Mandan Indians as an addition to their present reservation," to wit:

Beginning on the most northeasterly point of the present Fort Berthold Indian Reservation (on the Missouri River); thence North to the township line between townships 58 and 59 N.; thence West along said township lines to its intersection with the White Earth River; thence down the said White Earth River to its junction with the Missouri River; thence along the present boundary of the Fort Berthold Indian Reservation and the left bank of the Missouri River to the mouth of the Little Knife River; thence southeasterly in a direct line to the point of beginning.

XV

Under date of December 14, 1886, a treaty was entered into on the part of the plaintiff tribes and the defendant, under the provisions of which the plaintiffs ceded to the defendant

All their right, title, and interest in and to the land north of the 48 parallel N. latitude and west of a north and south line six miles W. of the most westerly point of the big bend in the Missouri River, south of the 48 north latitude, in consideration of the payment of $80,000 for ten years and the allotment to the members of the plaintiff tribes from the diminished reservation of the following parcels of land, to wit:

- 160 acres to each head of family.
- 80 acres to each single person over 18.
- 80 acres to each orphan under 18.
- 40 acres to each person under 18.

Other provisions were incorporated relative to the creation of a trust for a period of 25 years and otherwise safeguarding the property rights of the members of the plaintiff tribes.

The foregoing treaty was duly ratified March 3, 1891 (26 Stat. 1032), and its provisions were in due course carried into effect.

XVI

Under date of June 17, 1892, the President, by Executive order withdrew from sale and settlement and set apart as an addition to the reservation all that portion of township 147 N., range 87 west, lying north of the Missouri River in the State of North Dakota, not included in the Fort Stevenson Military Reservation.

XVII

Following the execution of the Treaty of Fort Laramie the plaintiff tribes faithfully observed its provisions, committed no depredations and took no part in tribal wars; they permitted the whites to travel through their country without molestation, and submitted all complaints of violation by others of their treaty rights to the Indian agents and other officials of the defendant.

On numerous occasions, prior to the execution of the treaty of September 14, 1886, authorized spokesmen of the plaintiff tribes reiterated the complaint that since the making of the Treaty of Fort Laramie they had done nothing wrong; that their enemies, disregarding the provisions of the treaty, had made war upon them, in some instances killing their young men and stealing their horses, and that, in accord with the provisions of the treaty, appeals had been made to the defendant's representatives to effect redress, but that nothing had ever been done.

In numerous instances, in the annual reports of Indian agents in charge of the plaintiff tribes, and of the Commissioner of Indian Affairs it was stated, in substance, that the plaintiff tribes were peaceable, reliable, and honest; that they had many complaints of depredations suffered by them at the hands of other tribes, parties to the treaty of Fort Laramie; that these marauding parties had invaded plaintiffs' territory, destroyed their crops, had stolen their horses and that they demanded that they be accorded their treaty rights at the hands of the defendant Government, or that they be supplied with more ammunition, rather than so many blankets, etc.; rifles rather than shot guns, so that they would be able to repel the invading marauders and could hunt the buffalo, the elk and deer; that they had complained that the annuities provided for under the treaty of Fort Laramie were irregularly sent to them, were uncertain in quantity, varying in amount from year to year; that they had not received all that was sent to them; that greater quantities of food and ammunition were supplied to the Sioux and other marauding tribes who had thereafter been allowed to invade the plaintiffs' territory to rob and kill; and that such treatment was unjust and not in accord with the provisions of the treaty of Fort Laramie.

On many occasions the defendant's officials, in charge of the administration of the plaintiffs' affairs, expressed their doubt as to the validity and effect of the provisions of the treaty of 1851, and their doubt of any recognition by the defendant of the existence of a reservation or property right in the plaintiff tribes, to the territory described in the treaty of 1851, and on occasions advised the members of the plaintiff tribes of such opinion. In this circumstance "White Shield," chief of the Arickarees, stated to the defendant's agents in a council held on July 2, 1864

We own the country from the Heart River to the Black Hills, from there to the Yellowstone River, north to the Mouse River * * *. Our Great Father has promised us soldiers to help us keep the Dakotas out of our country. No help has come yet * * *. We want to live in our country or have pay for it, as our Great Father used to do with his other red children * * *.

XVIII

Under date of November 15, 1864, the Commissioner of Indian Affairs reported the foregoing to the Department of the Interior and added that the plaintiffs were anxious that new treaties should be made with them; that they "own large tracts of land South of the Missouri River which they would cede to the United States and go upon a reservation."

Under date of October 29, 1870, the Governor of the Dakota Territory, ex officio Supt. Ind. Affrs., in a report to the commissioner of Indian Affairs at Washington, referred to the efforts then being made by the chief engineer of the Dakota division of the Northern Pacific Railroad to effect "the location of that road through the lands which have been regarded by the Indians" of the Fort Berthold Reservation Agency "as belonging to them," and added that under date of September 29, 1869, the chiefs of the three tribes had addressed a letter to General Hancock, in which they stated "that this reservation was agreed upon 'many years ago' between them and 'commissioners * * *'" and that Since the signing of the treaty we have faithfully performed our part of the stipulation, and our Great Father at Washington must have been satisfied with our reservation within the limits mentioned, when in 1865 commissioners were sent to treat with us for a portion of the said reservation on which to erect military posts, . . . at the same time commissioners asked us for the right of way for soldiers as well as citizens to travel through our country to the Yellowstone and in the opposite direction, all of which we carefully granted. Had the country not been ours our Great Father, through his commissioners, would not, we think, have treated with us for the occupation or use of any portion of it, nor would we have the right to grant any such privilege.

Continuing, the same official states:

Whatever may have been the extent of the authority vested in the first commissioners referred to by these chiefs, and whatever may have been the purpose of the Government at that time it is very evident that this arrangement, as understood by the Indians, has not been carried out to such an extent as to give them any vested right in the lands claimed by them. It is equally clear that no special pains has been taken to acquaint them with the true situation of affairs, and that they have been allowed to infer from the subsequent action of the representatives of the Government when treating with them, that their claim was a valid one. For this it is probable that no one has been especially to blame. Up to this time, the land has not been wanted for any other purpose, and it has been easier to give a tacit recognition of their claim than to incur their displeasure in denying it.

In 1874, when an effort was made to transfer them to a reservation in the Indian Territory, now Oklahoma, it was reported that the plaintiffs had refused and had stated

“they love their own country; their dead are buried there; the Government probably would not redeem its promises better there than here”; and that they did not care “to incur the risk of moving from the country they had so long called their home.”

Following the execution of the Executive order of July 13, 1880, to free the “forty-mile limit” grant to the railroad of Indian titles, it was reported by the defendant’s officials that the Indians complained that such action was arbitrarily done without their knowledge and consent and that such action had been the subject of severe complaint; that the property taken consisted of more than half their entire reservation; that their injured feelings were not satisfied by the addition which had been made to the north, which was rough land and undesirable, and that had they been consulted they never would have consented to the transfer. It was also reported that the plaintiff tribes were aware that the right of way for railroads through other Indian reservations had been secured by treaty for which those tribes now receive greater annuities and larger quantities of supplies than were received by the Fort Berthold Indians; that they often assert that the defendant Government did not treat the more powerful and war-like tribes in such manner and that they are now informed that because there was no treaty stipulation to fulfill with them, they can no longer be provided with certain supplies which they formerly enjoyed.

Prior to the issuance of the Executive orders of 1870 and 1880 the plaintiff Indians utilized practically the entire reservation for hunting. The trips were made annually and extended to the headwaters of the Knife River, near the southern boundary of the territory described in the Fort Laramie treaty, in the country surrounding the Little Missouri River, the center of the same territory, their chief hunting grounds, and extended northward to the Yellowstone River, the northwestern boundary of the reservation.

Under date of February 2, 1880, the commanding officer of Fort Stevenson, in answer to a direct inquiry from the headquarters of the Department of the Dakota, stated that practically the whole of the plaintiffs’ reservation lying west of the Missouri River, so far as he could ascertain “is frequently visited by these Indians in pursuit of game, and I am informed by the agent of these Indians that the reservation is habitually used by them as contemplated by the Executive order of April 12, 1870 * * *.”

Under date of January 26, 1880, the Indian agent at Fort Berthold reported to the commanding officer at Fort Stevenson, in answer to a direct inquiry, “you are respectfully informed that practically the entire reservation lies west of the Missouri River, and the greater portion of the same, if not the whole, is frequently visited by agency Indians in pursuing the chase; and I might say the same is habitually used by them as contemplated in Executive order of April 12, 1870.”

Under date of April 13, 1880, Indian agent at Fort Berthold reported to the Commissioner of Indian Affairs that the “Indians of this agency habitually make use of the entire reservation for hunting, trapping and other purposes and unquestionably habitually use the portion of the reservation which is embraced in the land grant to the Northern Pacific Railroad * * *,” and that “the character of the reservation outside the grant to the railroad company is not so well adapted to farming, raising, fishing, and hunting and the other necessities of the Indians * * *. In my judgment, any alteration or change in the present reservation would greatly militate against the interest of the Indians.

“To diminish the reservation of these Indians west of the Missouri River would deprive them of nearly all their good farming lands and timber.

“No compensation for this loss could be given them by increasing the reservation east of the Missouri River, for the land is poor and barren and without water or timber, especially the latter.”

It is clearly shown that the members of the plaintiff tribes were at all times entirely familiar with the history of the treaty of Fort Laramie and the later occurrences; that the treaty was made “to form peace between themselves and other tribes” in consideration for which the Government had agreed to give them rations for fifty years; that the Government began to issue rations and that they were making use of the land, but in the course of time they found out that the Government “that swore the oath that we should use these lands just simply took part of the lands without our consent and knowledge.”

It is equally apparent that when the railroad reached Bismarck the members of the plaintiff tribes thought that it was not going any further; that when it was built through their territory and they saw the white settlers coming in they realized that the Government had taken their land away from them without their consent and they thought that some day the Government might recompense them for the same, but nothing was ever done and they said "we are like prisoners," and could do nothing. This land was valuable to them because it contained their livelihood; their wants were supplied from their gardens which they planted and the hunting of buffalo and deer supplied them with meat and clothing. They had never given their consent to the action taken under the authority of the Executive orders of 1870 and 1880 and noted their objection when the facts became known to them, for "the Indian knows the difference between an open deal and no deal at all."

When the military reservations were established the plaintiffs were told that it was done to enable the Government's troops to protect them from their enemies; that the reservations belonged to the plaintiffs and that the Government desired only to occupy them; subsequently, after the defendant's troops had left, when the plaintiffs learned that the reservations had been sold, they protested, stating that the land belonged to them and that they were entitled to the proceeds.

XX

The members of the plaintiff tribes at no time had any appreciation of the value of their property and even in the negotiations of the treaty of 1886 were entirely dependent upon and required the protection of the Government. They had, however, heard of the negotiations and cession treaties made with other tribes of Indians and had been informed of the rate of payment agreed upon as compensation for the land relinquished to the Government.

Before the entry of the railroad the country west of Bismarck was unsettled and used only by the Indians. It was always good grazing land, and in the '70s it was free range. Stock was introduced into the country in the middle '70s. In the '80s hundreds of thousands of head of cattle and sheep were on the range.

In 1874 there were approximately 15,000 whites living within the old Fort Berthold Reservation, engaged in transportation, Government work, steamboat work, railroad construction and the ordinary business of a typical frontier country. After the railroad was completed a large number remained and settled down to farming.

Coal was first discovered and mined in the Fort Stevenson Reservation in 1874. Wheat was introduced in 1879. The deposits of lignite and coal were extensive and extremely valuable. The land as a whole "had a very good value, growing every day." Full returns to an owner were "a mere question of wait. * * *." In the '70s, with the stockmen enjoying free range in the territory subsequently comprising the railroad right of way, not even the oldest inhabitant, a member of the territorial legislature, and the surveyor general, and who was familiar with the land west of Bismarck and in a general way with the plaintiffs' territory, as described in the Laramie treaty, could estimate the value of the property as a whole.

Its value was entirely dependent upon the period of valuation, the quantity of acreage to be valued, and its locality.

No individual could secure a title until approximately 1877 when they had proved up. In the late '70s there were quite a number of mortgage loans on homestead titles and a settler could secure on mortgage approximately $2.60 per acre.

In the late '80s there were a number of sales of land between individuals. In some instances parcels were sold at $5.00 per acre. Land inside of the forty-mile grant to the railroad was sold at $2.50 per acre. In the '90s and early 1900 large tracts ranging from 60,000 acres to 300,000 acres were sold at prices ranging from $1.70 to $1.35 per acre. The purchase of a tract of 1,000,000 acres was negotiated on a basis of $1.05 per acre.

XXI

The territory deducted from the plaintiffs' reservation, as described in the treaty of Fort Laramie, for the establishment of the military reservation at Fort Buford under the provisions of the Executive order of August 18, 1868, was 98,645.67 acres; under the Executive order of April 12, 1870, was 4,686,612.43 acres; and under the Executive order of July 17, 1880, was 6,639,254.66 acres.

There was added to the plaintiffs' reservation under the provisions of the Executive orders of April 12, 1870, July 13, 1880, and July 17, 1892, 1,578,325.83 acres which, in major part, were thereafter duly ceded to the defendant and for which the plaintiffs received payment.

The total net deduction from the plaintiffs' original reservation, as described in the treaty of Fort Laramie of 1851, and for which no compensation was received, was 9,846,186.93 acres.

XXII

The value of the territory deducted from the plaintiffs' reservation, and for which no compensation was paid, was $4,923,093.47.

XXIII

Subsequent to the execution of the treaty of Fort Laramie of September 17, 1851, to and including the 24th day of January, 1923, but excepting the period from March 3, 1891, to May 31, 1900, during which time the plaintiffs were receiving payment under the provisions of the treaty of 1886, the defendant expended on behalf of and for the benefit of the plaintiff tribes the sum of $2,753,924.89.

CONCLUSION OF LAW

Upon the foregoing special findings of fact, which are made part of the judgment herein, the court decides as a conclusion of law that the plaintiffs are entitled to recover $2,169,168.58.

It is therefore adjudged and ordered that the plaintiffs recover of and from the United States the sum of $2,169,168.58.

OPINION

BOOTH, Chief Justice, delivered the opinion of the court:

The Congress enacted the special jurisdictional act set forth in full in Finding I. The obvious purpose of the act is the adjudication of plaintiffs' rights accruing legally or equitably in virtue of any treaties, agreements, laws of Congress, or misappropriation of funds. The controversy is by the record narrowed to three claims, viz, the alleged taking by the Government of lands embraced within the Indians' reservation without their consent and without compensation; second, a claim for $50,000 for the value of timber alleged to have been cut and taken from their reservation by white trespassers; and, third, the cost of surveying the inner lines of their reservation in December, 1886, it being charged that the expense incident thereto was by express agreement chargeable to the United States and not the Indians.

The first issue raises the important question as to when the reservation claimed in the petition was fixed and set aside by treaty stipulations between the Indians and the United States, and whether the treaty relied upon did in fact create the reservation claimed. The plaintiffs, composing a confederated tribe of Indians made up of three bands—the Arickarees, Gros Ventres, and Mandans—constituted a portion of the vast Indian population which inhabited the great western plains east of the Rocky Mountains and west and south of the Missouri River and its tributaries. Prior to 1851 the Indian tribes had repeatedly engaged in costly internecine warfare, and the plaintiff Indians had suffered from such strifes, not alone from a natural indisposition towards such hostilities but from apparent inability, because of lack of numbers, to cope with their more numerous and more savage neighbors. As a matter of fact, plaintiff Indians had been driven by repeated assaults upon them by the Teton Sioux, a warlike and seemingly irrepressible tribe who had consolidated its large numbers to the south and west of the Missouri River, in territory not only adjacent to the plaintiffs' ancient habitat, but in proximity to the various other Indian tribes living within the Indian area involved in this case, to Fort Berthold, North Dakota. The one event which evoked immediate governmental action and negotiations with all the "wild Indian tribes of the prairies" was the discovery of gold in California. The abnormal increase in travel across the plains, following the discovery of gold in California, provoked the Indian tribes into the commission of violent depredations against the travellers, alleged to be due to the destruction of timber upon Indian lands and the tribal fear of ultimate extinction of the buffalo and other game upon which they relied for food. In fact, the Indians resented the invasion of their domains. To pacify the Indians and to secure the right of free passage through the territory, as well as protect them in the future and reimburse them for losses sustained or to be sustained, the Congress on February 27, 1851 (9 Stat. 572), appropriated $100,000.00 to defray the expenses incident to "holding treaties with the wild tribes of the prairie, and for bringing delegates on to the seat of government." The President appointed the Superintendent of Indian Affairs, D. D. Mitchell, and Indian Agent Thomas Fitzpatrick, as commissioners to conduct the negotiations. The commissioners were instructed as to their duties, and in addition to express instructions as to the procurement of free and unhampered passage through their territory, it was stated to them that "It is important, if practicable, to establish for each tribe some fixed boundaries, within which they should stipulate generally to reside, and each should agree not to intrude within the limits assigned to another tribe without its consent."

On September 1, 1851, the commissioners met eight Indian tribes at Fort Laramie, viz, the Sioux or Dah-co-tahs of the Missouri, Assinaboins, Gros Ventres, Arickarees, Crows, Shoshones or Snakes, Cheyennes and Arapahoes. Following sixteen days of negotiations a treaty was finally consummated with the tribes on September 17, 1851, known as the Fort Laramie treaty. It was signed by the chiefs, headmen, and braves of all of the foregoing Indian tribes except the Shoshones, the commissioners believing that this tribe did not fall within their instructions, and in addition bore the signature of the Mandans. The treaty in haec verba appears in Finding V. The commissioners unquestionably followed their instructions; the stipulations of the treaty so attest. The important provision herein involved pertains to the description of the tract of land set forth in article 5, and the one issue vital to the plaintiff Indians' right of recovery is whether this article did or did not create an Indian reservation.

We have adverted to some extent upon contemporaneous conditions. The Government was chiefly concerned with the procurement of a peaceable right of passage through the Indian country for its citizens, and the prevention of Indian warfare. Manifestly, those in charge of Indian affairs, as well as Congress, were looking towards the establishment of an agricultural policy for the Indians, a policy which must eventually curtail their nomadic habits, due, as was then seen, to the encroachments of the whites upon lands the Indians had long claimed, and from which they derived their living. We need do more than assert that invasion of lands claimed by Indian tribes by either other Indian tribes or white men at once provoked hostilities. In what other way and for what other consideration could the commissioners have successfully accomplished their designed purpose than a governmental recognition of certain well-described lands as territory belonging to the Indians by right of occupancy? It is true the treaty abounds in other considerations for its execution, but the one involved here, i. e., distinct reservations, is not only specific in its terms, obligating the parties to irrevocable observance of the limits of lands set forth, but reserves in express words the claims of the Indians to other lands. The defendant says the territorial provisions were simply mutual recognition by the Indians of their claims to territory and its segregation by them, without positive governmental recognition or verification of the same. This contention, as we view it, concedes that when the commissioners approached the Indians their title by right of occupancy to all the territory embraced within the treaty was recognized by the commissioners representing the Government, and that what the treaty did was to segregate the same into individual tribal allotments. In other words, the Government not only recognized the Indian title, never at any time disputing it, but by solemn treaty, following negotiations, expressly agreed that each tribe was to be assured title to the territory set aside for it. Surely it was not essential to procure by treaty the grant of a perpetual right of way through Indian lands if the Indians did not own the same by right of occupancy. It is true the lands set aside to each tribe embraced a vast domain. To the plaintiff Indians the treaty segregated a territory of about 21,000 square miles and embracing close to 13,000,000 acres of land. With this vast estate, however, the treaty deals, and whether the Government in ratifying the treaty was moved by the then nominal value of somewhat of a wilderness, or concerned in Indian peace at present costs, the fact is the treaty was ratified in the manner provided by law and no unusual circumstance attended its negotiations, and no challenge is now made to its validity, despite the existence of an unusual situation as to its proclamation.

Commissioner Mitchell in reporting upon the treaty used this language:

The laying off of the country into geographical or rather national domains I regard as a very important measure, inasmuch as it will take away a great cause of quarrel among themselves, and at the same time enable the Government to ascertain who are the depredators, should depredations hereafter be committed. The accompanying map, upon which these national boundaries are clearly marked and defined, was made in the presence of the Indians, and fully approved and sanctioned by all.

The language of the treaty, while not in all respects the technical wording used in other Indian treaties is, we think, sufficient when considered in connection with the instrument as a whole and the purpose and intent of the parties thereto, to clearly indicate that the territory of the Indians was to be delimited in accord with their claims and protection assured them within its bounds, in consideration of the rights and privileges secured to the United States and its citizens.

The long-existing cause of Indian wars which had excluded the whites from this section of the country arose in large part over intertribal disputations as to tribal territory, and it is difficult to perceive in what way and under what circumstances it may be held that the provisions of the treaty did not assure to the plaintiff Indians a governmental concession that the territory mentioned in the treaty was to be held by them as Indian country was held by Indians. Beyond doubt, the Indians so understood the treaty, and the Congress legislated in accord with its amended terms, to which the Indians agreed. The law, for which we need not cite familiar precedents, is that in controversies between the Indians and the Government arising out of doubtful and ambiguous provisions of treaties or contracts they are to be taken most strongly against the Government. The Indians' rights are not to be prejudiced by technical construction or words of doubtful import. The Government's policy of recognizing Indian title to lands over which the tribes ranged in hunting for game necessarily involved large areas, and the early Indian treaties exemplify this fact. Lands were not then cultivated to any extent and acreage value was exceedingly nominal, so that it is impossible for the court to construe treaty stipulations as intending a mutual arrangement between the Indian parties, rather than the delimiting of claimed Indian reservations upon the single fact of large areas and extensive habitats. We are considering a transaction completed almost eighty years ago, a period of time when the wild Indians of the prairies were occupying and in possession of the lands involved in the treaty of Fort Laramie, and the problem to be solved related exclusively to the adoption of policies and measures calculated to insure the safety of the white emigrant in Indian country and tribal peace between the tribes themselves. The quantity of land involved was not a serious factor; the perplexing question was the division of the domain among the tribes in such a way as to assure tribal peace. This, we think, the treaty accomplished to a large extent, and from that day to this the tribes have continuously insisted upon their title to the lands described in the treaty.

The Supreme Court has repeatedly held that the Indians' claim of right of occupancy of lands is dependent upon actual and not constructive possession. Mitchel v. United States, 9 Pet. 711; Williams v. Chicago, 242 U. S. 434; Choctaw Nation v. United States, 34 C. Cls. 17. Beyond doubt, abandonment of claimed Indian territory by the Indians will extinguish Indian title. In this case the Government interposes the defense of abandonment, asserting that the facts sustain the contention. It is of course conceded that the issue of abandonment is one of intention to relinquish, surrender, and unreservedly give up all claims to title to the lands described in the treaty, and the source from which to arrive at such an intention is the facts and circumstances of the transaction involved. Forcible ejection from the premises, or non-user under certain circumstances, as well as lapse of time, are not standing alone sufficient to warrant an abandonment. Welsh v. Taylor, 18 L. R. A. 535; Gassert v. Noyes, 44 Pacific 959; Mitchell v. Corder, 21 W. Va. 277.

The Government cites the history of the plaintiff Indians and their successive migrations until their final habitat at Fort Berthold. Much reliance is placed upon their comparatively small population and the fact that Sioux wars repeatedly forced them into small villages from which they dared not venture for fear of extinction by that savage tribe. It is argued that the very vastness of the area involved, in comparison with the Indian population, precluded the possibility of occupancy of the same. It is impossible from the record to fix with accuracy the population of the plaintiff Indian tribes during the period of this controversy; that they were not an unusually large tribe seems evident. Unquestionably their numbers were reduced at times by disease and warfare. However, it is established that a sufficient population continuously prevailed to establish their autonomy and maintain their tribal existence. In 1804, according to the Government's citation, their population was sufficiently large to occupy the lands and we find no evidence in the record of sufficient probative value to sustain us in deciding that their number so materially decreased as to render it impossible to range over the territory claimed. In 1869 their population was near to 2,800. It is admitted without any reservations that the plaintiff Indians not only observed the treaty stipulations as they appear in the treaty of 1851, but were by nature and disposition a peaceable, quiet tribe engaging in agricultural pursuits in the summer season and hunting game in the winter. That they ranged over the entire country involved is established by numerous reports, and that they claimed it as their own is firmly proven. The neighboring Sioux were the plaintiffs' inveterate enemies. This hostile tribe forced the plaintiff Indians to relocate their villages more than once along the Missouri River, and unquestionably the continuing menace of Sioux hostilities precluded at times extensive hunting excursions into the claimed territory; but assuredly armed intervention, forcible ejection from lands, and fear of death and tribal destruction do not indicate abandonment. For some few years following the treaty of 1851 the Sioux observed its stipulations, and the record seems to establish that the later outbreaks of the Sioux were not occasioned so much over territorial disputes as over the alleged invasion and depredations of white emigrants in or passing through the territory.

In July, 1866, a treaty was negotiated with the plaintiffs. This treaty ceded certain described lands to the plaintiffs. The plaintiffs signed it, but it failed of ratification by Congress. In August, 1868, by Executive order the Government established Fort Buford Reservation, a reservation comprising 98,645.67 acres of land, all within the boundaries of the lands described in the treaty of 1851.

In July, 1869, in response to complaints from the plaintiffs of serious depredations upon their timber lands, the major general in command of the Military Department of Dakota reported to his superior officer that he had visited the plaintiff Indians and had a council with them. One question which disturbed the council was whether the plaintiffs legally possessed a reservation or whether one had ever been allotted to them. The major instructed the commanding officer at Fort Stevenson to survey the country and recommend the setting aside of a reservation for the Indians. This was done and a report thereof forwarded to Washington. The Commissioner of Indian Affairs in August, 1869, advised the commanding officer of the existence of the treaty of 1851 providing a reservation, and of the unratified treaty of 1866, concluding with the statement that "there are no treaty stipulations with these Indians relative to a reservation for them, which have been ratified." Acting upon this erroneous information—a fact which the Government now concedes—a delimited reservation described in Finding X was by the Executive order of April 12, 1870, set aside to the plaintiff Indians. The lands embraced within the 1870 reservation were part of the precise lands, with an unimportant exception, described in the treaty of 1851. The establishment of this reservation reduced the territory described in the treaty of 1851 to the extent of 4,686,612.43 acres of land, and the Indians occupied the reduced reservation. The treaty of Fort Laramie of 1851 was ratified by the Senate on May 24, 1852, after amending article 7 of the same. The amended treaty was returned to the tribes for their assent to the modification of the same. All tribes assented thereto, and due to an administrative error and oversight the treaty was never proclaimed; hence, the Indian Office and other delegated officials concerned in negotiations with the Indians proceeded upon the erroneous conviction that the Fort Laramie treaty was never ratified. Congress, however, recognized its terms and appropriated the sums mentioned in the treaty to meet the Government's annual obligations under it to the Indians. There can be no doubt that the failure of governmental officials and others dealing with the Indians at this time to recognize the treaty of 1851 was due exclusively to a belief that the treaty of 1851 was never ratified by the Senate. The plaintiff Indians were at the time an ignorant and unlettered people, forced by their status and situation to rely implicitly upon the representatives of the Government, and while they laid claim to a much larger territory than the 1870 reservation, they were in no position to controvert an alleged existing condition, which was represented to them by those in authority as leaving them without any landed reservation whatever. As we look at it, it was the Government's error and unintended misrepresentation which resulted in procuring a settlement with the Indians in 1870 which did not equitably compensate them for rights granted under the Fort Laramie treaty of 1851. The various special jurisdictional acts conferring jurisdiction upon this court to adjudicate Indian controversies, the decisions of the Supreme and this court, the policy of the Government from time immemorial, attest the indisputable rule that tribal Indians were not to be divested of ceded reservations, ceded under treaties and acts of Congress, without compensating them for the lands taken from them in diminishing their holdings. We think it nonessential to encumber this opinion with the innumerable cases demonstrating the rule. If we are correct in our analysis of the record, the plaintiffs are entitled to recover, under the treaty of 1851, the difference in value between the reservation allotted under that treaty and the reservation established by the Executive order of 1870.

The construction of the Northern Pacific Railroad, with the aid of grants of land through which the line passed, again diminished the plaintiffs' reservation. This railroad ran through the Indians' reservation as fixed by the Fort Laramie treaty of 1851. Section 2 of the land grant provided for the extinguishment of Indian titles. On June 23, 1878, the officials of the railroad notified the Commissioner of Indian Affairs that the line of the road ran through the lands ceded to the Indians as a reservation in 1870, and inasmuch as the grant to the railroad covered every alternate section of land along its right of way, it was essential in order to expedite building that the Indians' reservation be altered and Indian title extinguished so that progress might attain, and railroad lands be freed from Indian claims of title. In July, 1879, the commissioner of Indian Affairs recommended the withdrawal from the reservation of a large acreage of lands, ceding the Indian lieu lands on the north bank of the Missouri River. On July 13, 1880, by Executive order the recommendations of the commissioner were made effective. (Finding XIV.) As a result of the foregoing order, in connection with additional landed transactions described in Findings XV and XVI, the plaintiffs' reservation as set out in the Fort Laramie treaty was again diminished to the extent of 6,639,254.66 acres, leaving the remaining area of the territory described in the treaty of 1851, with the additions made thereto in 1870 and 1880 as the plaintiffs' reservation, the major portion of which was duly ceded by them subsequent to the treaty of 1886. Thus it is shown that through governmental action the plaintiffs' reservation as described in the treaty of 1851 was diminished by successive takings to the following extent, viz, 11,424,512.76 acres, itemized as follows: 98,645.67 set aside for Fort Buford Military reservation, 4,686,612.43 acres taken under the Executive order of 1870, and 6,639,254.66 taken under the Executive order of 1880. However, the Executive orders of 1870, 1880, and 1892 added to the plaintiffs' landed estate 1,578,325.83 acres, no portion of which was included in the lands described in the treaty of 1851 and the major portion of which was thereafter ceded to the Government and for which the plaintiffs received payment, thereby reducing the number of acres finally taken by the Government, for which no compensation has been paid, to 9,846,186.93 acres. (Finding XXI.)

It is an essential function of the court to reconcile the record as to the amount of compensation to which the Indians are entitled, predicated upon the value of the lands. The plaintiffs seek to fix an acreage market value of $1.25 per acre, the price for which much of the territory was offered by the Government to settlers. The contention we believe is untenable. The acreage price offered to settlers was adjusted on a basis of limited allotments, the entire consideration to be paid in stated installments. The judgment we are to render is to be based on takings embracing large areas of land, totaling in two instances millions of acres and in the other close to a hundred thousand acres. When these large tracts were acquired it is apparent that enormous expense is involved in the future segregation of the tracts into marketable units and their sale upon installment payments. The Government's overhead in the maintenance of a department to accomplish their disposition and the incidental expense accompanying the transaction indisputably establishes that the $1.25 per acre was not all profit, if, in fact, profit accrued at all. The Indians could not have disposed of the lands in the way and manner the Government did, and while the homestead laws valued the lands at $1.25 per acre, the return to the Government was not a net but a gross price. We give the Indians a judgment in this case for the value of the lands free from all the expense of sale or segregation for sale. To claim a uniform price of $1.25 per acre, free from the character of expense enumerated would, in our judgment, award the plaintiffs a sum much beyond any price they could have obtained had they offered the tracts for sale.

The plaintiffs are entitled to just compensation to be fixed upon the basis of the amount they might have obtained for the large areas taken at the time they were taken. It is conceded in the briefs of both parties that in 1851 the Indian country involved possessed little, if any, market value. It is, of course, obvious that the Indians could not have sold it or transferred a title in fee. The discovery of gold in California did not appreciably affect the value of the domain. It was not until 1870 that activities concentrated upon the domain and civilization began to push itself into that section of the country. The Civil War had intervened in this period and during the war several Indian hostilities prevailed. The building of the railroad was among, if not, the first event which tended to give a market value of any consequence to the land, and it is inconceivable that 4,686,612.43 acres of land of varying quality and location could possibly have been disposed of in excess of fifty cents per acre. This, we think, represents the maximum of value, a sum deduced from a conflicting record and in harmony with the price fixed by the Government for lands acquired about the same period of time from other Indian tribes in the same locality in cessions to the Government of their reservations in many treaties. The record discloses but a single instance wherein the various tribes of Indians occupying adjacent territory ever asserted a claim for as much as $1.25 per acre for lands in this section ceded to the Government by treaty stipulations, and in addition to this fact the plaintiffs in December, 1886, sold to the Government 1,782,831.64 acres of their then reservation for a little less than 45 cents per acre. Almost 779,000 acres of the total amount sold in 1886 were within the boundaries of the lands described in the treaty of 1851. The record convinces us that the Indians themselves did not and would not have valued their lands at the time they were taken at a greater average value than fifty cents per acre. This acreage value is not, of course, the highest claimed, nor does it represent the price, much lower, contended for by the Government. It is the acreage value which we believe the lands might have brought if offered for sale, considering the title of the Indians and the circumstances surrounding a transfer of the magnitude and importance involved. On this basis we award total value of $4,923,093.47.

The jurisdictional act charges the Indians with "all sums heretofore paid or expended for the benefit of said tribe or any band thereof." The Government under the foregoing provision of the jurisdictional act charges the Indians with $290,827.25, alleged to be pro rata cost of educating individual children of the bands at various nonagency Indian schools. The amount charged is arrived at by ascertaining the per capita cost of maintaining the schools and charging the same to the Indian tribe as the number of children attending appears. The Government during the period maintained at its expense Indian schools at Carlisle, Pa., Chillico, Okla., Lawrence, Kans., Pipestone, Minn., and Pierre, S. D. Congress appropriated from the Treasury in accord with a governmental policy to extend the privileges of education to Indian children for the express intent of eventually changing the hereditary habits and customs of the tribes. The motive involved was more directly beneficial, from a governmental standpoint, to the Government than to the tribe. Of course, educational facilities were of prime necessity and imperative, and eventually resulted in benefit to the tribe, but the immediate beneficial results were individual and not tribal.

We do not believe that the jurisdictional act comprehends a set-off against the claim of the Indians for this item of expenditure in behalf of children of Indian tribes indiscriminately. To so hold might result in sustaining an obvious injustice, for the bands involved in this litigation would be held to contributing a sum towards the maintenance of the schools, while other tribes with much larger attendance would escape payment for benefits of equal value. The sums chargeable, we think, must be restricted to the usually recognized and customary distributions made to the Indians as tribes and bands, unless a contrary purpose is expressed in the act. Public institutions established for the Indian race were maintained from public funds as an adopted public policy, in the nature of gratuity. The Government, we think, did not expend and is not entitled to a counterclaim of more than $2,753,924.89, leaving a judgment in favor of the Indians in the amount of $2,169,168.58. Judgment for this amount is awarded the plaintiffs. It is so ordered.

JURISDICTION OVER INDIANS IN NEW YORK

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT, WESTERN DISTRICT OF NEW YORK

United States of America, Complainant, vs Hattie Charles, Defendant.

Motion for dismissal of bill in equity

Appearances: George L. Grobe, United States Attorney, Attorney for Complainant
(Aubrey Lawrence and C. C. Daniels, Special Assistants to the Attorney General, of Counsel.)
Nelson T. Barrett, Buffalo, New York, Attorney for the Defendant.

(Decided April 19, 1938—23 Fed. Supp., 346)

BURKE, District Judge:

The defendant moves to dismiss the bill herein on the ground that it does not state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action and on the ground of lack of jurisdiction. The action is brought by the United States of America for and on its own behalf and for and on behalf and as trustee and guardian of the Tonawanda band of Seneca Nation of Indians to set aside a deed to the defendant pursuant to a sale ordered by the Supreme Court of the State of New York in partition proceedings with reference to certain property upon the Tonawanda Reservation. In addition to this specific purpose the action is brought by the United States to maintain its obligations to the Tonawanda Tribe of Indians as guardian under treaties and to prevent the exercise of jurisdiction over Indian tribal affairs by the State of New York without the request of the Indian tribe involved or the acquiescence or consent of the United States.

The facts alleged in the complaint, in so far as they are material to this motion, are as follows:

The Tonawanda Tribe of Indians was a part of the Seneca Nation which belonged to the Iroquois Confederacy and is a separate and distinct tribe of the Seneca Nation not bound by or subject to the charter of the Seneca Nation adopted by the Alleghany, Cattaraugus and Oil Springs bands or tribes, the Tonawanda band acting under and being governed by its separate tribal laws and customs. The Tonawanda band has maintained its own tribal relations and has kept tribal affairs and property separate and distinct from any other tribe or band. The several nations of the Iroquois Confederacy and its constituent tribes, including the Tonawanda band, hold their tribal lands in common and are prohibited from transferring or alienating said lands without the consent of the United States and the United States has not at any time consented to alienation of lands within the Tonawanda reservation. The lands described in the complaint over which the dispute arose are within the boundaries of the Tonawanda reservation. Anna Moses, a member of the Tonawanda band was in possession of said lands at the time of her death which occurred during the month of June, 1933. She died intestate. Thereafter a "Consolation Feast" or "Ten day Feast" was held according to the custom and usage of the Tonawanda Indians, at which the right of possession and use of the lands were duly determined, in accordance with the usage and custom of the Tonawanda band, to vest in Gertrude Blackchief, a Tonawanda Indian, and other Tonawanda Indians. Thereafter Gertrude Blackchief filed with the Chiefs' Council of the Tonawanda band, in accordance with the custom and usage of the tribe, a petition for the enforcement of the determination of the "Consolation Feast" and for the purpose of evicting Ira Charles and the defendant Hattie Charles, who were adverse claimants to the said land and who claimed heirship which entitled them to the said lands. Thereafter, and about March 17, 1934, before the Chiefs' Council had acted or had had an opportunity to act on the petition of Gertrude Blackchief, a proceeding was commenced in the Supreme Court of the State of New York, County of Erie, in the name of the People of the State of New York on the relation of Ira Charles and Hattie Charles, against Gertrude Blackchief, the Chiefs' Council of the Tonawanda band and others, for a writ of prohibition and injunction to restrain the said Gertrude Blackchief from instituting any proceedings in or before the Chiefs' Council of the Tonawanda band and to restrain the Chiefs' Council from entertaining any action or proceeding or making any order or decree relating to the said property. On or about May 7th, 1934 the Supreme Court of the State of New York, County of Erie, issued an order perpetually enjoining Gertrude Blackchief from instituting or prosecuting any proceeding before the Chiefs' Council and restraining the Chiefs' Council from entertaining, determining, or enforcing any proceedings in relation to the said property. On or about March 15, 1934, an action was commenced in the Supreme Court of the State of New York, County of Genesee, by Hattie Charles and others against Gertrude Blackchief and others for the purpose of enforcing their alleged claims to the said property by the application of the Inheritance Laws of the State of New York. In this action they applied for a partition of the said lands and the said partition proceeding culminated in a judicial sale by the referee appointed by the Supreme Court in said action. The referee was directed by the court to sell the property at public auction to the highest bidder. The sale took place on September 5, 1936, and the property was purchased at said sale by the defendant Hattie Charles. At the time the property was offered for sale by the referee it was stated by the attorney for the defendant in the partition action, with the acquiescence of the referee, that no one but the members of the Tonawanda band would be permitted to bid although there was no such provision in the order of sale and this fact was at the time called to the referee's attention. The sale was duly confirmed and a deed of conveyance was executed by the referee and delivered to the defendant Hattie Charles.

The allegations of the bill establish that the United States has a real and direct interest in the matter in controversy. The Tonawanda band, being a distinct tribe, is under the guardianship of the United States and thereby entitled to its aid and protection. The custom and usage of the Tonawanda band in establishing descent of real property on the reservation has been overridden by the State Courts and in lieu thereof there has been substituted the laws of descent of the State of New York, all without the consent of the Indians or the United States. This gives rise to a duty on the part of the government to its wards to protect them in their property rights and an independent duty of carrying out a well defined governmental policy in preserving intact the Indian reservation with the management of internal affairs within the hands of the Indians. For such purpose the government can maintain an action in its own courts. Heckman vs. United States, 224 U. S., 413, 437; United States vs. Boylan, 265 Fed. 165.

The right of a tribe to govern itself in accord with tribal laws and customs without interference or dictation from the State courts has been upheld by the highest court of New York State. Mulkins vs. Snow, 232 N. Y., 47; Matter of Patterson vs. Seneca Nation, 245 N. Y., 440.

Accepting without derogation the allegations of the bill, Gertrude Blackchief was determined to be entitled to the possession and use of the tribal lands in question in accordance with the custom and usage of the tribe at the "Consolation Feast" and in further accord with this custom and usage she duly petitioned the Chiefs' Council of the Tonawanda Band for enforcement of this determination. There was, therefore, an established tribunal in accordance with the custom and usage of the tribe for determining the right to possession of tribal lands. Interference with its procedure by injunction of the State Courts was an unwarranted and unlawful disturbance of the right of the Indians to the free use and enjoyment of its tribal property and a violation of treaties guaranteeing these rights.

The reservation lands are held in common by the tribe although individual members of the tribe may be in possession of a particular tract, and such possession is recognized by the tribe. But the lands are inalienable except with the concurrence and consent of the United States. An individual member of the tribe cannot convey title to any particular tract of reservation lands. U. S. vs. Boylan (Supra). The judicial sale by the referee and the referee's deed in the partition action ran counter to that principle and purported to convey title to reservation lands in fee simple. This is repugnant to governmental policy in regard to Indian reservations. If such sales are countenanced by the government there is danger that in time the reservation will cease to exist as such. Congress has adopted a policy of continuing the tribal relations of Indians and their rights as distinct political communities, apart from State interference. Congress alone may vary this policy. U. S. vs. Boylan (Supra). Until such time as Congress sees fit to change it, any interference with it either by State legislation or by extension of the jurisdiction of the State Courts over internal affairs of Indians on the reservation is an unlawful interference with a governmental function. The complaint states a cause of action cognizable in equity.¹

The motion should be denied.

HAROLD P. BURKE,
United States District Judge.

Dated: April 19, 1938.

RE: NEW YORK INDIANS—CONFERENCE ON POLICY TO BE HELD BETWEEN REPRESENTATIVES OF THE DEPARTMENT OF JUSTICE AND THE DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR

The formation of the policy of the United States in dealing with the New York Indians is particularly within the province of the Department of the Interior. The situation which has prevailed in relation to the New York Indians as well as certain legal considerations naturally condition any policy which may be formed by the United States. This memorandum is for the purpose of indicating the more important phases of the situation which exists and pointing out the legal propositions which should be taken into account.

I

LEGAL CONSIDERATIONS AFFECTING POLICY

1. PARAMOUNT JURISDICTION OF THE FEDERAL GOVERNMENT

It is arguable whether or not the United States has exclusive jurisdiction over the New York Indians. A careful consideration of the question shows the Federal Government to have exclusive jurisdiction. However this may be, "it is settled beyond peradventure of a doubt that the federal government has paramount authority over" the New York Indians, (Rice v. Maybee, 2 Fed. Supp. 669). The least that can be said of federal jurisdiction was stated by the Court of Appeals in People ex rel Cusick v. Daly, (1914), 212 N. Y. 183, where the court below was reversed for convicting a Tuscarora Indian of assault with intent to kill, for the reason that the federal courts had exclusive jurisdiction of the crime by virtue of §9, Act of 1885 (23 Stat. 385; U. S. Crim. Code, §328). The Court said at page 196:

Even if we assume that, in the absence of Federal legislation, the state has the most ample power to legislate for the Indians within its borders, there seems to be no escape from the conclusion [pp 197] that when Congress does act the power of the state must yield to the paramount authority of the Federal government.

¹ See United States ex rel. Tyler et al., 294 Fed., 111; 269 U. S., 13, particularly the briefs filed in the Supreme Court on State or Federal jurisdiction over New York Indian Tribes.

2. APPLICABILITY OF GENERAL LAWS RELATING TO INDIANS

No doubt can be entertained about the applicability to the New York Indians of all of the laws of Congress relating to Indians in general. The Court in People ex rel. Cusick v. Daly, supra, applied the "Seven Major Crimes Act" which was of a general nature. Similar instances could be multiplied.

3. STATUS OF TRIBES AND TREATY RIGHTS

In addition to the fact that all general acts of Congress relative to Indians apply to New York automatically, there is the further fact that treaties guarantee that the United States will not "disturb * * * the Six Nations * * * in the free use and enjoyment" of their tribal lands, (7 Stat. 44). Treaties, in legal effect, are on a par with Acts of Congress. The Supreme Court in The New York Indians, 5 Wall. 761, (1866), has construed the treaties with the New York Indians to preclude action by the state which would disturb them in the peaceful possession of their reservations. This right of undisturbed use of the reservations is the right of the tribe as a "separate political community" dependent on the United States alone.

The fundamental propositions of law which affect the New York Indian situation are (1) the prevailing authority of Congress (at least), (2) the applicability of all general Acts of Congress, and (3) the right of the tribes guaranteed by treaty to the undisturbed occupancy of their reservations as political communities. For the most part, it is a question of policy as to whether or not and to what extent the provisions of the general laws are to be enforced or the treaty rights of the Indians protected.

II

PASSIVE POLICY OF THE UNITED STATES IN THE PAST

Except for sporadic activity, the policy of the United States in the past has been passive. Inaction has been both cause and result of the conflict as to whether the United States or the State of New York is guardian of the New York Indians and has jurisdiction of their affairs. How this conflict in jurisdiction arose is a subject for the historian. Suffice to say, it has enveloped the administration of the affairs of these Indians in a fog of doubt, uncertainty and lost responsibility with an inevitable injury to the rights of the Indians. The confusion, however, has not been an unalloyed evil.

The passive policy of the Federal Government, prior to the present administration, is perhaps best illustrated by the leasing of lands for villages within the Allegany Indian Reservation. The restriction imposed by Congress on the leasing of reservation lands was a dead letter with the Indian Office as far as the New York Indians were concerned. The New York Legislature, in order to protect the state's preemption right to the Indian's lands, had imposed restrictions at an early date on purchasing or leasing Indian lands. These restrictions, coupled with the doubt as to whether the Federal restrictions applied, were sufficient to render the Indian Office inactive and, as a consequence, considerable settlements were made on the Allegany Indian Reservation by white persons under no better authority than leases for nominal rentals made under the sanction of the state.

These leases were made in violation of the limitations imposed by Congress on leasing and sale of Indian lands in general and, when tested in the state courts, were declared void. The New York Legislature requested Congress to ratify these leases. Accordingly, Congress ratified these leases for a specified time, provided for the laying out of certain villages, and prescribed the method and requirements for renewing leases for periods of twelve years (Act of February 19, 1875).

No provision was made for government approval of the terms and conditions of new or renewed leases. In 1890, Congress responded to the pressure of the lessees in these villages and permitted renewal of leases for a term of ninety-nine, instead of twelve, years, (Act of September 30, 1890). The literally wholesale renewal of leases for terms of ninety-nine years at nominal rentals demonstrated either the generosity, incompetence or corruption of the Seneca Council which had charge of the matter.

Complaints were increasing to the effect that the Councillors were acting in their own interests and misusing tribal funds arising from rentals and the Act of February 28, 1901, was passed by Congress which provided that rentals were to be collected by the United States Indian agent, who was to pay to the Council two thousand five hundred dollars and distribute the balance to the members of the tribe along with the federal annuities.

The act of 1875 appears to be predicated on the proposition that the Seneca Nation through its Councillors was competent to manage their own affairs in relation to leasing and that the United States owed no duty to the Indians other than permitting them to lease their lands. The act was for the white intruders and not for the benefit of the Indians. The act of 1901 commits the government to an active supervision over the collection of the rentals. The same act, by implication, charges the Council with malversation of rentals and provides for the distribution of the same to the members of the tribe, except for two thousand five hundred dollars for the Council. The United States has thus been committed to an active guardianship over the Seneca Nation at least in relation to the collection of rentals and distribution of the same, which looks to the interests of the Tribe.

PERNICIOUS EFFECT OF PASSIVE POLICY

In relation to the Salamanca leases, the United States has continued its passive policy as much as the acts permit. The United States is chargeable with collecting the rentals and, by implication, of cancelling leases which have been breached. The McCarl audit of the books of the Seneca Nation (Senate Doc. 253, 71st Cong., 3d Sess., and Sen. Doc. 87, 72d Cong. 1st Sess.) reveal the general passiveness of the government in the matter—The Indian agent serving as little more than bookkeeper. Through the hesitant action by Congress and the lack of action by the administrative departments, the Indians get only a fraction of what they are entitled to from their leases.

TONAWANDA GYPSUM

Another instance of the bad effect of the confusion is the Tonawanda Gypsum. George Watson, an attorney, was employed by the Tonawanda Band of Indians at a compensation of $100,000 to defend a suit brought on behalf of certain members of the tribe for moneys paid or to be paid the tribe for the mining of gypsum under the surface of tribal lands occupied by the individual members. United States Code, Title 25, 881, required the approval of the Secretary of the Interior of the contract of Watson with the Tribe. The contract was forwarded to the Secretary of the Interior for approval, but the same was returned without approval with the following statement:

* * * It appears * * * that the State is the guardian of the lands of the Tonawanda Indians, and the State legislature has passed laws for their government * * *

In view of the fact that this case does not involve a federal question and the Indian lands are held in trust for them by the State of New York it is believed that your contract with the tribe is sufficient to enable you to proceed. If an approval of your contract is necessary it must needs be taken up with the proper New York State officials. * * *

Watson and Darch defended the action against the tribe which defense involved appeals, (Matter of Parker, (1929), 227 A. D. 107). When it came to enforcing the attorneys contract for compensation of one hundred thousand dollars, the Supreme Court of the State of New York, in Matter of Darch, (1933), 145 Misc. 836, declared the contract void as not having the approval of the Secretary of the Interior as required by U. S. Code, Title 25, § 81. Though the court disallowed compensation on any basis, the tribe gave Watson and Darch about $20,000.

UNSETTLED RULE OF DESCENT AND DEVOLUTION OF PROPERTY

Another instance may be found of the bad effect of the passive policy of the Government in the application of the inheritance laws of the state to the reservations. At various times, questions of descent and distribution of Indian land has come into state courts. In some instances the courts have ruled that the Indian customs applied.

In other instances they have ruled that the state law applied. With the Indians, it was pure speculation as to how the land would be allocated. In any event, the expenses of litigation, which in some instances almost consumed the estate, were borne by the Indians.

Instances could be multiplied where a particular course of action has been taken on the assumption that the state had jurisdiction of Indian affairs, only to find that such course of action was illegal. The situation inevitably results in the injury of either the Indians or the persons dealing with them, and more often than not, to both.

ERRONEOUS ASSUMPTION AS BASIS FOR PASSIVE POLICY

The passive policy of the United States seems to have been predicated, for the most part, on the erroneous assumption that, if the Federal Government pursued an active policy in regard to the New York Indians, the State of New York would withdraw such aid as it gives the Indians in the way of education, welfare, road maintenance, and annuities. For the most part, the state is bound to pay the annuities. The roads are maintained, not for the Indians, but notwithstanding the Indians.

Such aid as the State renders the various tribes in the way of education and social welfare is not to be belittled, though it has more often than not been overemphasized. There is little reason to support the assumption that the state would withdraw its aid to the Indians in the event the United States pursued an active policy in relation to conserving the rights of the Indians and protecting their interests.

DUTY OF UNITED STATES TO ITSELF, NEW YORK, THE INDIANS AND WHITES TO END PASSIVE POLICY

The government owes it to itself as well as to the Indians and the State of New York to vigorously enforce all federal laws in relation to Indians and thus prevent situations from repeatedly arising in relation to the New York Indians which invariably cause confusion and quite often injury to every one involved.

VI

ACTIVE POLICY ANNOUNCED

With the appointment of John Collier as Commissioner of Indian Affairs, there promised to be a permanent end to the passive policy of the United States. The Wheeler-Howard Act provided for the fostering of the Indian Tribes, as such. In a speech on September 4, 1934 to the New York Indians explaining the provisions of the Act, Mr. Collier announced that "a complete reversal of Federal Indian policy has taken place in the last year." He further stated:

I believe that the Federal policy towards the New York Indians should become exactly what that policy is towards the Blackfeet, the Sioux, the Papagos, the Pueblos or the Navajos.

The United States appears to have thrust aside its passive policy toward the New York Indians and have taken definite action looking to the protection of the rights and consideration of the interests of the various tribes as well as rendering certain aid to them. Under the W. P. A., certain lands on the St. Regis Reservation are being recovered by drainage. An action, United States v. Charles, was instituted in the District Court to cancel a state court proceeding partitioning forty-five acres of the Tonawanda Reservation. This action is being prosecuted on the three-fold theory that the partition proceedings, referee's sale, and injunction restraining the council from determining descent and devolution of reservation lands are (1) a violation of the treaty rights of the tribe to the peaceful possession of the reservation, (2) an alienation of reservation lands restricted by federal law, and (3) an undue interference with a function of the United States.

On the Onondaga Reservation, the United States prosecuted recently under the "Seven Major Crimes Act," Levi Frost, an Indian, for murder on the reservation, notwithstanding the mistaken claim of the state attorney of the jurisdiction of the state. Another People ex rel. Cusick v. Daly was thus avoided.

Highly significant of the active policy of the government toward the New York Indians is the attitude of the government in relation to the leasing situation on the Allegany Reservation. The original act of 1875 was quite reasonable under the circumstances. The act of 1890 extending the term of renewal leases from twelve to ninety-nine years has worked a great injury to the interests of the tribe. The authority granted to the Council to make leases on such terms and conditions as they saw fit, without approval by the Department of the Interior, was so abused by the Council, that any policy looking to the interests of the tribe would require that further leases be subjected to the approval of the government. The administration accordingly recommended H. R. 6248 (S. 2122) which limited the term of renewal leases, provided that rentals be based on the appraised value of the property, and subjected the generosity of the sixteen Councillors with tribal property to the veto of the Department of the Interior. The fact that Representative Reed, of Salamanca, New York, managed to smother the bill in committee is to be regretted, but cannot be taken to indicate that Congress endorses the resumption of a passive policy.

SPECIFIC MATTERS FOR CONSIDERATION

There are several matters heretofore investigated and reported on which are suggested for consideration, viz:

- (a) Condemnation by New York of part of the Onondaga Reservation for highway and flood control;
- (b) Illegal "renewal" of leases in Salamanca on the Allegany Reservation;
- (c) Illegal taxation and sale of property occupied by an Indian in Salamanca;
- (d) Illegal taxation of lands on the Cattaraugus Reservation occupied by a member of the tribe;
- (e) Breach of conditions of lease by Snyder Packing Company for lands on Cattaraugus Reservation;
- (f) Illegal mining of gypsum on Tonawanda Reservation.

Since detailed memorandums have been sent the Department covering each of these questions, the following treatment is brief.

1. CONDEMNATION FOR FLOOD CONTROL

In a memorandum to the Attorney General, dated January 21, 1935, I recommended that suit be brought in the federal court for the purpose of restraining and preventing condemnation and appropriation of certain lands on the Onondaga Indian Reservation by the state of New York for highway and flood control purposes under authority of acts of the legislature of the state.

Thereafter another memorandum was forwarded the Attorney General, dated May 9, 1935, on the same subject, which recommended suit in the Supreme Court of the United States in the name of the United States of America against the State of New York on the grounds set forth in the form of complaint attached to said memorandum.

A conference was thereafter held at the Department of Justice in Washington, between Mr. Blair, Assistant Attorney General in charge of the Public Land Division, and Mr. Collett and Mr. Lawrence and the undersigned, all of the Division. It was determined at the conference that the suit recommended in my memorandum should be instituted, and I was directed to confer with Solicitor General Reed with relation thereto, which I did.

For reasons of policy, at that time the suit was not brought. The state, at that time, was taking no immediate steps to take over the land condemned or to evict therefrom the Indians residing on the reservation. Therefore the unpleasant task of bringing suit against the state was not imperative.

Since then, however, other steps have been taken looking to the building of dam and highway on the land and the flooding of the homes of members of the Nation or tribe of Indians residing on the Reservation, by construction of the said highway and dam for flood control.

The undersigned attended a meeting at Syracuse at which Army Engineers were hearing discussion of the matter, to be followed with report by the Engineers assigned to flood control. Memorandum dated August 14, 1936, in relation thereto was sent you.

The undersigned respectfully recommends that suit be brought in the Supreme Court of the United States in the name of the United States of America against the State of New York on the grounds set forth in the form of complaint attached to memorandum dated May 9, 1935, with such changes as may be deemed advisable.

By the institution and prosecution of such a suit, decision of the highest court will be secured that will settle many questions of vital importance in dealing with the New York Indians and their problems.

2. ILLEGAL "RENEWAL" LEASES IN SALAMANCA

It was through the passive policy of the United States that the city of Salamanca sprung up on the Allegany Reservation along with several other villages. A state court decision made it clear that these "lessees" were trespassers. It became almost mandatory for the government to either ratify the "leases" or remove the intruders. At the request of the State, Congress legalized the "leases" and provided for renewal leases but did little more, for the Indian Council was subjected to no supervision.

Since the legalizing act of 1875, the lessees have been strongly opposed to any change whatsoever in the passive policy of the government, with the exception of the act of 1890 which extended the authority of the Council to make renewals for ninety-nine years and the time when Congressman Vreeland, a resident of Salamanca, proposed to compel the Indians to virtually give the lands to the lessees. As a matter of fact, it is hard to conceive of any change in the situation at Salamanca, other than giving the lands to the lessees, which could improve the bargain obtained by the lessees at the expense of the tribe. The lessees also did not oppose the act of 1901 which provided a bookkeeper for the tribe and lessees and limited the authority of the Council in squandering more than twenty-five hundred dollars of the rentals.

The government neglects its responsibility to the tribe when it continues to permit the leasing of city lots for the wholly inadequate rentals and when illegal "renewals" are allowed to go unchallenged and leases otherwise breached.

The measure advocated by the administration before the last Congress was for the purpose of protecting the lessees as well as to subject the Council (for the benefit of the tribe) to a much needed supervision in making leases.

As a result of the dilatory tactics adopted by those who felt that the Federal Government should stand by and permit its wards to be exploited, it was recommended that action be brought by the United States to cancel Lease 93-A. Reference is made to memorandum dated April 22, 1938, to which was attached a tentative form of complaint for the consideration of the Department.

The people of Salamanca would be convinced by such a suit that the Federal Government is in earnest in its purpose to act in the interests of the tribe and at the same time desires that the equity of lease holders who have placed improvements on the land be protected. No doubt, much of the opposition to a similar bill would disappear if the government ended for all times its passive policy—a policy upon which the interests of the lessees have thrived for so many years at the expense of the tribe.

Aside from the proposed bill relative to leasing, if the government is to pursue an active policy and meet its responsibilities toward the tribe, the suit should be instituted.

3. TAXATION AND SALE OF PROPERTY OCCUPIED BY AN INDIAN IN SALAMANCA

Two acts of Congress prompt the government to bring action to restrain the assessment of taxes on the lot occupied by Leona Kenjockety, an Indian possessing the land under original right of occupancy. The act of 1875 directing Salamanca to be laid out specifically exempts Indians from taxation. There is also the federal limitation on alienation of Indian lands which appears to have been violated by the tax deed to the City of Salamanca.

This matter was investigated in 1925-7 and the United States Attorney directed to institute suit to enjoin the collection of taxes from the same lot held by the mother of Leona Kenjockety. It was represented by the City Attorney of Salamanca that the assessment was made for sewerage which was to be shut off and backed up against the homes of the Indians if the government brought suit. This threat was sufficient to render the government inactive in relation to the rights of the Indians—a threat which the city could not enforce.

This matter clearly demands action on the part of the Government.

4. ILLEGAL TAXATION OF LANDS ON THE CATTARAUGUS RESERVATION OCCUPIED BY JIMERSON, AN INDIAN

It is recommended that suit be brought in the United States District Court for the Western District of New York in the name of the United States of America against the County of Erie to enjoin the assessment, levy or collection of taxes against the estate of George A. Jimerson, his family, or the lot or parcel of land on the Cattaraugus Indian Reservation by his family occupied.

The basis on which the said County has taxed Jimerson and the lot occupied by him and his family, is that a Seneca Indian by the name of Charles Dennis leased some fifteen acres of land on the Cattaraugus Indian Reservation allocated to and occupied by said Dennis as a member of the Seneca Nation, to the Erie Preserving Corporation for an annual rental of thirty dollars per annum. The lease was approved by act of Congress. The Erie Preserving Corporation built a factory and houses for their working force on the land leased. The Jimerson lot and house came into his possession through the Erie Preserving Corporation and he used the same as a home until his death, since when it has been used by his family.

It may be pointed out that the question of taxing this lot and house has been looked into before and the conclusion reached that the same were not exempt from taxation by virtue of state law.

A judgment is needed in this instance, not only to protect an Indian ward from illegal taxation, but to have reiterated by the courts the proposition that the reservation lands are exempt from state taxation not by reason of state exemptions but by reason of federal law.

5. BREACH OF LEASE BY SNYDER PACKING COMPANY

In memorandum dated July 9, 1935, report was made on the various breaches of the so-called Dennis lease which is claimed by the Snider Packing Company. Recommendation was made to attempt to negotiate a revised lease to the better advantage of the tribe. This failed and recommendation was made in memorandum dated April 9, 1937, to cancel the lease.

The Snider Packing Company, so I am informed, has been recently dismantling the plant and removing the equipment. It is possible that fixtures attached to the soil are being removed to the injury of the tribe. This matter should be checked into and prompt action taken accordingly. In any event, the lease should be cancelled.

6. ILLEGAL MINING OF GYPSUM ON TONAWANDA RESERVATION

The gypsum contracts set forth and described in memorandum dated April 14, 1938, relative to the appropriation of gypsum from the Tonawanda Indian Reservation, were, in my judgment, illegal and the compensation therein provided inadequate and unjust to the Tonawanda Indian Band or Tribe and should be cancelled and those who have appropriated the gypsum be made to pay the reasonable value thereof.

The policy of protecting the Indians in their property and rights should be made perfectly clear so that which belongs to tribal Indians will be as safe from exploitation as any other property, the protection of which the Federal Government is charged with.

It is my opinion that even if the terms of the lease equitable, the lease should be cancelled and a new lease made under the provisions of the United States Code, Title 25, §397.

VIII

FEDERAL COOPERATION WITH STATE AUTHORITIES

As hereinbefore mentioned, it has generally been intimated or felt that if the Federal Government pursued an active policy in protecting the rights of its Indian wards, that the State of New York would "sit down" on its work being done for the benefit of the Indians. Such is not necessarily the case. The cooperation between the State and Federal Governments is not merely a possibility but the thing which is most logical and probable. In this connection, the protection of the Poosepatuck and Shinnecock Indians illustrates the cooperation of state and federal governments.

More than one act of Congress is predicated on the cooperation of state and federal agencies for the benefit of the Indians. Cooperation implies however, action and the United States can hardly be said to cooperate when it allows a confused and bewildering situation to continue which is in large measure due to its own inaction.

Respectfully submitted.

C. C. DANIELS,
Special Assistant to The Attorney General.

TREATIES—INDIAN RIGHTS

UNITED STATES v. MRS. P. L. GARROW (No. 4018)

1. JAY TREATY AS APPLIED TO INDIAN RIGHTS.

Article III of the Treaty of Amity, Commerce, and Navigation concluded between the United States and Great Britain on November 19, 1794, commonly known as the Jay Treaty, so far as it applied to the rights of Indians to pass and repossess "with their own proper goods and effects" into the respective territories of the two parties, without the payment of "any impost or duty" of whatever nature was abrogated by the war of 1812. Citing Karnuth, Director of Immigration, et al. v. United States ex rel. Albro, 279 U. S. 231.

2. CANADIAN INDIANS—CITIZENSHIP.

Indians residing in Canada, although wards of the Canadian Government, are within the category of citizens or subjects of that Government. Article III of the Jay Treaty having been nullified by the war of 1812 as to Canadian citizens (Vide Karnuth case, supra), it was likewise nullified as to Canadian Indians.

3. BASKETS OF WOOD IMPORTED BY AN INDIAN.

A full-blooded Indian woman, residing in Canada near the international boundary line, entered the United States carrying certain baskets made of black ash splints, the baskets not being a part of her household effects, but manufactured for sale and brought into the United States for that purpose, was properly chargeable with duty for baskets, wholly or in chief value of wood, under paragraph 411, Tariff Act of 1930, there being neither any treaty of exemption of the goods from duty, nor any statutory exemption therefrom. Legislation and history of the times since the ratification of the Jay Treaty considered.

4. TREATY OF GHENT.

The Treaty of Ghent, ratified February 17, 1815, was not self-executing so far as it affected the right of Canadian Indians to enter the United States.

APPEAL from United States Customs Court, T. D. 48208

Reversed.]

Joseph R. Jackson, Assistant Attorney General (Joseph E. Weil, special attorney, of counsel), for the United States.

George J. Moore for appellee.

[Oral argument February 8, 1937, by Mr. Weil and Mr. Moore]

Before GRAHAM, Presiding Judge, and BLAND, HATFIELD, GARRETT, and LENROOT, Associate Judges.

GRAHAM, Presiding Judge, delivered the opinion of the court:

Annie Garrow, a full-blooded Indian woman of the Canadian St. Regis tribe of Iroquois Indians, residing in Canada near the international boundary line, entered the United States at the village of Hogansburg, N. Y., carrying twenty-four baskets made of black ash splints and dyed in colors. The collector at the port imposed a duty under paragraph 411 of the Tariff Act of 1930, which provides:

PAR. 411. Porch and window blinds, baskets, bags, chair seats, curtains, shades, or screens, any of the foregoing wholly or in chief value of bamboo, wood, straw, papier-mâché, palm leaf, or compositions of wood, not specially provided for, 50 per centum ad valorem.

The appellee protested, claiming her said baskets to be free of duty under the provisions of article III of the Treaty of Amity, Commerce, and Navigation concluded between the United States and Great Britain on November 19, 1794, commonly known as the Jay Treaty. (Treaties, Conventions, International Acts, Protocols, and Agreements between the United States and Other Powers, 1776-1909, by Malloy. Vol. 1, p. 590, Senate Document No. 357, 61st Congress, 2d Session.)

The material portions of the protest filed are as follows:

Sir: Notice of dissatisfaction is hereby given with, and protest is hereby made against your ascertainment, assessment, and liquidation of duties (including the legality of all orders and findings entering into the same), on the entry below named. The reasons for objection are as follows:

Article 3 of the Treaty of Amity, Commerce and Navigation, concluded between the United States and Great Britain on November 19, 1794, known as the Jay Treaty, reads in part as follows:

"No duty of entry shall ever be levied by either party on peltries brought by land or inland navigation into the said territories respectively, nor shall the Indians passing or repassing with their own proper goods and effects of whatever nature, pay for the same any impost or duty whatever. But goods in bales, or other large packages, unusual among Indians, shall not be considered as goods belonging bona fide to Indians."

This provision was in substance carried into the various tariff acts enacted during the period from March 2, 1799, to August 28, 1894.

The provision was repealed in the latter act of Section 34 of the Act of July 24, 1897, together with all the acts or parts of acts inconsistent with the repealing statute.

The repeal of the provision, in effect, abrogated that portion of the treaty above indicated, but as the repeal was inconsistent with the terms of the treaty, the legality of the repeal is questionable.

Upon a hearing before the United States Customs Court, in addition to the facts hereinbefore stated, it also appeared that at the time the international line was established between the Dominion of Canada and the United States of America, this line ran through the territory theretofore occupied by the St. Regis Tribe, with the result that a large number of this tribe reside on the American side and the rest of the tribe on the Canadian side, and that intercourse and communication between these portions of the tribe are continuous. It also appears that for some years the protestant, together with many others of her tribe, have been manufacturing baskets such as those in question here, for sale wherever they could be disposed of; that the protestant, on the occasion of the importation in question, was bringing the baskets across the line to dispose of them at the store of one McKinnon, who was in the business of purchasing such baskets from the Indians for resale; and that the amount received by the protestant for her baskets was $2, one-half of which was paid for duty imposed. It is also shown that the protestant was not carrying these baskets as a part of her household effects had but manufactured the same, and was importing them for sale in the United States. As the baskets were brought into the United States they were in two bundles, twelve in a bundle, the baskets in each bundle being fastened together by loops through their respective handles. Each basket was about 6 inches wide and about 8 inches high. As fastened together, they fitted into each other and made compact bundles which could be easily carried.

The United States Customs Court sustained the protest, holding that the case was controlled by McCandless v. United States, 25 F. (2d) 71, a decision of the Circuit Court of Appeals for the Third Circuit. The Government brings the matter here by appeal, and contends that the court below was in error for three specific reasons which are specified in the Government's brief, as follows:

- (1) Article 3 of the Jay Treaty of 1794 was annulled by the War of 1812.
- (2) Alternatively, if Article 3 of the Jay Treaty was not abrogated by the War of 1812, it is, nevertheless, in conflict with a subsequent statute. It is well settled that when a Treaty and a Statute are in conflict, that which is later in date prevails.
- (3) Assuming, for the sake of argument, that Article 3 was not abrogated but is still in force and effect, the importation is not within the purview of the language of said Article 3.

On the other hand, counsel for the appellee contends that article III of the Jay Treaty of 1794 is still in full force and effect, and that under this treaty the imported goods are free of duty. The claim is thus stated:

The appellee's claim is that Article 3 of the Jay Treaty of 1794, at least insofar as it applies to bona fide Indians, is still in effect and the merchandise in question is free from duty.

It will be necessary to examine the provisions of the involved treaty, and the legislation and history of the times since the ratification of the Jay Treaty, in order to come to a proper conclusion as to the claims of the appellee to exemption from duty.

The Jay Treaty of 1794, in article III thereof, contained the following provisions:

It is agreed that it shall at all times be free to His Majesty's subjects, and to the citizens of the United States, and also to the Indians dwelling on either side of the said boundary line, freely to pass and repass by land or inland navigation, into the respective territories and countries of the two parties, on the continent of America (the country within the limits of the Hudson's Bay Company only excepted), and to navigate all the lakes, rivers, and waters thereof, and freely to carry on trade and commerce with each other. * * *

No duty of entry shall ever be levied by either party on peltries brought by land or inland navigation into the said territories respectively, nor shall the Indians passing or repassing with their own proper goods and effects of whatever nature, pay for the same any impost or duty whatever. But goods in bales, or other large packages, unusual among Indians, shall not be considered as goods belonging bona fide to Indians.

It will be observed that the quoted provisions are self-executing and granted to the Indians named therein the right to bring their own proper goods and effects of whatever nature into the United States immediately upon the ratification of the treaty, without legislation. However, irrespective of this, the Congress of the United States, in an act to regulate the collection of duties on imports and tonnage, enacted March 2, 1799 (1 Stat. 627), provided in section 105 thereof (p. 702), as follows:

SEC. 105. And be it further enacted, That no duty shall be levied or collected on the importation of peltries brought into the territories of the United States, nor on the proper goods and effects of whatever nature, of Indians passing, or repassing the boundary line aforesaid, unless the same be goods in bales or other large packages unusual among Indians, which shall not be considered as goods belonging bona fide to Indians, nor be entitled to the exemption from duty aforesaid. * * *

This was the situation of affairs at the time of the declaration of war between the United States and Great Britain on June 18, 1812. This war was concluded by the Treaty of Peace made at Ghent on December 24, 1814, and ratified February 17, 1815. (See Malloy's Treaties, Conventions, etc., supra, pp. 612-620.) Article IX of said treaty contained the following provision, among others:

The United States of America engage to put an end, immediately after the ratification of the present treaty, to hostilities with all the tribes or nations of Indians with whom they may be at war at the time of such ratification; and forthwith to restore to such tribes or nations, respectively, all the possessions, rights, and privileges which they may have enjoyed or been entitled to in one thousand eight hundred and eleven, previous to such hostilities: * * *

Following the Treaty of Ghent, the Congress, on various occasions, enacted legislation dealing with duties on imports into the United States. A citation of some of these acts is given in a marginal note.¹

These various acts were not express repeals of the preceding acts, but usually were amendatory thereof, and in most cases were introduced with the phraseology, "The duties heretofore laid by law, on goods, wares, and merchandise, imported into the United States, shall cease and determine, and there shall be levied, and collected, and paid, the several duties hereinafter mentioned", or similar language.

 An act to reduce duties on imports, and to reduce internal taxes, and for other purposes, of June 6, 1872. S. L., Vol. 17, Chap. CCCXV.

The Congress, in the first session of the 43rd Congress of 1873–1874, caused to be issued, as a part of the Statutes at Large, a volume entitled "Revised Statutes of the United States." Herein was incorporated substantially the provision hereinbefore quoted from the statute of March 2, 1799, as section 2515. The section follows:

Sec. 2515. That no duty shall be levied or collected on the importation of peltries brought into the Territories of the United States, nor on the proper goods and effects, of whatever nature, of Indians passing or repassing the boundary-line aforesaid, unless the same be goods in bales or other large packages unusual among Indians, which shall not be considered as goods belonging to Indians, nor be entitled to the exemption from duty aforesaid.

In the revision of 1878, the same section was repeated.

It is significant that in a marginal note, printed in connection with section 2515, both in the Revised Statutes of 1873–1874 and 1878, the compiler refers to the statute of March 2, 1799, heretofore referred to.

This condition continued until, in the tariff act of March 3, 1883, S. L., Vol. 22, Chap. CXXI, a section known as section 2512 was incorporated, which is, in substance and effect, similar to the provision of the statute of 1799, heretofore quoted.

Again, in paragraph 674 of the tariff act of October 1, 1890, S. L., Vol. 26, Chap. 1244, this provision was made:

674. Peltries and other usual goods and effects of Indians passing or repassing the boundary line of the United States, under such regulations as the Secretary of the Treasury may prescribe: Provided, That this exemption shall not apply to goods in bales or other packages unusual among Indians.

Exactly the same provision was repeated in the tariff revision of August 27, 1894, paragraph 582, S. L., Vol. 28, Chap. 349.

The next general revision of the tariff act was that of July 24, 1897, S. L., Vol. 30, Chap. 11. The provisions which had been carried in the three preceding acts, as to the goods of Indians passing and repassing, was omitted from the said tariff act of July 24, 1897, and no reference has been made to this provision in any succeeding act. However, in not only the said act of 1897, but in succeeding acts, duties have been imposed upon goods similar to those which were imported in this case.

In the said tariff act of July 24, 1897, appeared section 34. The following portion of said section is material here, and is as follows:

Sec. 34. That sections one to twenty-four, both inclusive, of an Act entitled "An Act to reduce taxation, to provide revenue for the Government, and for other purposes," which became a law on the twenty-eighth day of August, eighteen hundred and ninety-four, and all acts and parts of acts inconsistent with the provisions of this Act, are hereby repealed, said repeal to take effect on and after the passage of this Act, * * *.

The quoted provisions of article III of the Jay Treaty of 1794 were, as we have heretofore stated, self-executing. The act of March 2, 1799, section 105, was therefore not requisite to give the provisions of said article III full force and effect, but was only confirmatory of the rights granted by said treaty.

The trial court relied strongly upon McCandless v. United States, supra, decided March 9, 1928. In that case, which involved a writ of habeas corpus, a full-blooded Indian of the Iroquois tribe, born in Canada, crossed the border line from Canada and was arrested on complaint of the Commissioner of Immigration for an alleged violation of law in entering the United States without complying with the immigration laws. He was ordered deported, whereupon he sued out a writ of habeas corpus. The United States District Court granted the writ and discharged the petitioner. The Circuit Court, speaking through Buffington, Circuit Judge, affirmed the order of discharge, holding that the general acts of Congress did not apply to members of the Indian tribes. Article III of the Jay Treaty was brought into question and was discussed at length. The court held that the declaration of the War of 1812 did not end the treaty rights secured to the Indians through the said Jay Treaty, so long as they remained neutral. Finally the court held that the rights granted by said article III were permanent, and were, at most, only suspended during the existence of the War of 1812. Therefore, it was held that the petitioner might pass and repass freely, under and by virtue of the provisions of said article III. This case was not appealed to the Supreme Court. This may have been occasioned by the fact that on April 2, 1928, an act of Congress was approved which provided that the Immigration Act of 1924 should not apply to Indians crossing the international border (45 Stat. 401).

In 1929, the case of Karnuth, Director of Immigration, et al. v. United States ex rel. Albro, came before the Supreme Court, and was decided. (279 U. S. 231.) A writ of habeas corpus had been sued out on behalf of two aliens who were detained by immigration officials, and who had entered this country from Canada. The respondent Mary Cook was a British subject, born in Scotland, who came to Canada in 1924. The respondent Antonio Danelon was a native of Italy who came to Canada in 1923. These persons resided at Niagara Falls, Ontario. The latter claimed to be a Canadian citizen, by reason of his father's naturalization. Both respondents had been crossing back and forth over the boundary line, in pursuance of employment in the United States, for a considerable period before their detention. The Federal District Court sustained the action of the immigration officials, and dismissed the writ. This judgment, on appeal, was reversed by the Circuit Court of Appeals, which held that if the statute were so construed as to exclude the aliens in question, it would conflict with article III of the Jay Treaty of 1794. Certiorari was granted and the case came before the Supreme Court. That court referred to the hereinbefore quoted provisions of said article III of the Jay Treaty. The contention made by Government counsel was that the treaty provision relied on was abrogated by the War of 1812, and it was upon this point that the case was decided. The court, speaking through Mr. Justice Sutherland, expressed the views that the doctrine that war ipso facto annuls treaties of every kind between the warring nations was repudiated by the great weight of modern authority, and that whether the stipulations of a treaty are annulled by war depends upon their intrinsic character. The court cites, as instances of treaty obligations which remain in force during the state of war, such treaties as those of—cession, boundary, and the like; provisions giving the right to citizens or subjects of one of the high contracting powers to continue to hold and transmit land in the territory of the other; and, generally, provisions which represent completed acts.

On the other hand, the court held that treaties of—amity, of alliance, and the like, having a political character, the object of which "is to promote relations of harmony between nation and nation", are generally regarded as belonging to the class of treaty stipulations that are absolutely annulled by war.

Pursuing the matter further, the Supreme Court said, in part:

These cases are cited by respondents and relied upon as determinative of the effect of the War of 1812 upon Article III of the treaty. This view we are unable to accept. Article IX and Article III relate to fundamentally different things. Article IX aims at perpetuity and deals with existing rights, vested and permanent in character, in respect of which, by express provision, neither the owners nor their heirs or assigns are to be regarded as aliens. These are rights which, by their very nature, are fixed and continuing, regardless of war or peace. But the privilege accorded by Article III is one created by the treaty, having no obligatory existence apart from that instrument, dictated by considerations of mutual trust and confidence, and resting upon the presumption that the privilege will not be exercised to unneighborly ends. It is, in no sense, a vested right. It is not permanent in its nature. It is wholly promissory and prospective and necessarily ceases to operate in a state of war, since the passing and repassing of citizens or subjects of one sovereignty into the territory of another is inconsistent with a condition of hostility. See 7 Moore's Digest of International Law, § 1135; 2 Hyde, International Law, § 606. The reasons for the conclusion are obvious—among them, that otherwise the door would be open for treasonable intercourse. And it is easy to see that such freedom of intercourse also may be incompatible with conditions following the termination of the war. Disturbance of peaceful relations between countries occasioned by war, is often so profound that the accompanying bitterness, distrust, and hate indefinitely survive the coming of peace. The causes, conduct, or result of the war may be such as to render a revival of the privilege inconsistent with a new or altered state of affairs. The grant of the privilege connotes the existence of normal peaceful relations. When these are broken by war, it is wholly problematic whether the ensuing peace will be of such character as to justify the neighborly freedom of intercourse which prevailed before the rupture. It follows that the provision belongs to the class of treaties which does not survive war between the high contracting parties, in respect of which, we quote, as opposite, the words of a careful writer on the subject: * * *

These expressions and others of similar import which might be added, confirm our conclusion that the provision of the Jay Treaty now under consideration was brought to an end by the War of 1812, leaving the contracting powers discharged from all obligation in respect thereto, and, in the absence of a renewal, free to deal with the matter as their views of national policy, respectively, might from time to time dictate.

Finally, the judgment of the Circuit Court of Appeals was reversed, and the action of the Commissioner of Immigration was sustained.

The view of the Supreme Court on this interesting question, expressed in the case last cited, was confirmatory of views held by that court from the initiation of our Government. See Society for the Propagation of the Gospel in Foreign Parts v. Town of New Haven and William Wheeler, 8 Wheat. 464 (494).

It was also obviously in conformity with the current of authority both in the United States and England. Moore's International Law Digest, Vol. V, paragraph 779.

It is contended by the appellee that some distinction should be made between the members of an Indian tribe and the immigrants in the Karnuth case, supra. We know of no authority which states or indicates that any such distinction exists, especially as to Indians domiciled in a foreign country. There is no such line of demarcation indicated in the opinion of Mr. Justice Sutherland, hereinbefore quoted. If article III of the Jay Treaty was nullified by the War of 1812, as to Canadian citizens or subjects, it certainly was nullified, so far as Indians residing in Canada were concerned, for, although wards of the Canadian government, they were certainly within the category of citizens or subjects.

We think, therefore, it must be said that so far as the provision under which the appellee here claims is concerned, the War of 1812 ended the right which the appellee now claims of bringing her goods across the border and into the United States without the payment of duty.

However, the War of 1812 did not annul or repeal the tariff act of March 2, 1799, which was still in full force and effect during the entire period of the duration of the war.

The Treaty of Ghent of 1814, article IX, as it will be observed, was not self-executing. It constituted a contract on the part of the United States of America that it would, by the necessary legislation, restore to such tribes or nations, respectively, all the possessions, rights and privileges which they may have enjoyed or been entitled to in one thousand eight hundred and eleven, previous to such hostilities: * * *

So far as we are advised, no such ratifying legislation was ever enacted. Presumably it was not thought necessary to do so, so far as Indian rights are concerned, as at that time the cited provision in the tariff act of March 2, 1799, was in full force and effect, and had been so since its enactment.

Evidently, in the congressional enactments known as the Revised Statutes of 1873-1874 and 1878, Congress still considered said act of March 2, 1799, in full force and effect. It was so noted in marginal notes, and was considered as a part of the statutory law of the land at those times.

The Congress, as has been stated, reenacted the said provision of the act of March 2, 1799, in the tariff act of March 3, 1883, in section 2512 thereof. In the tariff act of October 1, 1890, paragraph 674, a reenactment of this provision was made with changed language; that is, instead of permitting the free entry of peltries of every kind, the language implies that only peltries of Indians should be admitted free of duty, and then under such regulation as the Secretary of the Treasury should prescribe. This was also the purport of the revision of August 27, 1894, paragraph 582.

Thus far the rights of the Indians of Canada to bring their peltries and goods into the United States free of duty were, if we concede the facts and conclusions hereinbefore stated, granted by statute and not by treaty, at least after the declaration of the War of 1812.

In 1897, when a general revision of the import duty laws of the United States was undertaken, apparently there was a change in congressional policy, as the provision for the free entry of peltries and goods of Indians was omitted from that revision, and duties were generally imposed by various provisions of said act upon the goods herein involved.

As will be noted by the hereinbefore quoted portion of section 34 of the tariff act of July 24, 1897, said section expressly repealed certain of the provisions of the tariff act of August 28, 1894, and added this in the repealing act: "* * * all acts and parts of acts inconsistent with the provisions of this Act."

In the protest of the appellee, it will be noted that appellee concedes that said section 34 repealed the hereinbefore mentioned provisions of the tariff acts of March 2, 1799, and of August 28, 1894. Irrespective of this concession, it must be manifest

At the time of the entry of the goods here in question, therefore, there was no provision of the law exempting the said goods of the appellee from duty, but in fact they were especially made dutiable under paragraph 411 of the Tariff Act of 1930, as hereinbefore indicated. There being neither any treaty exemption of appellee's goods from duty, nor any statutory exemption thereof, it follows that they are dutiable, as claimed by the collector.

This being our conclusion, it is unnecessary to decide the other points presented by counsel for the Government.

The judgment of the United States Customs Court is, therefore, reversed.

OPINION OF SOLICITOR FOR THE DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR ON POWERS OF INDIAN TRIBES

SUMMARY

Under Section 16 of the Wheeler-Howard Act (Public No. 383, 73d Congress) the "powers vested in any Indian tribe or tribal council by existing law", are those powers of local self-government which have never been terminated by law or waived by treaty. Among these powers are the following:

1. The power to adopt a form of government, to create various offices and to prescribe the duties thereof, to provide for the manner of election and removal of tribal officers, to prescribe the procedure of the tribal council and subordinate committees or councils, to provide for the salaries or expenses of tribal officers and other expenses of public business, and, in general, to prescribe the forms through which the will of the tribe is to be executed.

2. To define the conditions of membership within the tribe, to prescribe rules for adoption, to classify the members of the tribe and to grant or withhold the right of tribal suffrage and to make all other necessary rules and regulations governing the membership of the tribe so far as may be consistent with existing acts of Congress governing the enrollment and property rights of members.

3. To regulate the domestic relations of its members.

4. To prescribe rules of inheritance with respect to all personal property and all interests in real property other than regular allotments of land.

5. To levy dues, fees, or taxes upon the members of the tribe and upon non-members residing or doing any business of any sort within the reservation, so far as may be consistent with the power of the Commissioner of Indian Affairs over licensed traders.

6. To remove or to exclude from the limits of the reservation non-members of the tribe, excepting authorized Government officials and other persons now occupying reservation lands under lawful authority, and to prescribe appropriate rules and regulations governing such removal and exclusion, and governing the conditions under which non-members of the tribe may come upon tribal land or have dealings with tribal members, providing such acts are consistent with Federal laws governing trade with the Indian tribes.

7. To regulate the use and disposition of all property within the jurisdiction of the tribe, and to make public expenditures of tribal funds, where legal title to such funds lies in the tribe.

8. To administer justice with respect to all disputes and offenses of or among the members of the tribe, other than the ten major crimes reserved to the Federal courts.

9. To prescribe the duties and to regulate the conduct of Federal employees, but only in so far as such powers of supervision may be expressly delegated by the Interior Department.

UNITED STATES DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR,
OFFICE OF THE SOLICITOR,
Washington, October 25, 1934.

The Honorable The SECRETARY OF THE INTERIOR.

MY DEAR MR. SECRETARY: My opinion has been requested on the question of what powers may be secured to an Indian tribe and incorporated in its constitution and bylaws by virtue of the following phrase, contained in section 16 of the Wheeler-Howard Act (Public No. 383, 73d Congress):

In addition to all powers vested in any Indian tribe or tribal council by existing law, the constitution adopted by said tribe shall also vest * * *

The question of what powers are vested in an Indian tribe or tribal council by existing law cannot be answered in detail for each Indian tribe without reference to hundreds of special treaties and special acts of Congress. It is possible, however, on the basis of the reported cases, the written opinions of the various Executive departments, and those statutes of Congress which are of general import, to define the powers which have heretofore been recognized as lawfully within the jurisdiction of an Indian tribe. My answer to the propounded question, then, will be general, and subject to correction for particular tribes in the light of the treaties and statutes affecting such tribe wherever such treaties or statutes contain peculiar provisions restricting or enlarging the general authority of an Indian tribe.

In analyzing the meaning of the phrase in question, I note that the general confirmation of powers already recognized, is found in conjunction with specific grants of the following powers: "To employ legal counsel, the choice of counsel and fixing of fees to be subject to the approval of the Secretary of the Interior; to prevent the sale, disposition, lease, or encumbrance of tribal lands, interests in lands, or other tribal assets without the consent of the tribe; and to negotiate with the Federal, State, and local Governments." Furthermore, when a constitution has been adopted by a majority of the adults of an Indian tribe or tribes residing on the same reservation, the Secretary of the Interior is directed to "advise such tribe or its tribal council of all appropriation estimates or Federal projects for the benefit of the tribe prior to the submission of such estimates to the Bureau of the Budget and the Congress."

I note, also, as relevant to the question of construction, that one of the stated purposes of the Act in question is "to grant certain rights of home rule to Indians."

I assume, finally, that any ambiguity in the phrase which I am asked to interpret ought to be resolved in accordance with:

* * * the general rule that statutes passed for the benefit of dependent Indian tribes or communities are to be liberally construed, doubtful expressions being resolved in favor of the Indians. Alaska Pacific Fisheries v. United States (248 U. S. 78, 89).

And see, to the same effect, Seufert Bros. Co. v. United States (249 U. S. 194); Choate v. Trapp (224 U. S. 665); Jones v. Meehan (175 U. S. 1).

Bearing these considerations in mind, I have no doubt that the phrase "powers vested in any Indian tribe or tribal council by existing law" does not refer merely to those powers which have been specifically granted by the express language of treaties or statutes, but refers rather to the whole body of tribal powers which courts and Congress alike have recognized as properly wielded by Indian tribes, whether by virtue of specific statutory grants of power, or by virtue of the original sovereignty of the tribe in so far as such sovereignty has not been curtailed by restrictive legislation or surrendered by treaties. Had the intent of Congress been to limit the powers of an Indian tribe to those previously granted by special legislation, it would naturally have referred to "existing laws" rather than "existing law" as the source of such powers. The term "law" is a broader term than the term "laws" and includes, as well as "laws", the materials of judicial decisions, treaties, constitutional provisions and practices, and other sources controlling the decisions of courts. Furthermore, it was clearly not the purpose of Congress to narrow the body of tribal powers which have heretofore been recognized by the courts. It would therefore be contrary to the manifest intent of the Act to interpret this phrase in a narrow sense as referring only to express statutory grants of specific powers.

Perhaps the most basic principle of all Indian law, supported by a host of decisions hereinafter analyzed, is the principle that those powers which are lawfully vested in an Indian tribe are not, in general, delegated powers granted by express acts of Congress, but rather inherent powers of a limited sovereignty which has never been extinguished. Each Indian tribe begins its relationship with the Federal Government as a sovereign power, recognized as such in treaty and legislation. The powers of sovereignty have been limited from time to time by special treaties and laws designed to take from the Indian tribes control of matters which, in the judgment of Congress, these tribes could no longer be safely permitted to handle. The statutes of Congress, then, must be examined to determine the limitations of tribal sovereignty rather than to determine its sources or its positive content. What is not expressly limited remains within the domain of tribal sovereignty, and therefore properly falls within the statutory category, "powers vested in any Indian tribe or tribal council by existing law."

The acts of Congress which appear to limit the powers of an Indian tribe are not to be unduly extended by doubtful inference. What was said in the case of In re Mayfield (141 U. S. 107) is still pertinent:

The policy of Congress has evidently been to vest in the inhabitants of the Indian country such power of self-government as was thought to be consistent with the safety of the white population with which they may have come in contact, and to encourage them as far as possible in raising themselves to our standard of civilization. We are bound to recognize and respect such policy and to construe the acts of the legislative authority in consonance therewith. * * * (At pp. 115-116.)

THE DERIVATION AND SCOPE OF INDIAN TRIBAL POWERS

From the earliest years of the Republic the Indian tribes have been recognized as "distinct, independent, political communities" (Worcester v. Georgia, 6 Pet. 515, 559), and, as such, qualified to exercise powers of self-government, not by virtue of any delegation of powers from the Federal Government, but rather by reason of their original tribal sovereignty. Thus treaties and statutes of Congress have been looked to by the courts as limitations upon original tribal powers, or, at most, evidences of recognition of such powers rather than as the direct source of tribal powers. This is but an application of the general principle that "It is only by positive enactments, even in the case of conquered and subdued nations, that their laws are changed by the conqueror" (Wall v. Williamson, 8 Ala. 48, 51, upholding tribal law of divorce).

In point of form it is immaterial whether the powers of an Indian tribe are expressed and exercised through customs handed down by word of mouth or through written constitutions and statutes. In either case the laws of the Indian tribe owe their force to the will of the members of the tribe.

The earliest complete expression of these principles is found in the case of Worcester v. Georgia (6 Pet. 515). In that case the State of Georgia, in its attempts to destroy the tribal government of the Cherokees, had imprisoned a white man living among the Cherokees with the consent of the tribal authorities. The Supreme Court of the United States held that his imprisonment was in violation of the Constitution, that the State had no right to infringe upon the Federal power to regulate intercourse with the Indians, and that the Indian tribes were, in effect, wards of the Federal Government entitled to exercise their own inherent rights of sovereignty so far as might be consistent with Federal law. The court declared, per Marshall, C. J.:

* * * and the settled doctrine of the law of nations is, that a weaker power does not surrender its independence—its right to self-government—by associating with a stronger, and taking its protection. A weak state, in order to provide for its safety, may place itself under the protection of one more powerful, without stripping itself of the right of government, and ceasing to be a state. Examples of this kind are not wanting in Europe. "Tributary and feudatory states," says Vattel, "do not thereby cease to be sovereign and independent states, so long as self-government, and sovereign and independent authority, are left in the administration of the state." At the present day, more than one state may be considered as holding its right of self-government under the guarantee and protection of one or more allies.

The Cherokee nation then, is a distinct community, occupying its own territory, with boundaries accurately described, in which the laws of Georgia can have no force, and which the citizens of Georgia have no right to enter, but with the assent of the Cherokees themselves, or in conformity with treaties, and with the acts of congress. The whole intercourse between the United States and this nation, is, by our constitution and laws, vested in the government of the United States. The act of the state of Georgia, under which the plaintiff in error was prosecuted, is, consequently void, and the judgment a nullity. * * * (At pp. 560-561.)

In the recent case of Patterson v. Council of Seneca Nation (245 N. Y. 433, 157 N. E. 734) the New York Court of Appeals gave careful consideration to the present status of the Seneca tribe and of its legislative and judicial organs of government. Reviewing the relevant Federal cases, the court reached the conclusion that the powers which the Seneca Council and the Seneca Peacemakers' Court sought to exercise were powers derived from the sovereignty of the Seneca Nation, and that no act of New York State could diminish this sovereignty although proper legislation, enacted at the request of the Indians themselves, might supplement the provisions of the tribal constitution. After reviewing the relevant State legislation, the court declared:

* * * Thus did the Seneca Nation, far from abdicating its sovereign powers, set up a strong central government, distribute all governmental powers among three departments, empower a legislative body to be called the "Councillors of the Seneca Nation" to make necessary laws, create a president to execute them, and establish a Peacemakers' Court and a Surrogate's Court to interpret the laws of the Nation and decide causes. Thus did the Legislature of the state of New York twice approve of the Constitution adopted and the government set up. It was not accurate to say, therefore, that the state of New York in the year 1849 "assumed governmental control" of the Indians. On the contrary, in that year and subsequently, by its approval of the Indian Constitution in its original and amended form, the state of New York acknowledged the Seneca Indians to be a separate nation, a self-governing people, having a central government with appropriate departments to make laws, to administer and to interpret them. * * *

The force of the Seneca Constitution, the court found, derived not from the sovereignty of New York State, but from the original sovereignty of the Seneca Nation:

Various statutes passed by the New York Legislature in relation to the Indians are now embodied in the "Indian Law." Article 4 of that law is entitled "The Seneca Indians." It doubtless embodies the statutes passed pursuant to the request of the Seneca Nation contained in its Constitution of 1848. This article purports to set up a government for the Seneca Nation, consisting of three departments, exactly as provided in the Indian Constitution. It must be held, however, that the Indian Nation itself created these departments and the system of government set up by its Constitution, the force of which had been expressly acknowledged by the New York Legislature. It purported to set up a Peacemakers' Court. The source of jurisdiction of that court, however, was the Indian Constitution, not the Indian Law. Thus, in Mulkins v. Snow, supra, this court said:

"The Peacemakers' Court is not a mere statutory local court of inferior jurisdiction. It is an Indian court, which has been recognized and given strength and authority by statute. It does not owe its existence to the state statute and is only in a qualified sense a state court." * * *

* * * * *
The respondent argues that the jurisdiction of the Peacemakers' Court is limited by the Indian Law (section 46) to "matters, disputes, and controversies between any Indians residing upon such reservation" which may arise upon "contracts or for wrongs." We answer that the Peacemakers' Court is the creation not of the state but of the Indian Constitution; that by such Constitution, as amended in 1898, the Peacemakers' Courts are given "exclusive jurisdiction in all civil causes arising between individual Indians residing on said reservations, except those which the Surrogate's Courts have jurisdiction of", without reference to "contracts" or to "wrongs". The Indian Law does not deny comprehensive jurisdiction; it merely fails to use terms apparently bestowing it. The Indian Constitution does bestow it. * * *

Thus the doctrine first laid down by Chief Justice Marshall in the early years of the Republic was reaffirmed but a few years ago with undiminished vigor by the New York Court of Appeals.

The whole course of judicial decision on the nature of Indian tribal powers is marked by adherence to three fundamental principles: An Indian tribe possesses, in the first instance, all the powers of any sovereign State. Conquest renders the tribe subject to the legislative power of the United States and, in substance, terminates the external powers of sovereignty of the tribe,¹ e. g., its power to enter into treaties with foreign nations, but does not by itself affect the internal sovereignty of the tribe, i. e., its powers of local self-government. These powers are subject to be qualified by treaties and by express legislation of Congress, but save as thus expressly qualified, full powers of internal sovereignty are vested in the Indian tribes and in their duly constituted organs of government.

A most striking affirmation of these principles is found in the case of Talton v. Mayes (163 U. S. 376). The question was presented in that case whether the Fifth Amendment of the Federal Constitution operated as a limitation upon the legislation of the Cherokee Nation. A law of the Cherokee Nation authorized a grand jury of five persons to institute criminal proceedings. A person indicted under this procedure and held for trial in the Cherokee courts sued out a writ of habeas corpus, alleging that the law in question violated the Fifth Amendment to the Constitution of the United States, since a grand jury of five was not a grand jury within the contemplation of the Fifth Amendment. The Supreme Court held that the Fifth Amendment applied only to the acts of the Federal Government; that the sovereign powers of the Cherokee Nation, although recognized by the Federal Government, were not created by the Federal Government; and that the judicial authority of the Cherokees was, therefore, not subject to the limitations imposed by the bill of rights:

The question, therefore, is, does the Fifth Amendment to the Constitution apply to the local legislation of the Cherokee nation so as to require all prosecutions for offences committed against the laws of that nation to be initiated by a grand jury organized in accordance with the provisions of that amendment. The solution of this question involves an inquiry as to the nature and origin of the power of local government exercised by the Cherokee nation and recognized to exist in it by the treaties and statutes above referred to. Since the case of Barron v. Baltimore, 7 Pet. 243, it has been settled that the Fifth Amendment to the Constitution of the United States is a limitation only upon the powers of the General Government, that is, that the amendment operates solely on the Constitution itself by qualifying the powers of the National Government which the Constitution called into being.

The case in this regard therefore depends upon whether the powers of local government exercised by the Cherokee nation are Federal powers created by and springing from the Constitution of the United States, and hence controlled by the Fifth Amendment to that Constitution, or whether they are local powers not created by the Constitution, although subject to its general provisions and the paramount authority of Congress. The repeated adjudications of this court have long since answered the former question in the negative. In Cherokee Nation v. Georgia, 5 Pet. 1, which involved the right of the Cherokee nation to maintain an original bill in this court as a foreign State, which was ruled adversely to that right, speaking through Mr. Chief Justice Marshall, this court said (p. 16):

"Is the Cherokee nation a foreign State in the sense in which that term is used in the Constitution? The counsel for the plaintiffs have maintained the affirmative of this proposition with great earnestness and ability. So much of the argument as was intended to prove the character of the Cherokees as a State, as a distinct political society, separated from others, capable of managing its own affairs and governing itself, has, in the opinion of a majority of the judges, been completely successful. They have been uniformly treated as a State from the settlement of our country. The numerous treaties made with them by the United States recognize them as a people capable of maintaining the relations of peace and war, of being responsible in their political character for any violation of their engagements or for any aggression committed on the citizens of the United States by any individual of their community. Laws have been enacted in the spirit of these treaties. The acts of our government plainly recognize the Cherokee nation as a State, and the courts are bound by those acts."

It cannot be doubted, as said in Worcester v. The State of Georgia, 6 Pet. 515, 559, that prior to the formation of the Constitution treaties were made with the Cherokee tribes by which their autonomous existence was recognized. And in that case Chief Justice Marshall also said (p. 559):

"The Indian nations had always been considered as distinct, independent political communities, retaining their original natural rights. * * * The very term 'nation,' so generally applied to them, means a 'people distinct from others.' The Constitution, by declaring treaties already made, as well as those to be made, to be the supreme law of the land, has adopted and sanctioned the previous treaties with the Indian nations, and consequently admits their rank among those powers who are capable of making treaties."

In reviewing the whole subject in Kagama v. United States, 118 U. S. 375, this court said (p. 381): "With the Indians themselves these relations are equally difficult to define. They were, and always have been, regarded as having a semi-independent position when they preserved their tribal relations; not as States, not as nations, not as possessed of the full attributes of sovereignty, but as a separate people with the power of regulating their internal and social relations, and thus far not brought under the laws of the Union, or of the State within whose limits they resided."

True it is that in many adjudications of this court the fact has been fully recognized, that although possessed of these attributes of local self government, when exercising their tribal functions, all such rights are subject to the supreme legislative authority of the United States. Cherokee Nation v. Kansas Railway Co., 135 U. S. 641, where the cases are fully reviewed. But the existence of the right in Congress to regulate the manner in which the local powers of the Cherokee nation shall be exercised does not render such local powers Federal powers arising from and created by the Constitution of the United States. It follows that as the powers of local self government enjoyed by the Cherokee nation existed prior to the Constitution, they are not operated upon by the Fifth Amendment, which, as we have said, had for its sole object to control the powers conferred by the Constitution on the National Government. * * * (At pp. 382-384.)

And see, to the same effect, Ex parte Tiger (2 Ind. T. 41, 47 S. W. 304). It is recognized, of course, that those provisions of the Federal Constitution which are completely general in scope, such as the Thirteenth Amendment, apply to the members of Indian tribes as well as to all other inhabitants of the nation. In re Sah Quah (31 Fed. 327).

Added recognition of the sovereign character of an Indian tribe is found in the case of Turner v. United States and Creek Nation (51 Ct. Cls. 125, aff'd 248 U. S. 354). Rejecting a claim against the Creek Nation based upon the allegedly illegal acts of groups of Indians in destroying the fence of a cattle company, the Court of Claims declared:

* * * we must apply the rule of law applicable to established governments under similar conditions. It is a familiar rule that in the absence of a statute declaring a liability therefor neither the sovereign nor the governmental subdivisions, such as counties or municipalities, are responsible to the party injured in his person or estate by mob violence. * * * (At p. 153.)

An extreme application of the doctrine of tribal sovereignty is found in the case of Ex parte Crow Dog (109 U. S. 556), in which it was held that the murder of one Sioux Indian by another upon an Indian reservation was not within the criminal jurisdiction of any court of the United States, but that only the Indian tribe itself could punish the offense.

The contention that the United States courts had jurisdiction in a case of this sort was based upon the language of a treaty with the Sioux, rather than upon considerations applicable generally to the various Indian tribes. The most important of the treaty clauses upon which the claim of Federal jurisdiction was based provided:

And Congress shall, by appropriate legislation, secure to them an orderly government; they shall be subject to the laws of the United States, and each individual shall be protected in his rights of property, person, and life. (At p. 568.)

Commenting upon this clause, the Supreme Court declared:

It is equally clear, in our opinion, that these words can have no such effect as that claimed for them. The pledge to secure to these people, with whom the United States was contracting as a distinct political body, an orderly government, by appropriate legislation thereafter to be framed and enacted, necessarily implies, having regard to all the circumstances attending the transaction, that among the arts of civilized life, which it was the very purpose of all these arrangements to introduce and naturalize among them, was the highest and best of all, that of self-government, the regulation by themselves of their own domestic affairs, the maintenance of order and peace among their own members by the administration of their own laws and customs. They were nevertheless to be subject to the laws of the United States, not in the sense of citizens, but, as they had always been, as wards subject to a guardian; not as individuals, constituted members of the political community of the United States, with a voice in the selection of representatives and the framing of the laws, but as a dependent community who were in a state of pupilage, advancing from the condition of a savage tribe to that of a people, who, through the discipline of labor and by education, it was hoped might become a self-supporting and self-governed society. * * * (At pp. 568-569.)

In finally rejecting the argument for Federal jurisdiction the Supreme Court declared:

* * * It is a case where, against an express exception in the law itself, that law, by argument and inference only, is sought to be extended over aliens and strangers; over the members of a community separated by race, by tradition, by the instincts of a free through savage life, from the authority and power which seeks to impose upon them the restraints of an external and unknown code, and to subject them to the responsibilities of civil conduct, according to rules and penalties of which they could have no previous warning; which judges them by a standard made by others and not for them, which takes no account of the conditions which should except them from its exactions, and makes no allowance for their inability to understand it. (At p. 571.)

The force of the decision in Ex parte Crow Dog was not weakened, although the scope of the decision was limited, by subsequent legislation which withdrew from the rule of tribal sovereignty a list of seven major crimes, only recently extended to ten.¹ Over these specified crimes jurisdiction has been vested in the Federal courts. Over all other crimes, including such serious crimes as kidnaping, attempted murder, receiving stolen goods, and forgery, jurisdiction resides not in the courts of Nation or State but only in the Indian tribe itself.

We shall defer the question of the exact scope of tribal jurisdiction for more detailed consideration at a later point. We are concerned for the present only in analyzing the basic doctrine of tribal sovereignty. To this doctrine the case of Ex parte Crow Dog contributes not only an intimation of the vast and important content of criminal jurisdiction inherent in tribal sovereignty, but also an example of the consistent manner in which the United States Supreme Court has opposed the efforts of lower courts and administrative officials to infringe upon tribal sovereignty and to assume tribal prerogatives without statutory justification. The legal powers of an Indian tribe, measured by the decisions of the highest courts, are far more extensive than the powers which most Indian tribes have been actually permitted by omnipresent officials to exercise in their own right.

The doctrine of tribal sovereignty is well summarized in the following passage in the case of In Re Sah Quah (31 Fed. 327):

From the organization of the government to the present time, the various Indian tribes of the United States have been treated as free and independent within their respective territories, governed by their tribal laws and customs, in all matters pertaining to their internal affairs, such as contracts and the manner of their enforcement, marriage, descents, and the punishment for crimes committed against each other. They have been excused from all allegiance to the municipal laws of the whites as precedents or otherwise in relation to tribal affairs, subject, however, to such restraints as were from time to time deemed necessary for their own protection, and for the protection of the whites adjacent to them. Cherokee Nat. v. Georgia, 5 Pet. 1, 16, 17; Jackson v. Goodell, 20 Johns, 193. (At p. 329.)

And in the case of Anderson v. Mathews (174 Cal. 537, 163 Pac. 902), it was said:

* * * The Indian tribes recognized by the Federal government are not subject to the laws of the State in which they are situated. They are under the control and protection of the United States, but they retain the right of local self-government, and they regulate and control their own local affairs and rights of persons and property, except as Congress has otherwise specially provided by law. * * * (At 163 Pac. 905.)

See, also, to the same effect, Story's Commentaries, Sec. 1099; 3 Kent's Commentaries (14th ed.) 383-386.

The acknowledgment of tribal sovereignty or autonomy by the courts of the United States has not been a matter of lip service to a venerable but outmoded theory. The doctrine has been followed through the most recent cases, and from time to time carried to new implications. Moreover, it has been administered by the courts in a spirit of whole-hearted sympathy and respect. The painstaking analysis by the Supreme Court of tribal laws and constitutional provisions in the Cherokee Intermarriage Cases (203 U. S. 706) is typical, and exhibits a degree of respect proper to the laws of a sovereign state. If verbal recognition is needed, there is the glowing tribute which Judge Nott pays to this same Cherokee Constitution in the case of Journeycake v. Cherokee Nation and United States (28 Ct. Cls. 281, 317-318):

The constitution of the Cherokees was a wonderful adaptation to the circumstances and conditions of the time, and to a civilization that was yet to come. It was framed and adopted by a people some of whom were still in the savage state, and the better portion of whom had just entered upon that stage of civilization which is characterized by industrial pursuits; and it was framed during a period of extraordinary turmoil and civil discord, when the greater part of the Cherokee people had just been driven by military force from their mountains and valleys in Georgia, and been brought by enforced immigration into the country of the Western Cherokees; when a condition of anarchy and civil war reigned in the territory—a condition which was to continue until the two branches of the nation should be united under the treaty of 1846 (27 C. Cls. R., 1); yet for more than half a century it has met the requirements of a race steadily advancing in prosperity and education and enlightenment so well that it has needed, so far as they are concerned, no material alteration or amendment, and deserves to be classed among the few great works of intelligent statesmanship which outlive their own time and continue through succeeding generations to assure the rights and guide the destinies of men. And it is not the least of the successes of the constitution of the Cherokees that the judiciary of another nation are able, with entire confidence in the clearness and wisdom of its provisions, to administer it for the protection of Cherokee citizens and the maintenance of their personal and political rights. (At pp. 317-318.)

The sympathy of the courts towards the independent efforts of Indian tribes to administer the institutions of self-government has led to the doctrine that Indian laws and statutes are to be interpreted not in accordance with the technical rules of the common law, but in the light of the traditions and circumstances of the Indian people. An attempt in the case of Ex parte Tiger (47 S. W. 304, 2 Ind. T. 41) to construe the language of the Creek Constitution in a technical sense was met by the appropriate judicial retort:

If the Creek Nation derived its system of jurisprudence through the common law, there would be much plausibility in this reasoning. But they are strangers to the common law.¹ They derive their jurisprudence from an entirely different source, and they are as unfamiliar with common-law terms and definitions as they are with Sanskrit or Hebrew. With them, "to indict" is to file a written accusation charging a person with a crime.

So, too, in the case of McCurtain v. Grady (1 Ind. T. 107, 38 S. W. 65) the court had occasion to note that:

The Choctaw constitution was not drawn by geologists or for geologists, or in the interests of science, or with scientific accuracy. It was framed by plain people, who have agreed among themselves what meaning should be attached to it, and the courts should give effect to that interpretation which its framers intended it should have.

The realm of tribal autonomy which has been so carefully respected by the courts, has been implicitly confirmed by Congress in a host of statutes providing that various administrative acts of the President or the Interior Department shall be done only with the consent of the Indian tribe or its chiefs or council.

Thus, U. S. Code, title 25, section 63, provides that the President may "consolidate one or more tribes, and abolish such agencies as are thereby rendered unnecessary," but that such action may be undertaken only "with the consent of the tribes to be affected thereby, expressed in the usual manner."

Section 111 of the same title provides that payments of moneys and distribution of goods for the benefit of any Indians or Indian tribes shall be made either to the heads of families and individuals directly entitled to such moneys or goods or else to the chiefs of the tribe, for the benefit of the tribe, or to persons appointed by the tribe for the purpose of receiving such moneys or goods. This section finally provides that such moneys or goods "by consent of the tribe" may be applied directly by the Secretary to purposes conducive to the happiness and prosperity of the tribe.

The President may, at the request of any Indian tribe, to which an annuity is payable in money, cause the same to be paid in goods, purchased as provided in section 91.

Section 140 of the same title provides that specific appropriations for the benefit of Indian tribes may be diverted to other uses "with the consent of said tribes, expressed in the usual manner."

Other statutory provisions of general import, confirming or delegating specific powers to the Indian tribes or their officers, are: U. S. Code, title 25, section 48, section 130, section 132, section 159, section 162, section 184, section 218, section 225, section 229, section 371, section 397, section 398, section 402. These latter provisions are discussed later under relevant headings.

The whole course of Congressional legislation with respect to the Indians has been based upon a recognition of tribal autonomy, qualified only where the need for other types of governmental control has become clearly manifest. As was said in a report of the Senate Judiciary Committee (prior to the enactment of U. S. Code, title 18, sec. 548): "Their right of self-government, and to administer justice among themselves, after their rude fashion, even to inflicting the death penalty, has never been questioned." (Sen. Rep. No. 268, 41st Congress, 3d session.)

It is a fact that State governments and administrative officials have frequently trespassed upon the realm of tribal autonomy, presuming to govern the Indian tribes through State law or departmental regulation or arbitrary administrative fiat, but these trespasses have not impaired the vested legal powers of local self-government which have been recognized again and again when these trespasses have been challenged by an Indian tribe. "Power and authority rightfully conferred do not necessarily cease to exist in consequence of long non-user." (United States ex rel. Standing Bear v. Crook, 5 Dill. 453, 460.) The Wheeler-Howard Act, by affording statutory recognition of these powers of local self-government and administrative assistance in developing adequate mechanisms for such government, may reasonably be expected to end the conditions that have in the past led the Interior Department and various State agencies to deal with matters that are properly within the legal competence of the Indian tribes themselves.

Neither the allotting of land in severalty nor the granting of citizenship has destroyed the tribal relationship upon which local autonomy rests. Only through the laws or treaties of the United States, or administrative acts authorized thereunder, can tribal existence be terminated. As was said in the case of United States v. Boylan (265 Fed.

165) with reference to certain New York Indians over whom State courts had attempted to exercise jurisdiction:

* * * Congress alone has the right to say when the guardianship over the Indians may cease U. S. v. Nice, 241 U. S. 591, 36 Sup. Ct. 696, 60 L. Ed. 1192; Tiger v. Western Inv. Co., 221 U. S. 286, 31 Sup. Ct. 578, 55 L. Ed. 738. Accordingly it has been held that it is for Congress to say when the tribal existence shall be deemed to have terminated, and Congress must so express its intent in relation thereto in clear terms. Until such legislation by Congress, even a grant of citizenship does not terminate the tribal status or relieve the Indian from the guardianship of the government. U. S. v. Nice, 241 U. S. 591, 36 Sup. Ct. 696, 60 L. Ed. 1192. * * * (At p. 171.)

The court concludes:

* * * The right of self-government has never been taken from them. * * *

At all times the rights which belong to self-government have been recognized as vested in these Indians. * * * (At p. 173.)

In the case of Farrell v. United States (110 Fed. 942), the effect of allotment in severalty and of the grant of citizenship was considered, and the court declared:

* * * The agreement to maintain the agent and the retention and exercise of the power to control the liquor traffic are not inconsistent, as we have seen with the allotment of the lands in severalty or with the grant to the allottees of the immunities and privileges of citizenship. Neither the act of 1887 nor any other act of congress or treaty with these Indians required those who selected allotments and received patents and the privileges and immunities of citizenship to serve their tribal relation, or to surrender any of their rights as members of their tribes, as a condition of the grant, so that after their allotments, as before, their tribal relation continued. And finally the legislative and executive departments of the government to which the subject-matters of the relations of the Indians and their tribes to the United States, and the regulation of the commerce with them, has been specially intrusted, have uniformly held that congress retained, and have constantly exercised, the power to regulate intercourse with these Indians, and to prohibit the traffic in intoxicating liquors with them, since these patents issued, to the same extent as before their lands were allotted in severalty. It is the settled rule of the judicial department of the government, in ascertaining the relations of Indian tribes and their members to the nation, to follow the action of the legislative and executive departments, to which the determination of these questions has been especially intrusted. U. S. v. Holliday, 3 Wall. 407, 419, 18 L. Ed. 182; U. S. v. Earl (C. C.) 17 Fed. 75, 78. (At p. 951.)

And in the case of United States v. Holliday (3 Wall. 407), the Supreme Court declared:

In reference to all matters of this kind, it is the rule of this court to follow the action of the executive and other political departments of the government, whose more special duty is to determine such affairs. If by them those Indians are recognized as a tribe, this court must do the same. (At p. 419.)

And see, to the same effect, The Kansas Indians (5 Wall. 737, 756); Yakima Joe v. To-is-lap (191 Fed. 516); United States v. Flournoy Live-Stock, etc. Co. (71 Fed. 576).

There are, of course, a number of instances in which tribal autonomy has been terminated by act of Congress or by treaty. See, for example, Wiggan v. Conolly (163 U. S. 56); United States v. Elm (2 Cin. Law Bull. 307, 25 Fed. Cas. No. 15,048); and cf. act of April 26, 1906 (34 Stat. 137). But to accomplish this, the provisions of treaty or statute must be positive and unambiguous. (Morrow v. Blevins, 23 Tenn. 223; Jones v. Meehan, 175 U. S. 1.)

Save in such instances, the internal sovereignty of the Indian tribes continues, unimpaired by the changes that have occurred in the manners and customs of Indian life, and, for the future, remains a most powerful vehicle for the movement of the Indian tribes towards a richer social existence.

THE POWER OF AN INDIAN TRIBE TO DEFINE ITS FORM OF GOVERNMENT

Since any group of men, in order to act as a group, must act through forms which give the action the character and authority of group action, an Indian tribe must, if it has any power at all, have the power to prescribe the forms through which its will may be registered. The first element of sovereignty, and the last which may survive successive statutory limitations of Indian tribal power, is the power of the tribe to determine and define its own form of government. Such power includes the right to define the powers and duties of its officials, the manner of their appointment or election, the manner of their removal, the rules they are to observe in their capacity as officials, and the forms and procedures which are to attest the authoritative character of acts done in the name of the tribe. These are matters which may be determined even in a modern civilized nation by unwritten custom as well as by written law. The controlling character of the Indian tribe's basic forms and procedures has been recognized by State and Federal courts, whether evidenced by written statute or by the testimony of tradition.

Thus, in the case of Pueblo of Santa Rosa v. Fall (273 U. S. 315) the Supreme Court recognized that by the traditional law of the Pueblo the "Captain" of the Pueblo would have no authority to convey to attorneys the claims of the Pueblo or to authorize suit thereon, and that such acts without the approval of a general council would be null and void.

To the same effect, see 7 Op. Atty. Gen. 142 (1855).

In 5 Op. Atty. Gen. 79 (1849) the opinion is expressed that a release to be executed by the "Creek Indians" would be valid "provided, that the chiefs and headmen executing it are such chiefs and headmen and constitute the whole or a majority of the council of the Creek Nation."

In Rawlins and Presbey v. United States (23 Ct. Cls. 106) the court finds that a chief's authority to act in the name of the tribe has been established by the tacit assent of the tribe and by their acceptance of the benefits of his acts.

In the case of Mount Pleasant v. Gansworth (271 N. Y. Supp. 78) it is held that the Tuscarora tribal council has never been endowed with probate jurisdiction, that no other body has been set up by the tribe to exercise probate powers, and hence that State courts may step in to remedy the lack. Whether or not the final conclusion is justified, in the light of such cases as Patterson v. Council of Seneca Nation (245 N. Y. 443; 157 N. E. 734), the opinion of the court indicates at least that the limitations which a tribe may impose upon the jurisdiction of its own governmental bodies and officers will be respected.

Not only must officers presuming to act in the name of an Indian tribe show that their acts fall within their allotted function and authority, but likewise the procedural formalities which tradition or ordinance require must be followed in executing an act within the acknowledged jurisdiction of the officer or set of officers.

In 19 Op. Atty. Gen. 179 (1888) it is held that a decree of divorce which has not been signed by a judge or clerk of court, as required by the laws of the Choctaw Nation, is invalid.

In re Darch (265 N. Y. Supp. 86) involves action of a special tribal council meeting to which only a few of the members of the council were invited. The action was declared invalid on the ground that the council's rules of procedure required due notice of a special meeting to be given to all the members of the council. Based on an analogy taken from corporation law, the rule was laid down that violation of this requirement rendered acts of the council invalid.

In 25 Op. Atty. Gen. 308 (1904) it appeared that certain sums were to be paid to attorneys "only after the tribal authorities, thereunto duly and specifically authorized by the tribe, shall have signed a writing * * *." By resolution of the tribe the business committee had been authorized to sign the writing in question. The signatures of the business committee, in the opinion of the Attorney General, met the statutory requirement:

The proceedings of the council were regular, and the motions were carried by a sufficient number of voters, though less than a majority of those present. See State v. Vanodel (131 Ind. 388); Attorney General v. Shepard (62 N. H. 383); and Mount v. Parker (32 N. J. Law, 341).

The doctrine of de facto officers has been applied to an Indian tribe, in accordance with the rule applied to other governmental agencies, so as to safeguard from collateral attack acts and documents signed by officers acting under color of authority, though subject, in proper proceedings, to removal from office. See Nofire v. United States (164 U. S. 657); Seneca Nation v. John (16 N. Y. Supp. 40).

Based upon the analogy of the constitutional law of the United States, the doctrine has been applied to Indian statutes and constitutional provisions that statutes deemed by the courts to be violative of constitutional limitations are to be regarded as void. See Whitmire, Trustee, v. Cherokee Nation (30 Ct. Cls. 138); Delaware Indians v. Cherokee Nation (38 Ct. Cls. 234); 19 Op. Atty. Gen. 229 (1889).

Statutes of Congress have recognized that the authority of an Indian tribe is customarily wielded by chiefs and headmen.¹

Other congressional legislation has specifically recognized the propriety of paying salaries to tribal officers out of tribal funds.²

THE POWER OF AN INDIAN TRIBE TO DETERMINE ITS MEMBERSHIP

The courts have consistently recognized that in the absence of express legislation by Congress to the contrary, an Indian tribe has complete authority to determine all questions of its own membership.³ It may thus by usage or written law determine under what conditions persons of mixed blood shall be considered members of the tribe. It may provide for special formalities of recognition, and it may adopt such rules as seem suitable to it, to regulate the abandonment of membership, the adoption of non-Indians or Indians of other tribes, and the types of membership or citizenship which it may choose to recognize. The completeness of this power receives statutory recognition in U. S. Code, Title 25, Sec. 184, which provides that the children of a white man and an Indian woman by blood shall be considered members of the tribe if, and only if, "said Indian woman was * * * recognized by the tribe."⁴ The power of the Indian tribes in this field is limited only by the various statutes of Congress defining the membership of certain tribes for purposes of allotment or for other purposes, and by the statutory authority given to the Secretary of the Interior to promulgate a final tribal roll for the purpose of dividing and distributing tribal funds.⁵

The power of an Indian tribe to determine questions of its own membership arises necessarily from the character of an Indian tribe as a distinct political entity. In the case of Patterson v. Council Of Seneca Nation (245 N. Y. 433; 157 N. E. 734), the Court of Appeals of New York reviewed the many decisions of that court and of the Supreme Court of the United States recognizing the Indian tribe as a "distinct political society, separated from others, capable of managing its own affairs and governing itself" (per Marshall, C. J., in Cherokee Nation v. Georgia, 5 Pet. 1), and, in reaching the conclusion that mandamus would not lie to compel the plaintiff's enrollment by the defendant council, declared:

Unless these expressions, as well as similar expressions many times used by many courts in various jurisdictions, are mere words of flattery designed to soothe Indian sensibilities, unless the last vestige of separate national life has been withdrawn from the Indian tribes by encroaching state legislation, then, surely, it must follow that the Seneca Nation of Indians has retained for itself that prerequisite to their self-preservation and integrity as a nation, the right to determine by whom its membership shall be constituted.

* * * * *

It must be the law, therefore, that, unless the Seneca Nation of Indians and the state of New York enjoy a relation inter se peculiar to themselves, the right to enrollment of the petitioner, with its attending property rights, depends upon the laws and usages of the Seneca Nation and is to be determined by that Nation for itself, without interference or dictation from the Supreme Court of the state.

"Withholding of moneys or goods on account of intoxicating liquors. No annuities, or moneys, or goods, shall be paid or distributed to Indians * * * until the chiefs and headmen of the tribe shall have pledged themselves to use all their influence and to make all proper exertions to prevent the introduction and sale of such liquor in their country."

U. S. Code, Title 25, Sec. 132:

"Mode of distribution of goods. Whenever goods and merchandise are delivered to the chiefs of a tribe, for the tribe, such goods and merchandise shall be turned over by the agent or superintendent of such tribe to the chiefs in bulk, and in the original package as nearly as practicable, and in the presence of the headmen of the tribe, if practicable, to be distributed to the tribe by the chiefs in such manner as the chiefs may deem best, in the presence of the agent or superintendent. (R. S. Sec. 2090)"

² U. S. Code, Title 25, Sec. 162, after providing generally for the segregation, deposit and investment of tribal funds, contains the following qualification:

"And provided further, That any part of tribal funds required for support of schools or pay of tribal officers shall be excepted from segregation or deposit as herein authorized and the same shall be expended for the purposes aforesaid."

⁵ U. S. Code, Title 25, Sec. 163:

"Roll of membership of Indian tribes. The Secretary of the Interior is authorized, wherever in his discretion such action would be for the best interest of the Indians, to cause a final roll to be made of the membership of any Indian tribe; such rolls shall contain the ages and quantum of Indian blood, and when approved by the said Secretary are declared to constitute the legal membership of the respective tribes for the purpose of segregating the tribal funds as provided in the preceding section, and shall be conclusive both as to ages and quantum of Indian blood: Provided, That the foregoing shall not apply to the Five Civilized Tribes or to the Osage Tribe of Indians, or to the Chippewa Indians of Minnesota, or the Menominee Indians of Wisconsin. (June 30, 1919, c. 4, sec. 1, 41 Stat. 9.)"

After examining the constitutional position of the Seneca Nation and finding that tribal autonomy has not been impaired by any legislation of the state, the court concludes:

The conclusion is inescapable that the Seneca Tribe remains a separate nation; that its powers of self-government are retained with the sanction of the state; that the ancient customs and usages of the nation except in a few particulars, remain, unabolished, the law of the Indian land; that in its capacity of a sovereign nation the Seneca Nation is not subservient to the orders and directions of the courts of New York state; that, above all, the Seneca Nation retains for itself the power of determining who are Senecas, and in that respect is above interference and dictation.

In the case of Waldron v. United States (143 Fed. 413), it appeared that a woman of five-sixteenths Sioux Indian blood on her mother's side, her father being a white man, had been refused recognition as an Indian by the Interior Department although, by tribal custom, since the woman's mother had been recognized as an Indian, the woman herself was so recognized. The court held that the decision of the Interior Department was contrary to law, declaring:

In this proceeding the court has been informed as to the usages and customs of the different tribes of the Sioux Nation, and has found as a fact that the common law does not obtain among said tribes, as to determining the race to which the children of a white man, married to an Indian woman, belong; but that, according to the usages and customs of said tribes, the children of a white man married to an Indian woman take the race or nationality of the mother.

The same view is maintained in 19 Op. Atty. Gen. 115 (1888), in which it is said:

It was the Indians, and not the United States, that were interested in the distribution of what was periodically coming to them from the United States. It was proper then that they should determine for themselves, and finally, who were entitled to membership in the confederated tribe and to participate in the emoluments belonging to that relation.

The certificate of the chiefs and councillors referred to is possibly as high a grade of evidence as can be procured of the fact of the determination by the chiefs of the right of membership under the treaty of February 23, 1867, and seems to be such as is warranted by the usage and custom of the Government in its general dealings with these people and other similar tribes. (At page 116.)

Western Cherokee Indians v. United States, (27 Ct. Cls. 1, 54);

United States v. Heyfron (two cases) (138 Fed. 964, 968).

In the Cherokee Intermarriage Cases (203 U. S. 76), the Supreme Court of the United States considered the claims of certain white men, married to Cherokee Indians, to participate in the common property of the Cherokee Nation. After carefully examining the constitutional articles and the statutes of the Cherokee Nation, the court reached the conclusion that the claims in question were invalid, since, although the claimants had been recognized as citizens for certain purposes, the Cherokee Nation had complete authority to qualify the rights of citizenship which is offered to its "naturalized" citizens, and had, in the exercise of this authority, provided for the revocation or qualification of citizenship rights so as to defeat the claims of the plaintiffs. The Supreme Court declared (per Fuller, C. J.):

The distinction between different classes of citizens was recognized by the Cherokees in the differences in their intermarriage law, as applicable to the whites and to the Indians of other tribes; by the provision in the intermarriage law that a white man intermarried with an Indian by blood acquires certain rights as a citizen, but no provision that if he marries a Cherokee citizen not of Indian blood he shall be regarded as a citizen at all; and by the provision that if, once having married an Indian by blood, he marries the second time a citizen not by blood, he loses all of his rights as a citizen. And the same distinction between citizens as such and citizens with property rights has also been recognized by Congress in enactments relating to other Indians than the Five Civilized Tribes. Act August 9, 1888, 25 Stat. 392, c. 818; act May 2, 1890, 26 Stat. 96, c. 182; act June 7, 1897, 30 Stat. 90 c. 3. (At page 88.)

* * * The laws and usages of the Cherokees, their earliest history, the fundamental principles, of their national policy, their constitution and statutes, all show that citizenship rested on blood or marriage; that the man who would assert citizenship must establish marriage; that when marriage ceased (with a special reservation in favor of widows or widowers) citizenship ceased; that when an intermarried white married a person having no rights of Cherokee citizenship by blood it was conclusive evidence that the tie which bound him to the Cherokee people was severed and the very basis of his citizenship obliterated. (At page 95.)

See, to the same effect, 19 Op. Atty. Gen. 109 (1888).

An Indian tribe may classify various types of membership and qualify not only the property rights, but the voting rights of certain members. Thus in 19 Op. Atty. Gen. 389 (1888) the view is expressed that a tribe may by law restrict the rights of tribal suffrage, excluding white citizens from voting, although by treaty they are guaranteed rights of "membership".

Similarly, an Indian tribe may revoke rights of membership which it has granted. In Roff v. Burney (168 U. S. 218), the Supreme Court upheld the validity of an act of the Chickasaw legislature depriving a Chickasaw citizen of his citizenship, declaring:

The citizenship which the Chickasaw legislature could confer it could withdraw. The only restriction on the power of the Chickasaw Nation to legislate in respect to its internal affair is that such legislation shall not conflict with the Constitution or laws of the United States, and we know of no provision of such Constitution or laws which would be set at naught by the action of a political community like this in withdrawing privileges of membership in the community once conferred. (At page 222.)

The right of an Indian tribe to make express rules governing the recognition of members, the adoption of new members, the procedure for abandonment of membership, and the procedure for readoption, is recognized in Smith v. Bonifer (154 Fed. 883, aff'd. 166 Fed. 846). In that case the plaintiffs' right to allotments depended upon their membership in a particular tribe. The court held that such membership was demonstrated by the fact of tribal recognition, declaring:

Indian members of one tribe can sever their relations as such, and may form affiliations with another or other tribes. And so they may, after their relations with a tribe has been severed, rejoin the tribe and be again recognized and treated as members thereof, and tribal rights and privileges attach according to the habits and customs of the tribe with which affiliation is presently cast. As to the manner of breaking off and recasting tribal affiliations we are meagerly informed. It was and is a thing, of course, dependent upon the peculiar usages and customs of each particular tribe, and therefore we may assume that no general rule obtains for its regulation.

Now, the first condition presented is that the mother of Philomme was a full-blood Walla Walla Indian. She was consequently a member of the tribe of that name. Was her status changed by marriage to Tawakown, an Iroquois Indian? This must depend upon the tribal usage and customs of the Walla Wallas and the Iroquois. It is said by Hon. William A. Little, Assistant Attorney General, in an opinion rendered the Department of the Interior in a matter involving this very controversy:

"That inheritance among these Indians is through the mother and not through the father, and that the true test in these cases is to ascertain whether parties claiming to be Indians and entitled to allotments have by their conduct expatriated themselves or changed their citizenship."

But we are told that:

"Among the Iroquoian tribes kinship is traced through the blood of the woman only. Kinship means membership in a family; and this in turn constitutes citizenship in the tribe, conferring certain social, political, and religious privileges, duties, and rights, which are denied to persons of alien blood." Handbook of American Indians, edited by Frederick Webb Hodge, Smithsonian Institute, Government Printing Office, 1907.

Marriage, therefore, with Tawakown would not of itself constitute an affiliation on the part of his wife with the Iroquois tribe, of which he was a member, and a renunciation of membership with her own tribe. (At page 886.)

Considering a second marriage of the plaintiff to a white person, the court went on to declare:

But notwithstanding the marriage of Philomme to Smity, and her long residence outside of the limits of the reservation, she was acknowledged by the chiefs of the confederated tribes to be a member of the Walla Walla tribe. From the testimony adduced herein, read in connection with that taken in the case of Hy-yu-tse-mil-kin v. Smith, supra, it appears that Mrs. Smith was advised by Homily and Show-a-way, chiefs, respectively, of the Walla Walla and Cayuse tribes, to come upon the reservation and make selections for allotments to herself and children, and that thereafter she was recognized by both these chiefs, and by Peo, the chief of the Umatillas, as being a member of the Walla Walla tribe. It is true that she was not so recognized at first, but she was finally, and by a general council of the Indians held for the especial purpose of determining the matter. (At page 888.)

Where tribal laws have not expressly provided for some certificate of membership (see 19 Op. Atty. Gen. 115 (1888)), the courts, in cases not clearly controlled by recognized tribal custom, have looked to recognition by the tribal chiefs as a test of tribal membership. Hy-yu-tse-mil-kin v. Smith (194 U. S. 401, 411).

The weight given to tribal action in relation to tribal membership is shown by the case of Nofire v. United States (164 U. S. 657). In that case the jurisdiction of the Cherokee courts in a murder case, the defendants being Cherokee Indians, depended upon whether the deceased, a white man, had been duly adopted by the Cherokee Tribe. Finding evidence of such adoption in the official records of the tribe, the Supreme Court held that such adoption deprived the State court of jurisdiction over the murder and vested such jurisdiction in the tribal courts.

A similar decision was reached in the case of Raymond v. Raymond (83 Fed. 721), in which the jurisdiction of a tribal court over an adopted Cherokee was challenged. The court declared (per Sanborn, J.):

It is conceded that under the laws of that nation the appellee became a member of that tribe, by adoption, through her intermarriage with the appellant. It is settled by the decisions of the supreme court that her adoption into that nation ousted the federal court of jurisdiction over any suit between her and any member of that tribe, and vested the tribal courts with exclusive jurisdiction over every such action. Alberty v. U. S., 162 U. S. 499, 16 Sup. Ct. 864; Nojire v. U. S., 164 U. S. 657, 658, 17 Sup. Ct. 212.

It is of course recognized throughout the cases, that tribal membership is a bilateral relation, depending for its existence not only upon the action of the tribe but also upon the action of the individual concerned. Any member of any Indian tribe is at full liberty to terminate his tribal relationship whenever he so chooses. In the famous case of United States ex rel. Standing Bear v. Crook (5 Dill. 453, 25 Fed. Cases No. 14891), in which an Indian secured a writ of habeas corpus directed against a general of the United States Army, to prevent his removal to Indian territory, the court found that the petitioner, Standing Bear, had severed his relationship with his tribe and was, therefore, not subject to the provisions of any treaties or legislation concerned with the removal of the tribe to Indian Territory. The court declared (per Dundy, J.):

Standing Bear, the principal witness, states that out of five hundred and eighty-one Indians who went from the reservation in Dakota to the Indian Territory, one hundred and fifty-eight died within a year or so, and a great proportion of the others were sick and disabled, caused, in a great measure, no doubt, from change of climate; and to save himself and the survivors of his wasted family, and the feeble remnant of his little band of followers, he determined to leave the Indian Territory and return to his old home, where, to use his own language, "he might live and die in peace, and be buried with his fathers." He also states that he informed the agent of their final purpose to leave, never to return, and that he and his followers had finally, fully, and forever severed his and their connection with the Ponca Tribe of Indians, and had resolved to disband as a tribe, or band, of Indians, and to cut loose from the government, go to work, become self-sustaining, and adopt the habits and customs of a higher civilization. To accomplish what would seem to be a desirable and laudable purpose, all who were able so to do went to work to earn a living. The Omaha Indians, who speak the same language, and with whom many of the Poncas have long continued to intermarry, gave them employment and ground to cultivate, so as to make them self-sustaining. And it was when at the Omaha reservation, and when thus employed, that they were arrested by order of the government, for the purpose of being taken back to the Indian Territory. They claim to be unable to see the justice, or reason, or wisdom, or necessity, of removing them by force from their own native plains and blood relations to a far-off country, in which they can see little but new-made graves opening for their reception. The land from which they fled in fear has no attractions for them. The love of home and native land was strong enough in the minds of these people to induce them to brave every peril to return and live and die where they had been reared. The bones of the dead son of Standing Bear were not to repose in the land they hoped to be leaving forever, but were carefully preserved and protected, and formed a part of what was to them a melancholy procession homeward.

* * * What is here stated in this connection is mainly for the purpose of showing that the relators did all they could to separate themselves from their tribe and to sever their tribal relations, for the purpose of becoming self-sustaining and living without support from the government. This being so, it presents the question as to whether or not an Indian can withdraw from his tribe, sever his tribal relation therewith, and terminate his allegiance thereto, for the purpose of making an independent living and adopting our own civilization.

If Indian tribes are to be regarded and treated as separate but dependent nations, there can be no serious difficulty about the question. If they are not to be regarded and treated as separate, dependent nations, then no allegiance is owing from an individual Indian to his tribe, and he could, therefore, withdraw therefrom at any time. The question of expatriation has engaged the attention of our government from the time of its very foundation. Many heated discussions have been carried on between our own and foreign governments on this great question, until diplomacy has triumphantly secured the right to every person found within our jurisdiction. This right has always been claimed and admitted by our government, and it is now no longer an open question. It can make but little difference, then, whether we accord to the Indian tribes a national character or not, as in either case I think the individual Indian possesses the clear and God given right to withdraw from his tribe and forever live away from it, as though it had no further existence. If the right of expatriation was open to doubt in this country down to the year 1868, certainly since that time no sort of question as to the right can now exist. On the 27th of July of that year Congress passed an act, now appearing as section 1999 of the Revised Statutes, which declares that: "Whereas, the right of expatriation is a natural and inherent right of all people, indispensable to the enjoyment of the rights of life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness; and, whereas, in the recognition of this principle the government has freely received emigrants from all nations, and invested them with the rights of citizenship. * * * Therefore, any declaration, instruction, opinion, order, or decision of any officer of the United States which denies, restricts, impairs, or questions the right of expatriation, is declared inconsistent with the fundamental principles of the republic."

The tribal power recognized in all the foregoing cases is not overthrown by anything said in the case of United States ex rel. West v. Hitchcock (205 U. S. 80). In that case, an adopted member of the Wichita tribe was refused an allotment by the Secretary of the Interior because the Department had never approved his adoption. Since the Secretary, according to the Supreme Court, had unreviewable discretionary authority to grant or deny an allotment even to a member of the tribe by blood, it was unnecessary for the Supreme Court to decide whether refusal of the Interior Department to approve the relator's adoption was within the authority of the Department. The court, however, intimated that the general authority of the Interior Department under Rev. Stat. 463 (U. S. Code, Title 25, Sec. 2),¹ was broad enough to justify a regulation requiring Department approval of adoptions, but hastened to add that since the relator would have no legal right of appeal even if his adoption without Department approval were valid, "it hardly is necessary to pass upon that point."

The power of an Indian tribe to determine its membership is subject to the qualification, however, that in the distribution of tribal funds and other property under the supervision and control of the Federal Government, the action of the tribe is subject to the supervisory authority of the Secretary of the Interior. See United States ex rel. West v. Hitchcock, 205 U. S. 80; Mitchell v. United States, 22 Fed. (2d) 771; United States v. Provoe, 38 Fed. (2d) 799, reversed on other grounds, 283 U. S. 753. See also Wilbur v. United States, 281 U. S. 206. The original power to determine membership, including the regulation of membership by adoption, nevertheless remains with the tribe, and in view of the broad provisions of the Wheeler-Howard Act, it is my opinion that the Secretary of the Interior may in the future define and confine his power of supervision in accordance with the terms of the constitution adopted by the tribe itself and approved by him.

THE POWER OF AN INDIAN TRIBE TO REGULATE DOMESTIC RELATIONS

The Indian tribes have been accorded the widest possible latitude in regulating the domestic relations of their members. Indian custom marriage has been specifically recognized by Federal statute, so far as such recognition is necessary for purposes of inheritance.² Indian custom marriage and divorce has been generally recognized by State and Federal courts for all other purposes. Where Federal law or written laws of the tribe do not cover the subject, the customs and traditions of the tribe are accorded the force of law, but these customs and traditions may be changed by the statutes of the Indian tribes. In defining and punishing offenses against the marriage relationship, the Indian tribe has complete and exclusive authority in the absence of legislation by Congress upon the subject. No law of the State controls the domestic relations of Indians living in tribal relationship. The authority of an Indian tribal council to appoint guardians for incompetents and minors is specifically recognized by statute,³ although this statute at the same time deprives such guardians of the power to administer Federal trust funds.

² U. S. C., Title 25, sec. 371, which provides:

"Descent of land. For the purpose of determining the descent of land to the heirs of any deceased Indian under the provisions of section 348, whenever any male and female Indian shall have cohabited together as husband and wife according to the custom and manner of Indian life the issue of such cohabitation shall be, for the purpose aforesaid, taken and deemed to be the legitimate issue of the Indians so living together * * *"

³ U. S. C., Title 25, sec. 159, which provides:

"Moneys due incompetents or orphans. The Secretary of the Interior is directed to cause settlements to be made with all persons appointed by the Indian councils to receive moneys due to incompetent or orphan Indians, and to require all moneys found due to such incompetent or orphan Indians to be returned to the Treasury; and all moneys so returned shall bear interest at the rate of 6 per centum per annum, until paid by order of the Secretary of the Interior to those entitled to the same. No money shall be paid to any person appointed by any Indian council to receive moneys due to incompetent or orphan Indians, but the same shall remain in the Treasury of the United States until ordered to be paid by the Secretary to those entitled to receive the same, and shall bear 6 per centum interest until so paid." (R. S. sec. 2108.)

The completeness and exclusiveness of tribal authority over matters of domestic relationship is clearly set forth by Mr. Justice VanDevanter in the opinion of the Supreme Court in United States v. Quiver (241 U. S. 602, at 603-605):

At an early period it became the settled policy of Congress to permit the personal and domestic relations of the Indians with each other to be regulated, and offenses by one Indian against the person or property of another Indian to be dealt with, according to their tribal customs and laws. Thus the Indian Intercourse Acts of May 19, 1796, c. 30, 1 Stat. 469, and of March, 1802, c. 13, 2 Stat. 139, provided for the punishment of various offenses by white persons against Indians and by Indians against white persons, but left untouched those by Indians against each other; and the act of June 30, 1834, c. 161, Sec. 25, 4 Stat. 729, 733, while providing that "so much of the laws of the United States as provides for the punishment of crimes committed within any place within the sole and exclusive jurisdiction of the United States shall be in force in the Indian country," qualified its action by saying, "the same shall not extend to crimes committed by one Indian against the person or property of another Indian." That provision with its qualification was later carried into the Revised Statutes as Secs. 2145 and 2146. This was the situation when this court, in Ex parte Crow Dog, 109 U. S. 556, held that the murder of an Indian by another Indian on an Indian reservation was not punishable under the laws of the United States and could be dealt with only according to the laws of the tribe. The first change came when, by the act of March 3, 1885, c. 341, Sec. 9, 23 Stat. 362, 385, now Sec. 328 of the Penal Code, Congress provided for the punishment of murder, manslaughter, rape, assault with intent to kill, assault with a dangerous weapon, arson, burglary and larceny when committed by one Indian against the person or property of another Indian. In other respects the policy remained as before. After South Dakota became a State, Congress, acting upon a partial cession of jurisdiction by that State, c. 106, Laws 1901, provided by the act of February 2, 1903, c. 351, 32 Stat. 793, now Sec. 329 of the Penal Code, for the punishment of the particular offenses named in the act of 1885 when committed on the Indian reservations in that State, even though committed by others than Indians, but this is without bearing here, for it left the situation in respect of offenses by one Indian against the person or property of another Indian as it was after the act of 1885.

We have now referred to all the statutes. There is none dealing with bigamy, polygamy, incest, adultery or fornication, which in terms refers to Indians, these matters always having been left to the tribal customs and laws and to such preventive and corrective measures as reasonably could be taken by the administrative officers.

Carney v. Chapman, 247 U. S. 102;
Boyer v. Dively, 58 Mo. 510;
Johnson v. Dunlap, 68 Okla. 216, 173 Pac. 359;
Cyr v. Walker, 29 Okla. 281, 116 Pac. 931;
Hallowell v. Commons, 210 Fed. 793;
Earl v. Godley, 42 Minn. 361;
Ortley v. Ross, 78 Neb. 339;
People ex rel. La Forte v. Rubin, 98 N. Y. Supp. 787;
Butler v. Wilson, 54 Okla. 229, 153 Pac. 823;
Proctor v. Foster, 107 Okla. 95, 230 Pac. 753;
Davis v. Reeder, 102 Okla. 106, 226 Pac. 880;
Pompey v. King, 101 Okla. 253, 225 Pac. 175;
Buck v. Branson, 34 Okla. 807, 127 Pac. 436;
Johnson v. Johnson, 30 Mo. 72;
Unussee v. McKinney, 270 Pac. 1096 (Okla.); and cf. Connolly v. Woolrich (1867), 11 Lower Can. Jur. 197.

Legal recognition has not been withheld from marriages by Indian custom, even in those cases where Indian custom sanctioned polygamy. As was said in Kobogum v. Jackson Iron Co. (76 Mich. 498, 43 N. W. 602):

* * * The testimony now in this case shows what, as matter of history, we are probably bound to know judicially, that among these Indians polygamous marriages have always been recognized as valid, and have never been confounded with such promiscuous or informal temporary intercourse as is not reckoned as marriage. While most civilized nations in our day very wisely discard polygamy, and it is not probably lawful anywhere among English-speaking nations, yet it is a recognized and valid institution among many nations, and in no way universally unlawful. We must either hold that there can be no valid Indian marriage, or we must hold that all marriages are valid which by Indian usage are so regarded. There is no middle ground which can be taken, so long as our own laws are not binding on the tribes. They did not occupy their territory by our grace and permission, but by a right beyond our control. They were placed by the Constitution of the United States beyond our jurisdiction, and we have no more right to control their domestic usages than those of Turkey or India. * * * We have here marriages had between members of an Indian tribe in tribal relations, and unquestionably good by the Indian rules. The parties were not subject in those relations to the laws of Michigan, and there was no other law interfering with the full jurisdiction of the tribe over personal relations. We cannot interfere with the validity of such marriages without subjecting them to rules of law which never bound them.

See, to the same effect, State v. McKenney (18 Nev. 182, 200).

The jurisdiction of a tribal court over divorce actions is recognized in Raymond v. Raymond (83 Fed. 721); 19 Ops. Atty. Gen. 109 (1888).

THE POWER OF AN INDIAN TRIBE TO GOVERN THE DESCENT AND DISTRIBUTION OF PROPERTY

It is well settled that an Indian tribe has the power to prescribe the manner of descent and distribution of the property of its members, in the absence of contrary legislation by Congress. Such power may be exercised through unwritten customs and usages, or through written laws of the tribe. This power extends to personal property as well as to real property. By virtue of this authority an Indian tribe may restrict the descent of property on the basis of Indian blood or tribal membership, and may provide for the escheat of property to the tribe where there are no recognized heirs. An Indian tribe may, if it so chooses, adopt as its own the laws of the State in which it is situated and may make such modifications in these laws as it deems suitable to its peculiar conditions.

The only general statutes of Congress which restrict the power of an Indian tribe to govern the descent and distribution of property of its members are section 5 of the General Allotment Act (U. S. Code, Title 25, Sec. 348)¹, which provides that allotments of land shall descend "according to the laws of the State or Territory where such land is located", the act of June 25, 1910, c. 431, Sec. 1, 36 Stat. 855 (U. S. Code, Title 25, Sec. 372),² which provides that the Secretary of the Interior shall have unreviewable discretion to determine the heirs of an Indian in ruling upon the inheritance of individual allotments issued under the authority of the General Allotment Law, and section 2 of the same act (U. S. Code, Title 25, Sec. 373),³ which gives the Secretary of the Interior final power to approve and disapprove Indian wills devising restricted property.

These statutes abolished the former tribal power over the descent and distribution of property, with respect to allotments of land made under the General Allotment Act, and rendered tribal rules of testamentary disposition subject to the authority of the Secretary of the Interior. They do not, however, affect interstate succession to personal property or interests in land other than allotments (e. g., possessory interests in land to which title is retained by the tribe). With respect to all property other than allotments of land made under the General Allotment Act, the inheritance laws and customs of the Indian tribe are still of supreme authority.⁴

The authority of an Indian tribe in the matter of inheritance is clearly recognized by the United States Supreme Court in the case of Jones v. Meehan (175 U. S. 1), in which it was held that the eldest male child of a Chippewa Indian succeeded to his statutory allotment in accordance with tribal law. The court declared:

The Department of the Interior appears to have assumed that, upon the death of Moose Dung the elder, in 1872, the title in his land descended by law to his heirs general, and not to his eldest son only.

But the elder Chief Moose Dung being a member of an Indian tribe, whose tribal organization was still recognized by the Government of the United States, the right of inheritance in his land, at

² "Ascertainment of heirs of deceased allottees.—When any Indian to whom an allotment of land has been made, dies before the expiration of the trust period and before the issuance of a fee simple patent, without having made a will disposing of said allotment as hereinafter provided, the Secretary of the Interior, upon notice and hearing, under such rules as he may prescribe, shall ascertain the legal heirs of such decedent, and his decision thereon shall be final and conclusive. * * *"

³ "Disposal by will of allotments held under trust.—Any persons of the age of twenty-one years having any right, title, or interest in any allotment held under trust or other patent, containing restrictions on alienation or individual Indian moneys or other property held in trust by the United States shall have the right prior to the expiration of the trust or restrictive period, and before the issuance of a fee simple patent or the removal of restrictions, to dispose of such property by will, in accordance with regulation is to be prescribed by the Secretary of the Interior: Provided, however, That no will so executed shall be valid or have any force or effect unless and until it shall have been approved by the Secretary of the Interior: * * *"

the time of his death, was controlled by the laws, usages and customs of the tribe, and not by the law of the State of Minnesota, nor by any action of the Secretary of the Interior. (At page 29.)

United States v. Shanks (15 Minn. 369);
Dole v. Irish (2 Barb. [N. Y.] 639);
Hastings v. Farmer (4 N. Y. 293, 294);
The Kansas Indians (5 Wall. 737);
Waupemanqua v. Aldrich (28 Fed. 489);
Brown v. Steele (23 Kansas 672);
Richardville v. Thorp (28 Fed. 52).

In the case of Jones v. Meehan, supra, the tribal authority was exercised through immemorial usage. Other tribes, however, have exercised a similar authority through written laws.

In the case of Gray v. Coffman (3 Dill. 393, 10 Fed. Cases No. 5714), the court held that the validity of the will of a member of the Wyandot tribe depended upon its conformity with the written laws of the tribe. The court declared:

The Wyandot Indians, before their removal from Ohio had adopted a written constitution and laws, and among others, laws relating to descent and wills. These are in the record, and are shown to have been copied from the laws of Ohio, and adopted by the Wyandot tribe, with certain modifications, to adapt them to their customs and usages. One of these modifications was that only living children should inherit, excluding the children of deceased children, or grandchildren. The Wyandot council, which is several times referred to in the treaty of 1855, was an executive and judicial body, and had power, under the laws and usages of the nation, to receive proof of wills, etc.; and this body continued to act, at least to some extent, after the treaty of 1855.

* * * under the circumstances, the court must give effect to the well established laws, customs, and usages of the Wyandot tribe of Indians in respect to the disposition of property by descent and will.

In the case of O'Brien v. Bugbee (46 Kan. 1, 26 Pac. 428), it was held that a plaintiff in ejectment could not recover without positive proof that under tribal custom he was lawful heir to the property in question. In the absence of such proof, it was held that title to the land escheated to the tribe, and that the tribe might dispose of the land as it saw fit.

Tribal autonomy in the regulation of descent and distribution is recognized in the case of Woodin v. Seeley (141 Misc. 207; 252 N. Y. Supp. 818). In this case, and in the case of Patterson v. Council of Seneca Nation (245 N. Y. 433; 157 N. E. 734), the supremacy of tribal law in matters of inheritance and membership rights is defended on the ground:

that when Congress does not act no law runs on an Indian reservation save the Indian tribal law and custom.

In the case of Y-Ta-Tah-Wah v. Rebock (105 Fed. 257), the plaintiff, a medicine-man imprisoned by the federal Indian agent and county sheriff for practicing medicine without a license, brought an action of false imprisonment against these officials, and died during the course of the proceedings. The court held that the action might be continued, not by an administrator of the decedent's estate appointed in accordance with state law, but by the heirs of the decedent by Indian custom. The court declared, per Shiras, J.:

If it were true that, upon the death of a tribal Indian, his property, real and personal, became subject to the laws of the state directing the mode of distribution of estates of decedents, it is apparent that irremediable confusion would be caused thereby in the affairs of the Indians * * * (At page 262.)

In a case involving the right of an illegitimate child to inherit property, the authority of the tribe to pass upon the status of illegitimates was recognized in the following terms:

The Creek Council, in the exercise of its lawful function of local self-government, saw fit to limit the legal rights of an illegitimate child to that of sharing in the estate of his putative father, and not to confer upon such child generally the status of a child born in lawful wedlock. (Oklahoma Land Company v. Thomas, 34 Okla. 681, 127 Pac. 8).

See, to the same effect, Butler v. Wilson (54 Okla. 229, 153 Pac. 823).

In the case of Dole v. Irish (2 Barb. 639) it was held that a surrogate of the State of New York has no power to grant letters of administration to control the disposition of personal property belonging to a deceased member of the Seneca tribe. The court declared:

I am of the opinion that the private property of the Seneca Indians is not within the jurisdiction of our laws respecting administration; and that the letters of administration granted by the surrogate to the plaintiff are void. I am also of the opinion that the distribution of Indian property according to their customs passes a good title, which our courts will not disturb; and therefore that the defendant has a good title to the horse in question, and must have judgment on the special verdict. (At pages 642-643.)

In George v. Pierce (148 N. Y. Supp. 230), the distribution of real and personal property of the decedent through the Onondaga custom of the "dead feast" is recognized as controlling all rights of inheritance.

In the case of Mackey v. Coxe (18 How. 100), the Supreme Court held that letters of administration issued by a Cherokee court were entitled to recognition in another jurisdiction, on the ground that the status of an Indian tribe was in fact similar to that of a Federal territory.

In the case of Meeker v. Kaelin (173 Fed. 216), the court recognized the validity of tribal custom in determining the descent of real and personal property and indicated that the tribal custom of the Puyallup band prescribed different rules of descent for real and for personal property.

THE TAXING POWER OF AN INDIAN TRIBE

Chief among the powers of sovereignty recognized as pertaining to an Indian tribe is the power of taxation. Except where Congress has provided otherwise, this power may be exercised over members of the tribe and over nonmembers, so far as such nonmembers may accept privileges of trade, residence, etc., to which taxes may be attached as conditions.

The case of Buster v. Wright (135 Fed. 947, app. dism. 203 U. S. 599), contains an excellent analysis of the taxing power of the Creek Nation:

Repeated decisions of the courts, numerous opinions of the Attorneys General, and the practice of years place beyond debate the propositions that prior to March 1, 1901, the Creek Nation had lawful authority to require the payment of this tax as a condition precedent to the exercise of the privilege of trading within its borders, and that the executive department of the government of the United States had plenary power to enforce its payment through the Secretary of the Interior and his subordinates, the Indian inspector, Indian agent, and Indian police. Morris v. Hitchcock, 194 U. S. 384, 392, 24 Sup. Ct. 712, 43 L. Ed. 1030; Crabtree v. Madden, 4 C. C. A. 408, 410, 413, 54 Fed. 426, 428, 431; Masey v. Wright, 3 Ind. T. 243, 54 S. W. 807; Masey v. Wright, 44 C. C. A. 683, 105 Fed. 1003; 18 Opinions of Attorneys General, 34, 36; 23 Opinions of Attorneys General, 214, 217, 219, 220, 528. * * * It may not be unwise, before entering upon the discussion of this proposition, to place clearly before our minds the character of the Creek Nation and the nature of the power which it is attempting to exercise.

The authority of the Creek Nation to prescribe the terms upon which noncitizens may transact business within its borders did not have its origin in act of Congress, treaty, or agreement of the United States. It was one of the inherent and essential attributes of its original sovereignty. It was a natural right of that people, indispensable to its autonomy as a distinct tribe or nation, and it must remain an attribute of its government until by the agreement of the nation itself or by the superior power of the republic it is taken from it. Neither the authority nor the power of the United States to license its citizens to trade in the Creek Nation, with or without the consent of that tribe, is in issue in this case, because the complainants have no such licenses. The plenary power and lawful authority of the government of the United States by license, by treaty, or by act of Congress to take from the Creek Nation every vestige of its original or acquired governmental authority and power may be admitted, and for the purposes of this decision are here conceded. The fact remains nevertheless that every original attribute of the government of the Creek Nation still exists intact which has not been destroyed or limited by act of Congress or by the contracts of the Creek tribe itself.

Originally an independent tribe, the superior power of the republic early reduced this Indian people to a "domestic, dependent nation" (Cherokee Nation v. State of Georgia, 5 Pet. 1-20, 8 L. Ed. 25), yet left it a distinct political entity, clothed with ample authority to govern its inhabitants and to manage its domestic affairs through officers of its own selection, who under a Constitution modeled after that of the United States, exercised legislative, executive and judicial functions within its territorial jurisdiction for more than half a century. The governmental jurisdiction of this nation was neither conditioned nor limited by the original title by occupancy to the lands within its territory. * * * Founded in its original national sovereignty, and secured by these treaties, the governmental authority of the Creek Nation, subject always to the superior power of the republic, remained practically unimpaired until the year 1889. Between the years 1888 and 1901 the United States by various acts of Congress deprived this tribe of all its judicial power, and curtailed its remaining authority until its powers of government have become the mere shadows of their former selves. Nevertheless its authority to fix the terms upon which noncitizens might conduct business within its territorial boundaries guarantied by the treaties of 1832, 1856, and 1866, and sustained by repeated decisions of the courts and opinions of the Attorneys General of the United States, remained undisturbed.

* * * It is said that the sale of these lots and the incorporation of cities and towns upon the sites in which the lots are found authorized by act of Congress to collect taxes for municipal purposes segregated the town sites and the lots sold from the territory of the Creek Nation, and deprived it of governmental jurisdiction over this property and over its occupants. But the jurisdiction to govern the inhabitants of a country is not conditioned or limited by the title to the land which they occupy in it, or by the existence of municipalities therein endowed with power to collect taxes for city purposes, and to enact and enforce municipal ordinances. Neither the United States, nor a state, nor any other sovereignty loses the power to govern the people within its borders by the existence of towns and cities therein endowed with the usual powers of municipalities, nor by the ownership nor occupancy of the land within its territorial jurisdiction by citizens or foreigners. (At pp. 949-952.)

A similar opinion was rendered by the Attorney General (23 Ops. Atty. Gen. 528) with respect to the right of the Cherokee Nation to impose an export tax on hay grown within the limits of the reservation. The opinion of the Attorney General suggested that tribal authority to impose such a tax would remain "even if the shipper was the absolute owner of the land on which the hay was raised." This suggestion was referred to and approved by the United States Supreme Court in Morris v. Hitchcock (194 U. S. 384, 392).

In the latter case, the Court of Appeals of the District of Columbia, considering the validity of a tax or fee imposed by the Chickasaw Nation upon the owners of all cattle grazed within the Chickasaw territory, analyzed the status and powers of the Chickasaw Nation in these terms:

A government of the kind necessarily has the power to maintain its existence and effectiveness through the exercise of the usual power of taxation upon all property within its limits, save as may be restricted by its organic law. Any restriction in the organic law in respect of this ordinary power of taxation, and the property subject thereto, ought to appear by express provision or necessary implication. Board Trustees v. Indiana, 14 How. 268, 272; Talbott v. Silver Bow Co., 139 U. S. 438, 448. Where the restriction upon this exercise of power by a recognized government, is claimed under the stipulations of a treaty with another, whether the former be dependent upon the latter or not, it would seem that its existence ought to appear beyond a reasonable doubt. We discover no such restriction in the clause of Article 7 of the Treaty of 1855, which excepts white persons from the recognition therein of the unrestricted right of self-government by the Chickasaw Nation, and its full jurisdiction over persons and property within its limits. The conditions of that exception may be fully met without going to the extreme of saying that it was also intended to prevent the exercise of the power to consent to the entry of noncitizens, or the taxation of property actually within the limits of that government and enjoying its benefits. (Morris v. Hitchcock, 21 App. D. C. 565, 593.)

In the case of Muxey v. Wright (3 Ind. T. 243, 54 S. W. 807, aff'd: 105 Fed. 1003), the right of an Indian tribe to levy a tax upon a nonmember of the tribe residing on its reservation was held to be an essential attribute of tribal sovereignty, which might be curtailed by express language of a treaty or statute, but otherwise remained intact. In that case the court declared:

* * * in the absence of express contradictory provisions by treaty, or by statute of the United States, the Nation (and not a citizen) is to declare who shall come within the boundaries of its occupancy, and under what conditions. (At page 36.)

See, to the same effect, 17 Ops. Atty. Gen. 134; 18 Ops. Atty. Gen. 34.

In view of the fact, however, that Congress has conferred upon the Commissioner of Indian Affairs exclusive jurisdiction to appoint traders on Indian reservations and to prescribe the terms and conditions governing their admission and operations (see Secs. 261 and 262, Title 25, U. S. Code), an Indian tribe is without power to levy a tax upon such licensed traders unless authorized by the Commissioner of Indian Affairs so to do.

THE POWER OF AN INDIAN TRIBE TO EXCLUDE NONMEMBERS FROM ITS JURISDICTION

The power of an Indian tribe to exclude nonmembers of the tribe from entering upon the reservation was first clearly formulated in an opinion of the Attorney General rendered in 1821 with respect to the lands of the Seneca Indians:

So long as a tribe exists and remains in possession of its lands, its title and possession are sovereign and exclusive; and there exists no authority to enter upon their lands, for any purpose whatever, without their consent. (1 Op. Atty. Gen. 465, 466).

It was further said in the course of this opinion that even the United States Government could not enter the Seneca lands, for the purpose of building a road or for any other purpose, without the consent of the Indians.

Although the last implication of this doctrine, if originally valid, has been superseded by many statutes authorizing and directing officers and agents of the United States to enter upon Indian lands for various purposes, the basic principle that an Indian tribe may exclude private individuals from the territory within its jurisdiction, or prescribe the conditions upon which such entry will be permitted, has been followed in a long line of cases.

Two grounds for this power of exclusion are established by the decided cases: first, the Indian tribe may exercise, over all tribal property, the rights of a landowner; second, the tribe may, in the exercise of local self-government, regulate the relations between its members and other persons, so far as may be consistent with Congressional statutes governing trade and intercourse.

In Rainbow v. Young (161 Fed. 835), it was held that the Indian superintendent and Indian police had power to remove an attorney seeking to collect fees on a day when lease money was being paid to the Indians. In addition to the specific authority to remove undesirable persons granted by Revised Statutes, sec. 2149 (recently repealed by act of May 21, 1934, Public No. 242, 73d Congress), the court found that the power to remove nonresidents was incidental to the general powers of a landowner, which the United States was qualified to exercise with respect to Indian lands:

Besides, the reservation from which Mr. Sloan was removed is the property of the United States, is set apart and used as a tribal reservation and in respect of it the United States has the rights of an individual proprietor (citing cases) and can maintain its possession and deal with intruders in like manner as can an individual in respect of his property. (At p. 837.)

See, to the same effect, United States v. Mullin (71 Fed. 682); 20 Op. Atty. Gen. 245, holding that an injunction by a State court might properly be disobeyed; 14 Op. Atty. Gen. 451. And with respect to the general power of a government as a landowner to remove intruders see Canfield v. United States (167 U. S. 518, 524).

As was said in the case of Stephenson v. Little (18 Mich. 433), in which it was held that the United States Government as a landowner might, through officials of the Land Office, seize and direct the sale of timber cut on public lands even though other timber had been mixed with that so cut:

It seems to me there can be no doubt that the Government has all the common law rights of an individual in respect to depredations committed on its property, and that where there is no statute making it the duty of any particular official to enforce those rights, it is ex necessitate rei made the duty of the Executive Department of the Government to enforce them. (At page 440.)

What is here said of the rights of the United States Government may be said with equal force of the rights of an Indian tribe. In an unallotted reservation, an Indian tribe occupies the position of a landowner in equity, if not in strict law. (United States v. Sturgeon, 6 Sawy. 29, 27 Fed. Cas. No. 16, 413.)

The cases cited with respect to the power of an Indian tribe to tax nonmembers, as a condition of entry or residence within the jurisdiction of the tribe, confirm the foregoing conclusions, and indicate further that the power of an Indian tribe to exclude nonmembers is not limited to lands in tribal ownership.

Over tribal lands, the tribe has the rights of a landowner as well as the rights of a local government, dominion as well as sovereignty. But over all the lands of the reservation, whether owned by the tribe, by members thereof, or by outsiders, the tribe has the sovereign power of determining the conditions upon which persons shall be permitted to enter its domain, to reside therein, and to do business, provided only such determination is consistent with applicable Federal laws and does not infringe any vested rights of persons now occupying reservation lands under lawful authority. Morris v. Hitchcock (194 U. S. 384) and other cases cited under heading "The Taxing Power of an Indian Tribe".

TRIBAL POWERS OVER PROPERTY

The powers of an Indian tribe with respect to property derive from two sources. In the first place, the tribe has all the rights and powers of a property owner with respect to tribal property. In the second place, the Indian tribe has, among its powers of sovereignty, the power to regulate the use and disposition of individual property among its members.

The powers of an Indian tribe over tribal property are no less absolute than the powers of any landowner, save as restricted by general acts of Congress restricting the alienation or leasing of tribal property,¹ and particular acts of Congress designed to control the disposition of particular funds or lands.

The powers of an Indian tribe with respect to tribal land are not limited by any rights of occupancy which the tribe itself may grant to its members. The proposition that occupancy of tribal land does not create any vested rights in the occupant as against the tribe is supported by a long line of court decisions:

Sizemore v. Brady, 235 U. S. 441;
Franklin v. Lynch, 233 U. S. 269;
Gritts v. Fisher, 224 U. S. 640;
Journeycake v. Cherokee Nation and United States, 28 Ct. Cls. 281;
Sac and Fox Indians of Iowa v. Sac and Fox Indians of Oklahoma and the United States, 45 Ct. Cls. 287, aff'd 220 U. S. 481;
Hayes v. Barringer, 168 Fed. 221;
Dukes v. Goodall, 5 Ind. T. 145, 82 S. W. 702;
In re Narragansett Indians, 20 R. I. 715;
Terrance v. Gray, 156 N. Y. Supp. 916;
Reservation Gas Co. v. Snyder, 88 Misc. 209; 150 N. Y. Supp. 216;
Application of Parker, 237 N. Y. Supp. 135;
McCurtain v. Grady, 1 Ind. T. 107, 38 S. W. 65;
Whitmire, trustee, v. Cherokee Nation, 30 Ct. Cls. 138;
Myers v. Mathis, 2 Ind. T. 3, 46 S. W. 178.

In the case of Sizemore v. Brady, supra, the Supreme Court declared:

lands and funds belonged to the tribe as a community, and not to the members severally or as tenants in common. (At p. 446.)

Similarly, in Franklin v. Lynch, supra, the Supreme Court declared:

As the tribe could not sell, neither could the individual members, for they had neither an undivided interest in the tribal land nor vendible interest in any particular tract. (At p. 271.)

In the case of Journeycake v. Cherokee Nation and the United States, supra, the Court of Claims carefully analyzed the laws and constitutional provisions of the Cherokee Nation and found that property within the jurisdiction of the Nation was of two kinds: communal property in which each individual had exclusive rights of occupancy in particular tracts, rights not subject to transfer or disposition except according to prescribed rules; and national property held by the tribe itself. With respect to the former type of property, the court declared:

The distinctive characteristic of communal property is that every member of the community is an owner of it as such. He does not take as heir, or purchaser, or grantee; if he dies his right of property does not descend; if he removes from the community it expires; if he wishes to dispose of it he has nothing which he can convey; and yet he has a right of property in the land as perfect as that of any other person; and his children after him will enjoy all that he enjoyed, not as heirs but as communal owners.

Analyzing the status of tribal lands not subject to individual occupancy, the court declared:

With this power of regulation and control of the public domain, and the jus disponendi lodged in the government of the Nation, it is plain that the communal element has been reduced to a minimum and exists only in the occupied lands. And it is manifest that with the growth of civilization, with all of its intricacies, and manifold requirements, the communal management of the public domain would have been utterly insufficient, and if it had continued would have been a barrier to the advancement of civilization itself.

"Purchases or grants of lands from Indians. No purchase, grant, lease, or other conveyance of lands, or of any title or claim thereto, from any Indian nation or tribe of Indians, shall be of any validity in law or equity, unless the same be made by treaty or convention entered into pursuant to the Constitution. * * *"

U. S. Code, title 25, sec. 85, provides:

"Contracts relating to tribal funds or property. No contract made with any Indian, where such contract relates to the tribal funds or property in the hands of the United States, shall be valid, nor shall any payment for services rendered in relation thereto be made unless the consent of the United States has previously been given. (June 30, 1913, c. 4, sec. 18, 38 Stat. 97.)"

The foregoing restrictions are partially modified by the Wheeler-Howard Act (Public No. 383, 73d Congress), secs. 4, 6, 17.

It is recognized that property held by the United States in trust for an Indian tribe is, like other trust property, subject to terms of the trust with respect to the use and disposition of corpus and income. Thus it is provided that tribal funds held by the United States in trust for Indian tribes may be expended only in accordance with annual statutory appropriations, except for certain designated purposes as to which annual statutory appropriation is not required. See act of May 18, 1916, c. 125, sec. 27, 39 Stat. L. 159.

With these powers of absolute ownership lodged in the Cherokee government, the power to alienate, the power to lease, the power to grant rights of occupancy, the power to restrict rights of occupancy, and with the exercise of those powers running back to the very year of the adoption of the constitution, and receiving from that time to the present, the unquestioning acquiescence of the former communal owners, the Cherokee people, it is apparent that the "public domain" of the Cherokee Nation is analogous to the "public lands" of the United States or the "demesne lands of the Crown," and that it is held absolutely by the Cherokee government, as all public property is held, a trust for governmental purposes and to promote the general welfare.

Similarly, in the case of Hayes v. Barringer, supra, the court declared, in considering the status of Choctaw and Chickasaw tribal lands:

* * * At that time these were the lands of the Choctaw and Chickasaw Nations, held by them, as they held all their lands, in trust for the individual members of their tribes, in the sense in which the public property of representative governments is held in trust for its people. But these were public lands, and, while the enrolled members of these tribes undoubtedly had a vested equitable right to their just shares of them against strangers and fellow members of their tribes, they had no separate or individual right to or equity in any of these lands which they could maintain against the legislation of the United States or of the Indian Nations. Stephens v. Cherokee Nation, 174 U. S. 445, 488, 19 Sup. Ct. 722, 43 L. Ed. 1041; Cherokee Nation v. Hitchcock, 187 U. S. 294, 23 Sup. Ct. 115, 47 L. Ed. 183; Lone Wolf v. Hitchcock, 187 U. S. 553, 23 Sup. Ct. 216, 47 L. Ed. 299; Wallace v. Adams, 143 Fed. 716, 74 C. C. A. 540; Ligon v. Johnston (C. C. A.) 164 Fed. 670.

So, too, in United States v. Lucero (1 N. M. 422), title to lands within a pueblo is recognized to lie in the pueblo itself, rather than in the individual members thereof.

The extent of any individual's interest in tribal property is subject to such limitations as the tribe may see fit to impose.

Thus in Reservation Gas Co. v. Snyder, supra, it was held that an Indian tribe might dispose of minerals on tribal lands which had been assigned to individual Indians for private occupancy, since the individual occupants had never been granted any specific mineral rights by the tribe.

In Terrance v. Gray, supra, it was held that no act of the occupant of assigned tribal land could terminate the control duly exercised by the chiefs of the tribe over the use and disposition of the land.

In Application of Parker, supra, it was held that the Tonawanda Nation of Seneca Indians had the right to dispose of minerals on the tribal allotments of its members and that the individual allottee had no valid claim for damages.

In the case of McCurtain v. Grady, supra, a provision of the Choctaw constitution conferring upon the discoverer of coal the right to mine all coal within a mile radius of the point of discovery was upheld as a valid exercise of tribal power.

In Whitmire, trustee, v. Cherokee Nation, supra, the Court of Claims held that the general property of the Cherokee Nation, under the provisions of the Cherokee constitution, might be used for public purposes, but could not be diverted to per capita payments to a favored class.

The chief limitation upon tribal control of membership rights in tribal property is that found in acts of Congress guaranteeing to those who sever tribal relations to take up homesteads on the public domain,¹ and to children of white men and Indian women, under certain circumstances,² a continuing share in the tribal property. Except for these general limitations and other specific statutory limitations found in enrollment acts and other special acts of Congress, the proper authorities of an Indian tribe have full authority to regulate the use and disposition of tribal property by the members of the tribe.

"Rights of children born of marriages between white men and Indian women. All children born of a marriage solemnized prior to June 7, 1897, between a white man and an Indian woman by blood and not by adoption, where said Indian woman was on that date, or was at the time of her death, recognized by the tribe, shall have the same rights and privileges to the property of the tribe to which the mother belongs, or belonged at the time of her death, by blood, as any other member of the tribe, and no prior Act of Congress shall be construed as to debar such child of such right. (June 7, 1897, c. 3, sec. 1, 30 Stat. 90.)"

The authority of a tribal council to lease tribal lands is specifically confirmed by U. S. Code, title 25, sections 397, 398 and 402.¹ Although the exercise of such authority is made subject to the approval of the Secretary of the Interior, it has been said that:

From the language of this statute it appears reasonably certain that it was the legislative purpose to confer primary authority upon the Indians, and that the determination of the council should be conclusive upon the government, at least in the absence of any evidence of fraud or undue influence. (White Bear v. Barth, 61 Mont. 322, 203 Pac. 517.)

U. S. Code, title 25, section 179, which imposes a penalty upon persons driving stock to range upon the lands of an Indian tribe, has been construed as recognizing the right of the tribe to permit the use of its lands for grazing purposes, for a consideration.

See: United States v. Hunter, 4 Mackey (D. C.) 531; Kirby v. United States, 273 Fed. 391, aff'd 260 U. S. 423.

Similarly, U. S. Code, title 25, section 180, imposing a penalty upon persons settling on Indian lands, has been judicially interpreted as implying that an Indian tribe has power to permit such settlement upon such terms as it may prescribe. The cases on this subject have been analyzed under the heading "The Power of an Indian Tribe to Exclude Nonmembers From Its Jurisdiction."

The authority of an Indian tribe in matters of property is not restricted to those lands or funds over which it exercises the rights of ownership. The sovereign powers of the tribe extend over the property as well as the person of its members.

Thus, in Crabtree v. Madden (54 Fed. 426), it is recognized that questions of the validity of contracts among members of the tribe are to be determined according to the laws of the tribe.

See, to the same effect: In re Sah Quah, 31 Fed. 327; Jones v. Laney, 2 Tex. 342.

In the latter case the question arose whether a deed of manumission freeing a negro slave, executed by a Chickasaw Indian within the territory of the Chickasaw nation, was valid. The lower court had charged the jury "that their (Chickasaw) laws and customs and usages, within the limits defined to them, governed all property belonging to any one domesticated and living with them." Approving this charge, upon the basis of which the jury had found the deed to be valid, the appellate court declared:

Their laws and customs, regulating property, contracts, and the relations between husband wife, have been respected, when drawn into controversy, in the courts of the State and of the United States. (At p. 348.)

In the case of Delaware Indians v. Cherokee Nation (38 Ct. Cls. 234, decree mod. 193 U. S. 127), it is said:

The law of real property is to be found in the law of the situs. The law of real property in the Cherokee country, therefore, is to be found in the constitution and laws of the Cherokee Nation.

In the case of Myers v. Mathis, supra, the validity of a Chickasaw statute of limitations, whereby an individual Indian suffered a loss of his improvements by reason of his absence for a fixed period, was upheld.

In the case of James H. Hamilton v. United States (42 Ct. Cls. 282), it appeared that land, buildings and personal property owned by the claimant, a licensed trader, within the Chickasaw Reservation, had been confiscated by an act of the Chickasaw legislature. The plaintiff brought suit to recover damages on the theory that such confiscation constituted an "Indian depredation". The Court of Claims dismissed the suit, declaring:

The claimant by applying for and accepting a license to trade with the Chickasaw Indians, and subsequently acquiring property within the limits of their reservation, subjected the same to the jurisdiction of their laws. (At. p. 287.)

"Leases of lands for grazing or mining. Where lands are occupied by Indians who have bought and paid for the same, and which lands are not needed for farming or agricultural purposes, and are not desired for individual allotments, the same may be leased by authority of the council speaking for such Indians, for a period not to exceed five years for grazing, or ten years for mining purposes in such quantities and upon such terms and conditions as the agent in charge of such reservation may recommend, subject to the approval of the Secretary of the Interior. (Feb. 28, 1891, c. 383, Sec. 3, 26 Stat. 795.)"

U. S. Code, Title 25, Sec. 398:

"Leases of unallotted lands for oil and gas mining purposes. Unallotted land on Indian reservations other than lands of the Five Civilized Tribes and the Osage Reservation subject to lease for mining purposes for a period of ten years under the preceding section may be leased at public auction by the Secretary of the Interior, with the consent of the council speaking for such Indians, for oil and gas mining purposes."

U. S. Code, Title 25, Sec. 402:

"Leases of surplus lands. The surplus lands of any tribe may be leased for farming purposes by the council of such tribe under the same rules and regulations and for the same term of years as is now allowed in the case of leases for grazing purposes. (Aug. 15, 1894, c. 290, Sec. 1, 28 Stat. 305.)"

The authority of an Indian tribe to impose license fees upon persons engaged in trade with its members within the boundaries of the reservation is confirmed in Zevely v. Weimer (5 Ind. T. 646, 82 S. W. 941), as well as in the various cases cited under the heading "The Taxing Power of an Indian Tribe."

The power of an Indian tribe to regulate the inheritance of individual property owned by members of the tribe has been analyzed under a separate heading.

It clearly appears, from the foregoing cases, that the powers of an Indian tribe are not limited to such powers as it may exercise in its capacity as a landowner. In its capacity as a sovereign, and in the exercise of local self-government, it may exercise powers similar to those exercised by any State or Nation in regulating the use and disposition of private property, save in so far as it is restricted by specific statutes of Congress.

The laws and customs of the tribe, in matters of contract and property generally (as well as on questions of membership, domestic relations, inheritance, taxation, and residence), may be lawfully administered in the tribunals of the tribe, and such laws and customs will be recognized by courts of State or Nation in cases coming before these courts.¹

THE POWERS OF AN INDIAN TRIBE IN THE ADMINISTRATION OF JUSTICE

The powers of an Indian tribe in the administration of justice derive from the substantive powers of self-government which are legally recognized to fall within the domain of tribal sovereignty. If an Indian tribe has power to regulate the marriage relationships of its members, it necessarily has power to adjudicate, through tribunals established by itself, controversies involving such relationships. So, too, with other fields of local government in which our analysis has shown that tribal authority endures. In all these fields the judicial powers of the tribe are co-extensive with its legislative or executive powers.

Washburn v. Parker (7 Fed. Sup. 120);
Raymond v. Raymond, (83 Fed. 721);
 19 Op. Atty. Gen. 109 (1888);
 7 Op. Atty. Gen. 174 (1855).

The decisions of Indian tribal courts, rendered within their jurisdiction and according to the forms of law or custom recognized by the tribe, are entitled to full faith and credit in the courts of the several states.

As was said in the case of Standley v. Roberts (59 Fed. 836, app. dism. 17 Sup. Ct. 999 men.):

* * * the judgments of the courts of these nations, in cases within their jurisdiction, stand on the same footing with those of the courts of the territories of the Union and are entitled to the same faith and credit. (At page 845.)

And in the case of Raymond v. Raymond, supra, the court declared:

The Cherokee Nation * * * is a distinct political society, capable of managing its own affairs and governing itself. It may enact its own laws, though they may not be in conflict with the constitution of the United States. It may maintain its own judicial tribunals, and their judgments and decrees upon the rights of the persons and property of members of the Cherokee Nation as against each other are entitled to all the faith and credit accorded to the judgments and decrees of territorial courts. (At page 722.)

See, also, Nofire v. United States (164 U. S. 657); Mehlin v. Ice (56 Fed. 12).

The question of the judicial powers of an Indian tribe is particularly significant in the field of law and order. For in the fields of civil controversy the rules and decisions of the tribe and its officers have a force that state courts and Federal courts will respect. But in accordance with the well settled principle that one sovereign will not enforce the criminal laws of another sovereign, state courts and Federal courts alike must decline to enforce penal provisions of tribal law. Responsibility for the maintenance of law and order is therefore squarely upon the Indian tribe, unless this field of jurisdiction has been taken over by the states or the Federal government.

¹ See: Cuthbert Pound, "Nationals Without a Nation", 22 Columbia Law Rev. 97, 101-102 (1922); W. G. Rice, Jr., "The Position of the American Indian in the Law of the United States", 16 Jour. Comp. Leg. (3d Series), part 1, p. 78 (1934).

It is illuminating to deal with the question of tribal criminal jurisdiction as we have dealt with other questions of tribal authority, by asking, first, what the original sovereign powers of the tribes were, and then, how far and in what respects these powers have been limited.

So long as the complete and independent sovereignty of an Indian tribe was recognized, its criminal jurisdiction, no less than its civil jurisdiction, was that of any sovereign power. It might punish its subjects for offenses against each other or against aliens and for public offenses against the peace and dignity of the tribe. Similarly, it might punish aliens within its jurisdiction according to its own laws and customs.¹ Such jurisdiction continues to this day, save as it has been expressly limited by the acts of a superior government.

It is clear that the original criminal jurisdiction of the Indian tribes has never been transferred to the States. Sporadic attempts of the States to exercise jurisdiction over offenses between Indians, or between Indians and whites, committed on an Indian reservation, have been held invalid usurpation of authority.

The principle that a State has no criminal jurisdiction over offenses involving Indians committed on an Indian reservation is too well established to require argument, attested as it is by a line of cases that reaches back to the earliest years of the Republic. See

A State, of course, has jurisdiction over the conduct of an Indian off the reservation.² A State also has jurisdiction over some, but not all acts of non-Indians within a reservation.³ But the relations between whites and Indians in "Indian country" and the conduct of Indians themselves in Indian country are not subject to the laws or the courts of the several States.

The denial of State jurisdiction, then, is dictated by principles of constitutional law.

On the other hand, the constitutional authority of the Federal Government to prescribe laws and to administer justice upon the Indian reservation is plenary. The question remains how far Congress has exercised its constitutional powers.

The basic provisions of Federal law with regard to Indian offenses are found in sections 217 and 218 of U. S. Code, Title 25:

Sec. 217. General laws as to punishment extended to Indian country. Except as to crimes the punishment of which is expressly provided for in this title, the general laws of the United States as to the punishment of crimes committed in any place within the sole and exclusive jurisdiction of the United States, except the District of Columbia, shall extend to the Indian country. (R. S. Sec. 2145.)

SEC. 218. Exceptions as to extension of general laws. The preceding section shall not be construed to extend to crimes committed by one Indian against the person or property of another Indian, nor to any Indian committing any offense in the Indian country who has been punished by the local law of the tribe, or to any case where, by treaty stipulations, the exclusive jurisdiction over such offenses is or may be secured to the Indian tribes respectively. (R. S. Sec. 2146; Feb. 18, 1875, c. 80, Sec. 1, 18 Stat. 318.)

¹ This power is expressly recognized, for instance, in the Treaty of July 2, 1791, with the Cherokees (7 Stat. 40) providing: "If any citizen of the United States, or other person not being an Indian, shall settle on any of the Cherokee lands, such person shall forfeit the protection of the United States, and the Cherokees may punish him or not, as they please." (Sec. 8.)

These provisions recognize that, with respect to crimes omitted by one Indian against the person or property of another Indian, the jurisdiction of the Indian tribe is plenary. These provisions further recognize that, in addition to this general jurisdiction over offenses between Indians, an Indian tribe may possess, by virtue of treaty stipulations, other fields of exclusive jurisdiction (necessarily including jurisdiction over cases involving non-Indians). "The local law of the tribe" is further recognized to the extent that the punishment of an Indian under such law must be deemed a bar to further prosecution, under any applicable Federal laws, even though the offense be one against a non-Indian.

Such was the law when the case of Ex parte Crow Dog (109 U. S. 556), which has been discussed in an earlier connection, arose. The United States Supreme Court there held that Federal courts had no jurisdiction to prosecute an Indian for the murder of another Indian committed on an Indian reservation, such jurisdiction never having been withdrawn from the original sovereignty of the Indian tribe.

Shortly before the decision in this case, an opinion had been rendered by the Attorney General in another Indian murder case holding that where an Indian of one tribe had murdered an Indian of another tribe on the reservation of a third tribe, even though it was not shown that any of the tribes concerned had any machinery for the administration of justice, the Federal courts had no right to try the accused. The opinion concluded:

If no demand for Foster's surrender shall be made by one or other of the tribes, founded fairly upon a violation of some law of one or other of them having jurisdiction of the offense in question according to general principles, and by forms substantially conformable to natural justice, it seems that nothing remains except to discharge him. (17 Ops. Atty. Gen. 566, 570.)

A similar decision had been reached in State courts. See State v. McKenney (18 Nev. 182).

The right of an Indian tribe to inflict the death penalty had been recognized by Congress, in the report cited above, at page 20.

Following the Crow Dog decision, Congress passed the act of March 3, 1885, Sec. 9 (23 Stats. L. 385), which, with an amendment, became Sec. 328 of the U. S. Criminal Code of 1910 and now Sec. 548 of Title 18 of the U. S. Code. This section provides for the prosecution in the Federal courts of Indians committing, within Indian reservations, any of the ten (formerly seven, then eight) specifically mentioned offenses (whether against Indians or against non-Indians), viz; murder, manslaughter, rape, incest, assault with intent to kill, assault with a dangerous weapon, arson, burglary, robbery, and larceny.¹

Although this statute does not expressly terminate tribal jurisdiction over the enumerated crimes, and might, if the question were an original one, be interpreted as conferring only a concurrent jurisdiction upon the Federal courts, it has been construed for many years as removing all jurisdiction over the enumerated crimes from the Indian tribal authorities.

Thus, in the case of United States v. Whaley (37 Fed. 145), which arose soon after the passage of the statute in question, it had appeared fitting to the tribal council of the Tule River Reservation that a medicine man who was believed to have poisoned some twenty-one deceased patients should be executed, and he was so executed. The four tribal executioners were found guilty of manslaughter, in the Federal court, on the theory that the act of March 3, 1885, had terminated tribal jurisdiction over murder cases. Whether tribal authorities may still inflict the death penalty for offenses other than the enumerated ten major crimes is a matter of some doubt.

The foregoing shall extend to prosecutions of Indians in South Dakota under section 549 of this title. (As amended June 28, 1932, c. 284, 47 Stat. 337.)"

The lacunae in this brief criminal code of ten commandments are serious, and indicate the importance of tribal jurisdiction in the field of law and order.

"Assault" cases that do not involve a "dangerous weapon" or where "intent to kill" cannot be proven, cannot be prosecuted in the Federal court, no matter how brutal the attack may be, or how near death the victim is placed, if death does not actually ensue; men brutally beating their wives and children are, therefore, exempt from prosecution in the Federal courts, and as above shown, the State courts do not have jurisdiction. Even assault with intent to commit rape or great bodily injury is not punishable under any Federal statute.¹

Aside from rape and incest the various offenses involving the relation of the sexes (e. g., adultery, seduction, bigamy, and solicitation), as well as those involving the responsibility of a man for the support of his wife and children are not within the cases that can be prosecuted in Federal courts.²

Other offenses which may be mentioned, to which no State or Federal laws now have application, and over which no State or Federal court now has any jurisdiction, are: kidnapping, receiving stolen goods, poisoning (if the victim does not die), obtaining money under false pretenses, embezzlement, blackmail, libel, forgery, fraud, trespass, mayhem, bribery, killing of another's live stock, setting fire to prairie or timber, use of false weights and measures, carrying concealed weapons, gambling, disorderly conduct, malicious mischief, pollution of water supplies, and other offenses against public health.³

It is not clear whether the foregoing offenses, which are not punishable in the Federal courts when committed by one Indian against another, are likewise exempt from punishment when committed by a non-Indian against an Indian, or by an Indian against a non-Indian, if the offense occurs within the boundaries of Indian country.

In these circumstances the wrongdoer is clearly not subject to State law. He is, however, subject to the provisions of the United States Criminal Code which deals with a meager list of "offenses within admiralty, maritime and territorial jurisdiction of the United States."⁴ The offenses specifically dealt with in this Federal criminal code do not include any of the offenses above enumerated except simple assault, various sex offenses, receiving stolen goods, and attempts at murder. There is, however, in the United States Criminal Code a provision (U. S. Code, Title 18, Sec. 468) which makes acts committed upon land within the exclusive jurisdiction of the United States subject to Federal prosecution whenever made criminal by State law. It may be argued that that this provision applies to offenses committed by an Indian against a non-Indian or by a non-Indian against an Indian, but no decision so holding has been found.⁵

On the foregoing analysis the limitations of Federal jurisdiction in the Indian country are apparent. The only offenses punishable in the Federal courts when committed within an Indian reservation are: The ten major crimes specially designated in U. S. Code, title 18, section 548; the special "reservation offenses" included in U. S. Code, title 25 (chiefly involving the sale of liquor); the ordinary Federal crimes applicable throughout the United States (such as counterfeiting, smuggling,⁶ and offenses relative to the mails), and, with respect to offenses committed by an Indian against a non-Indian or by a non-Indian against an Indian, the special "territorial" offenses for which punishment is provided in chapters 11 and 13 of U. S. Code, title 18.

The difficulties of this situation have prompted agitation for the extension of Federal or State laws over the Indian country, which has continued for at least five decades, without success.⁷

"This attempt to adopt territorial and state laws may be classed as indolent legislation, not well adapted to producing order upon Indian reservations, or in those places under the exclusive jurisdiction of the general government, and allowing men guilty of crimes, demanding in all civilized governments punishment, as in this case, to escape their just deserts. The motion in arrest of judgment is sustained, and the defendant discharged from custody."

The propriety of the object sought is not here in question, but the agitation itself is evidence of the large area of human conduct which must be left in anarchy if it be held that tribal authority to deal with such conduct has disappeared.

Fortunately such tribal authority has been repeatedly recognized by the courts, and although it has not been actually exercised always and in all tribes, it remains a proper legal basis for the tribal administration of justice wherever an Indian tribe desires to make use of its legal powers.

The recognition of tribal jurisdiction over the offenses of tribal Indians accorded by the Supreme Court in Ex parte Crow Dog, supra, and United States v. Quiver, supra, indicates that the criminal jurisdiction of the Indian tribes has not been curtailed by the failure of certain tribes to exercise such jurisdiction, or by the inefficiency of its attempted exercise, or by any historical changes that have come about in the habits and customs of the Indian tribes. Only specific legislation terminating or transferring such jurisdiction can limit the force of tribal law.

A recent writer,¹ after carefully analyzing the relation between Federal and tribal law, concludes:

This gives to many Indian tribes a large measure of continuing autonomy, for the federal statutes are only a fragment of law, principally providing some educational, hygienic and economic assistance, regulating land ownership, and punishing certain crimes committed by or upon Indians on a reservation. Where these statutes do not reach, Indian custom is the only law. As a matter of convenience, the regular courts (white men's courts) tacitly assume that the general law of the community is the law in civil cases between Indians, but these courts will apply Indian custom where it is proved. (At p. 90.)

A careful analysis of the relation between a local tribal government and the United States is found in 7 Ops. Atty. Gen. 174 (1855), in which it is held that a court of the Choctaw Nation has complete jurisdiction over a civil controversy between a Choctaw Indian and an adopted white man, involving rights to property within the Choctaw Nation:

On the other hand, it is argued by the United States Agent, that the courts of the Choctaws can have no jurisdiction of any case in which a citizen of the United States is a party * * *.

In the first place, it is certain that the Agent errs in assuming the legal impossibility of a citizen of the United States becoming subject, in civil matters, or criminal either, to the jurisdiction of the Choctaws. It is true that no citizen of the United States can, while he remains within the United States, escape their constitutional jurisdiction, either by adoption into a tribe of Indians, or any other way. But the error in all this consists in the idea that any man, citizen or not citizen, becomes divested of his allegiance to the United States, or throws off their jurisdiction or government, in the fact of becoming subject to any local jurisdiction whatever. This idea misconceives entirely the whole theory of the Federal Government, which theory is, that all the inhabitants of the country are, in regard to certain limited matters, subject to the federal jurisdiction, and in all others to the local jurisdiction, whether political or municipal. The citizen of Mississippi is also a citizen of the United States; and he owes allegiance to, and is subject to the laws of, both governments. So also an Indian, whether he be Choctaw or Chickasaw, and while subject to the local jurisdiction of the councils and courts of the Nation, yet is not in any possible relation or sense divested of his allegiance and obligations to the Government and laws of the United States.

In effect, then, an Indian tribe bears a relation to the Government of the United States similar to that which a territory bears to such Government, and similar again to that relationship which a municipality bears to a State. An Indian tribe may exercise a complete jurisdiction over its members and within the limits of the reservation,² subordinate only to the expressed limitations of Federal law.

Recognition of tribal authority in the administration of justice is found in the statutes of Congress, as well as in the decisions of the Federal courts.

U. S. Code, Title 25, section 229, provides that redress for a civil injury committed by an Indian shall be sought in the first instance from the "Nation or tribe to which such Indian shall belong." This provision for collective responsibility evidently assumes that the Indian tribe or Nation has its own resources for exercising disciplinary power over individual wrongdoers within the community.

We have already referred to U. S. Code, Title 25, section 218, with its express assurance that persons "punished by the law of the tribe" shall not be tried again before the Federal courts.

¹ W. G. Rice, Jr., "The position of the American Indian in the Law of the United States," 16 Jour. Comp. Leg. (3d series), part 1, age 78 (1934).

² The jurisdiction of the Indian tribe ceases at the border of the reservation (see 18 Op. Atty. Gen. 440, holding that the authority of the Indian police is limited to the territory of the reservation), and Congress has never authorized appropriate extradition procedure whereby an Indian tribe may secure jurisdiction over fugitives from its justice. See Ex parte Morgan (20 Fed. 298).

What is even more important than these statutory recognitions of tribal criminal authority is the persistent silence of Congress on the general problem of Indian criminal jurisdiction. There is nothing to justify an alternative to the conclusion that the Indian tribes retain sovereignty and jurisdiction over a vast area of ordinary offenses over which the Federal Government has never presumed to legislate and over which the State governments have not the authority to legislate.

The attempts of the Interior Department to administer a rough-and-ready sort of justice through Courts of Indian Offenses, or directly through superintendents, cannot be held to have impaired tribal authority in the field of law and order. These agencies have been characterized, in the only reported case squarely upholding their legality, as "mere educational and disciplinary instrumentalities by which the Government of the United States is endeavoring to improve and elevate the condition of these dependent tribes to whom it sustains the relation of guardian." (United States v. Clapox, 35 Fed. 575; and cf. Ex parte Bi-a-lil-le, 12 Ariz. 150, 100 Pac. 450; United States v. Van Wert, 195 Fed. 974). Perhaps a more satisfactory defense of their legality is the doctrine put forward by a recent writer that the Courts of Indian Offenses "derive their authority from the tribe, rather than from Washington."¹

Whichever of these explanations be offered for the existence of the Courts of Indian Offenses, their establishment cannot be held to have destroyed or limited the powers vested by existing law in the Indian tribes over the province of law and order and the administration of civil and criminal justice.

THE POWER OF AN INDIAN TRIBE TO SUPERVISE GOVERNMENT EMPLOYEES

Although the power to supervise regular Government employees is certainly not an inherent power of Indian tribal sovereignty, it is a power which is specifically granted to the Indian tribes by statute, subject to the discretion of the Secretary of the Interior. U. S. Code, Title 25, Section 48, provides:

Right of tribes to direct employment of persons engaged for them. Where any of the tribes are, in the opinion of the Secretary of the Interior, competent to direct the employment of their blacksmiths, mechanics, teachers, farmers, or other persons engaged for them, the direction of such persons may be given to the proper authority of the tribe. (R. S. sec. 2072.)

Under the terms of this statute it is clearly within the discretionary authority of the Secretary of the Interior to grant to the proper authorities of an Indian tribe all powers of supervision and control over local employees which may now be exercised by the Secretary, e. g., the power to specify the duties, within a general range set by the nature of the employment, which the employee is to perform, the power to prescribe standards for appointment, promotion and continuance in office, the power to compel reports, from time to time, of work accomplished or begun.

It will be noted that the statute in question is not restricted to the cases in which a Federal employee is paid out of tribal funds. Senators are responsible to their constituents regardless of the source of their salaries, and heretofore most Indian Service employees have been responsible only to the Federal Government, though their salaries might be paid from the funds of the tribe.

In directing the employment of Indian Service employees, an Indian tribe may impose upon such employees the duty of enforcing the laws and ordinances of the tribe, and the authority of Federal employees so acting has been repeatedly confirmed by the courts. See Morris v. Hitchcock (194 U. S. 384); Buster v. Wright (135 Fed. 947, app. dismissed 203 U. S. 599); Maxey v. Wright (3 Ind. T. 243, 54 S. W. 807, aff'd 105 Fed. 1003); Zevely v. Weimer (5 Ind. T. 646, 82 S. W. 941); 23 Ops. Atty. Gen. 528.

The section in question has not, apparently, been extensively used by the Interior Department, and that Department, under a previous administration, has recommended its repeal. Congress has not seen fit, however, to repeal the statute, and the recommendation of a previous Secretary of the Interior has no particular weight in construing the meaning of the statute.

CONCLUSIONS

I conclude that under Section 16 of the Wheeler-Howard Act (Public No. 383, 73d Congress) the "powers vested in any Indian tribe or tribal council by existing law", are those powers of local self-government which have never been terminated by law or waived by treaty, and that chief among these powers are the following:

1. The power to adopt a form of government, to create various offices and to prescribe the duties thereof, to provide for the manner of election and removal of tribal officers, to prescribe the procedure of the tribal council and subordinate committees or councils, to provide for the salaries or expenses of tribal officers and other expenses of public business, and, in general, to prescribe the forms through which the will of the tribe is to be executed.

2. To define the conditions of membership within the tribe, to prescribe rules for adoption, to classify the members of the tribe and to grant or withhold the right of suffrage in all matters save those as to which voting qualifications are specifically defined by the Wheeler-Howard Act (that is, the referendum on the act, and votes on acceptance, modification or revocation of Constitution, by-laws or charter), and to make all other necessary rules and regulations governing the membership of the tribe so far as may be consistent with existing acts of Congress governing the enrollment and property rights of members.

3. To regulate the domestic relations of its members by prescribing rules and regulations concerning marriage, divorce, legitimacy, adoption, the care of dependents, and the punishment of offenses against the marriage relationship, to appoint guardians for minors and mental incompetents, and to issue marriage licenses and decrees of divorce, adopting such State laws as seem advisable or establishing separate tribal laws.

4. To prescribe rules of inheritance with respect to all personal property and all interests in real property other than regular allotments of land.

5. To levy dues, fees, or taxes upon the members of the tribe and upon non-members residing or doing any business of any sort within the reservation, so far as may be consistent with the power of the Commissioner of Indian Affairs over licensed traders.

6. To remove or to exclude from the limits of the reservation non-members of the tribe, excepting authorized Government officials and other persons now occupying reservation lands under lawful authority, and to prescribe appropriate rules and regulations governing such removal and exclusion, and governing the conditions under which non-members of the tribe may come upon tribal land or have dealings with tribal members, providing such acts are consistent with Federal laws governing trade with the Indian tribes.

7. To regulate the use and disposition of all property within the jurisdiction of the tribe and to make public expenditures for the benefit of the tribe, out of tribal funds, where legal title to such funds lies in the tribe.

8. To administer justice with respect to all disputes and offenses of or among the members of the tribe, other than the ten major crimes reserved to the Federal courts.

9. To prescribe the duties and to regulate the conduct of Federal employees, but only in so far as such powers of supervision may be expressly delegated by the Interior Department.

It must be noted that these conclusions are advanced on the basis of general legislation and judicial decisions of general import, and are subject to modification with respect to particular tribes in the light of particular powers granted, or particular restrictions imposed, by special treaties or by special legislation. With this qualification, the conclusions advanced are intended to apply to all Indian tribes recognized now or hereafter by the legislative or the executive branch of the Federal Government.

Respectfully,

NATHAN R. MARGOLD, Solicitor.
