FROM THE EDITOR

Webster defines ignorance as lacking knowledge or experience. This definition would lead one to believe that ignorance is curable. But is it really? Do most people choose to be ignorant? If we believe Webster, then how can ignorance be anything but a chosen condition supported by the party or parties who participate. Recently, I have begun to wonder if ignorance is contagious, but my real concern is that, if it is contagious, how the hell does it spread?

I would like to share some experiences I have had with ignorance recently. In fact, some of these people never seemed ignorant to me before. I will let you decide.

A man with whom I have been associated with for the past fifteen years recently remarked, "AIDS is a result of promiscuity and these "homos" deserve it." This man claims to be a fundamentalist Christian. I can't see a damn thing Christian in his attitude.

Oh, and let's not leave out the office. Anyone who works in an office these days is probably aware that AIDS is the hottest topic going. I got in on a conversation recently where a secretary admitted her husband's brother had AIDS and is going blind. She ended the confession by adding, "But he's a queer," as if that removed all compassion. Two of the participants in the conversation are positive AIDS is transmitted through casual contact and mosquito bites. Their solution is to ship everyone with AIDS to an island without medical supplies and just enough food to sustain themselves. I wonder how long the food shipments will last?

Then there are people with my kind of ignorance. I'll explain. A very close friend of my brother was recently diagnosed with AIDS. We have all been out together partying, and I am very fond of this guy, but we had never kept in close contact except through my brother. I consider him the favorite of my brother's friends. He is a beautiful man, a giving and caring person. I asked for his phone number with the intention of calling because I knew he was having a really tough time. Then I started thinking, "What will I say? Do I call and act like nothing is wrong? What the hell am I going to say?" I went straight home and put the phone number under my alarm clock. Two weeks later my brother called. He was upset. "Call tomorrow because he is going in the hospital." I went through my "I don't know what to say" crap all over again. To which my brother replied, "Call and act like everything is fine, let him talk. It would mean so much to him."

I called. I felt better. We talked. His parting words were, "I love you". I felt like a rat for not calling sooner. I love him too and what a selfish ignorant thing not to have called sooner.

But there are a lot of people who don't call, as my brother says, because they don't know what to say. It is easier than you think because once you start talking things are OK.

If we do not extend our hands and help our brothers, who will? If we do not have the courage to stand up and fight for them, who does? How can we live with ourselves if we turn our backs? Will we live in fear and ignorance or face the future as rational, realistic, compassionate adults. You decide because I have reached my decision, ignorance is contagious, but preventable. It's your choice.

VISA...IT'S WHERE YOU DON'T WANT TO BE

Dear Editor,

I was furious yesterday to pick up a magazine and read a full page ad stating that every time I use my Visa card between now and December 31, Visa will make a donation to the 1988 U.S. Olympic Team.

Your readers should know that the U.S. Olympic Committee has a notoriously anti-gay history. In 1982, it sued organizers of what was then called the Gay Olympics, on the grounds that Congress had granted the USOC exclusive rights to use the word 'olympics'. Dozens of others groups, ranging from the Armenian Olympics and the Police Olympics to the Rat Olympics and the Crab-Cooking Olympics, had used the term; the USOC had never seemed to mind. But the Gay Olympics got hit with an expensive lawsuit.

Ultimately, the USOC forced the Gay Olympics to change their name to the Gay Games. As a gay man, I refuse to make a purchase that results in a contribution going to the U.S. Olympic Team.

I urge readers who feel the same way to do what I'm doing: Cut your VISA card in half, and send one half to Jan Soderstrom, VISA-Marketing Dept., Olympic Program, P.O. Box 8999, San Francisco, CA 94128. Enclose a note explaining why you will not use your card again.

Then send the other half to me: Sasha Alyson, Alyson Publications, 40 Plympton St., Boston, MA 02118. I think I can find an artist who likes working creatively with unusual materials, and who can use these half-cards to sculpt a memorial to Tom Waddell, the Gay Games founder who recently died of AIDS. DO IT NOW! And we can have the memorial in time for the October March on Washington.

We don't often get such an easy, clear-cut way to fight back against the discrimination we face. Let's not pass up this chance.

Sincerely,

Sasha Alyson

LESBIAN SHUNS MALE FRIEND

Dear Dimensions:

I received a phone call from a "good friend" of mine telling me that her straight, married roommate had requested she no longer associate with my lover and I because they were concerned about her transmitting the AIDS virus to their children. "I'll call you, but I won't be coming to visit anymore," she said. "You associate with persons with ARC, have lost friends to AIDS, and you are probably going to come down with it too.

I've known this person for 10 years! If it hadn't been for me hearing her cries for help, she would have drowned last September while we were on vacation together in Cancun, Mexico. I felt like this was something that I had to share with your readers and, at the same time, publicly respond to her homophobia.

John

Dallas, TX

Editor's Note: The following is the letter John sent to his "good friend."

Dear Gloria,

In regards to our recent conversation, I'm sorry you feel you can't associate with gay men anymore because you'll expose your roommates to the AIDS virus. You being a lesbian, I expected more from you, especially since we've been friends for so many years. I only wish you didn't read the 'National Enquirer' for your source of information. I am also aware of your sick infatuation for your married, heterosexual roommate who helped put these misconceptions in your small brain. You can tell your "roommates" that if they're so concerned about bringing up their children to be Falwell Flunkies that they should quit smoking pot and drinking alcohol around their children as well as keep better company than a devout lesbian as yourself.

Your type of thinking can only indicate a terrible inner conflict you must feel in being homosexual. I know you're ashamed to level with most people about your sexuality. Does this mean that you won't be able to associate with your gay brother?

You are and will remain a shame and an embarrassment to the gay community. I wonder what most of your gay brothers and sisters would feel?

John

NEWS

FEDERAL DISTRICT JUDGE JERRY BUCHMEYER TO SPEAK ON GAY RIGHTS

DALLAS - Federal District Judge Jerry Buchmeyer will be the guest speaker at a special banquet to raise the awareness of gay rights in Texas, according to William Waybourn, president to the Dallas Gay Alliance and the sponsoring organization. The event will be held Saturday, September 12th, at the Fairmont Hotel. Tickets are $50 and available by invitation or through the Dallas Gay Alliance.

Judge Buchmeyer delivered his opinion striking down Texas sodomy laws on August 17th, 1982, because Section 21.06 denied homosexuals their Constitutional rights of privacy and equal protection. The ruling was appealed to the Fifth Circuit Court and upheld 2 to 1. That ruling was subsequently appealed by Amarillo District Attorney Danny Hill to the Fifth Circuit Court en banc and overturned. The Texas Human Rights Foundation, which has been the litigating foundation for the 21.06 case, then appealed to the Supreme Court, which declined to review the Fifth Court's latest decision. Judge Buchmeyer's original decision has been hailed by legal professionals and in juris prudence academic circles as a landmark gay rights ruling. However the prevailing opinion of the entire Fifth Circuit Court serves to recriminalize homosexual behavior in Texas.

Waybourn said the Dallas Gay Alliance was honored to provide Judge Buchmeyer a forum to address the subsequent ruling regarding 21.06 and to recognize him as "someone who significantly raised the self-esteem of gays across Texas with his 1982 ruling when gays needed it the most." Invitations to the dinner will be mailed to gay leaders and organizations across the state, but anyone may attend. For more information, contact the Dallas Gay Alliance at 528-4233.

YOUR SUGGESTIONS NEEDED FOR AIDS BOOKLET

BOSTON - Virtually anyone, whatever their skills or available time, can do something to help in the fight against AIDS.

That's the premise of a new booklet, being prepared as a non-profit, cooperative effort by a number of publishers and writers. The booklet, titled You CAN Do Something About AIDS, will be widely distributed next spring, free of charge.

"I think huge numbers of people in middle America, including many who a few years ago didn't know what AIDS was, are now eager to do something about it," says Sasha Alyson. His company, Alyson Publications, is coordinating the all-volunteer effort.

"Unfortunately, most of those people assume there's nothing they can do. The point of this booklet is to give them some ideas, to get them started, to encourage them to think creatively about the options open to them."

Some of those ideas will be relatively obvious: write to your elected representatives, for example. Others will be less obvious: volunteer your specific skills to help a local AIDS group; or find ways to combat AIDS within the context of your profession.

"The booklet will emphasize the wide range of ways that people can help fight AIDS," Alyson explains. "We've got a lot of ideas already, but we need more. We want to be creative in exploring the many steps, big and small, that individuals around the country can take." He asks that anyone who has suggestions write to him at Alyson Publications, 40 Plympton St., Boston, Mass. 02118

After Hollywood producer Samuel Goldwyn bought the screen rights to a Broadway play, he was told it was a lesbian love story. He shrugged and said:

“We can always call them Bulgarians.”

It was too wonderful a line to let it go to waste. Now, theater historian Kaier Curtin has used Goldwyn's utterance as the title for a fascinating new book. Here, he uncovers the long-repressed story of gay and lesbian characters on the Broadway stage in the first half of this century. Filled with wonderful stories and intriguing facts, “We Can Always Call Them Bulgarians” gives us back the chapter that's been left out of our American theater courses.

Dear Agnes

Answers your questions about love, relationships & personal problems

Dear Agnes,

Please help! I'm a 22 year old art student and my lover is a 21 year old business woman. I am madly in love with her and she says she's in love with me. We met 2 years ago through a Lesbian writing club. We were both in the closet and completely inexperienced with women. We are still in the closet because we don't want to risk her losing her job.

We are very happy together most of the time but the problem is, I think she might regret not having dated other women before she met me. When we go out to the bars, I get the feeling that she's depressed when we leave and I know why. It's like a baby in a candy store. She sees all these great looking, interesting women and even though she loves me, I think she still might regret not being able to go out with other women.

This is definitely a closed relationship, I couldn't handle an open one. I couldn't stand to think of her sleeping with another woman. I thought I could at one point, if it would make her happy but I know that would be impossible.

Maybe it's just a stage she's going through. I don't think she would ever mess around with anyone else, I'm just not sure and it's driving me crazy!
Needs Help in Dallas

Dear Help,

Communicate with your lover about your feelings and fears. You will never know if what you are thinking is right if you don't talk to her. Insecurity can make one's imagination run wild.

If you lover really wants to date other women then you should allow her to do so. Keeping someone in a closed relationship against their will can only lead to more problems (more fights, and alot of heartaches). Communication is your best bet in dealing with this situation.

Dear Agnes,

This is a big problem and I don't think I can stand it another minute! Please don't laugh because I know it sounds silly but, believe me, it's not. It causes more fights between my lover and me than anything else. The problem is her cat. She worships him. Their relationship is not the average pet/owner relationship. It's completely disgusting. It's like they're in love with each other. I swear the cat gets kinky around her...and, she kisses on it constantly. No exaggeration, she kisses the damn cat more than she kisses me!

She thinks I'm ridiculous for being jealous of her cat. If I tell her to put the cat down, she will, but I get the feeling she'd rather hold the cat than me. When she comes home from work, she kisses the cat before she kisses me. She even kisses it on the mouth! I told her she could get toxoplasmosis and that she could give it to me, but she doesn't listen.

If it wasn't for this damn cat, our relationship would be perfect.

Going Catty in Dallas

Dear Dallas,

First off, you should realize people's love for their pets and people's love for their lovers are two distinctly different kinds of love.

If your relationship is really perfect without the cat, try focusing on all the other positive aspects of it. I also get the impression from your letter that the only time you mention the cat is when you have something negative to say about him. Your letter seems to imply that if the cat were female, you could tolerate your lover's affection toward it better. Try to communicate your feeling of jealousy about the cat to your lover without being overly negative.

You should not let your feelings of jealousy get in the way of a near perfect relationship. Is the cat really the problem or an excuse to fight over an underlying problem. If talking doesn't help you come to grips with this situation, then I suggest you seek counseling. ♀

Hello, Readers! I am so happy to be here. Dimensions magazine has given me the opportunity to share a part of myself with you. I'm inviting you to join my coffee club. Each month we will gather here in these pages and discuss our common bonds as they appear in the books we read. We will talk about the most current as well as the joyous classics. We will relate the bad as well as the good and will meet the people behind the scenes.

These pages will be reserved not for dull monologue, but for spirited conversation. Write to me in care of Dimensions or Royal Press Mail-order and I will share your opinions and suggestions with our other coffee clubbers. Together, we will explore the fascinating world of lesbian literature.

Naiad Press, a recognized leader in lesbian publishing, has recently re-released The Black and White of It, a collection of short stories by Ann Allen Shockley. Originally published in 1980, Naiad has updated this volume with the addition of two new tales. These tales join the ten original stories to paint a picture of contrasts. Gay or straight, black or white - for some people there exist only these extremes with no room for a grey middle ground. They pick their sides and view any other with suspicion and bigotry. Each of these stories is an exploration of this sharply divided world.

Ms. Shockley has some trouble writing short stories. Her plots are thin, almost nonexistent. Most times the reader is left wishing for something more substantial. What we get instead is quick, bittersweet character sketches. This gets tiring after reading a few of the stories in a row. Individually, however, these portraits of lesbians confronting racial bigotry and homophobia in their lives easily gain one's sympathy.

Another recent re-release by Naiad is Zoe's Book, a novel by Gail Pass. This clever work was first published in 1976. It is the tale of a young woman drawn to the study of the crippled, elderly Zoe Mohr. She becomes enthralled as Zoe relates the story of her life with Julia, Zoe's lover. The tale is intricately spun and the characters are fascinating. Gertrude Stein and Alice B. Toklas make guest appearances, while Zoe's rival for the love of Julia is none other than Virginia Woolf herself.

Zoe's Book delivers on several levels such as style, characterization and believability. While the pacing sometimes lags, it never drops to the point of boredom and always manages to regain its momentum. Romantic and enjoyable with just a touch of mystery, this is a unique novel and an enjoyable read.

The Black and White of It and Zoe's Book are available for $7.95 each plus postage and handling from Royal Press Mail-order, P.O. Box 180788, Austin, TX 78718-0788. Texas residents please add 6 1/4% sales tax. If you have any observations or comments on any topic in the world of lesbian literature, please write me at the above address. I look forward to hearing from you.

MEMORANDUM

TO: The Woman in Cubicle #8

DATE: Today

FROM: The Woman in work Station #3

RE: Last Night

In response to your memo dated today, I must question your accusation that I have no control over certain overpowering biological urges that periodically cause me undue pressure or, more specifically, unrestrained madness within myself. And I should reiterate that I do possess those most inconvenient and sometimes unbecoming emotional qualities that beset me and thus display me as existing in a pre-pubescent state. I am only human. For these qualities I am ashamed and beg your indulgence. Only by sheer force of concentration upon more intellectual endeavors am I capable of oftentimes astounding resiliency from these monstrously lustful cravings for your company.

Presently, however, I do hereby confess that I am in dire need of some sort of gratification of the baser aspect of my physical needs lest I take leave of all my faculties.

If you could please see clear to provide a small quantity of assistance and concern in this area, I would be most appreciative.

Should you have any questions concerning procedures, please do not hesitate to call me at 555-3500, ext. B.

The Fine Art of Survival

by Tasha Sumner

So, you can't imagine that you'd ever need survival skills. After all, you hate camping, you live in a big city and well, you'd just never have occasion to be stranded in the Rocky Mountains, an African jungle or Death Valley.

You don't have to wander in the wilderness to need and use survival skills. Floods, hurricanes, tornadoes and other natural disasters can require at least a basic knowledge of these skills. However much more likely is the possibility of car trouble on a deserted road, a plane accident or a power black-out.

So, here are some basic skills for desert, winter and home survival. You may not ever need to put them to use but if you did, they just might save your life or that of someone you love.

ROAD & WILDERNESS SURVIVAL

WATER - Water is the first necessity. When traveling it is a good idea to keep a jug of water in the trunk of the car. If you don't carry water here are some pointers for getting it from other sources.

Streams, lakes, etc., are an obvious source of water but all of these must be sterilized by boiling before drinking. If you don't have a way to boil it, you can put two drops of iodine into 1 quart of water, let it set for 20 minutes and the water will be fairly safe to drink.

Snow is another obvious source of water, but you should never eat snow for moisture. The cold of the snow can rob your body of much needed warmth. It should always be melted first and then sterilized by one of the methods above.

And, yes, you can get water from the desert! With the help of a device called a "Solar Still" you can get water from even the driest looking country. Dig a shallow pit about 1 1/2 feet deep and 2 feet around. Place an empty, open coffee can in the center of the pit. Cover with a 3'x3' piece of heavy, clear plastic and secure it with rocks at all four corners. Now, place a rock in the center of the plastic so that the plastic sags towards the center of the can. Now any moisture in the ground will condense on the plastic and run towards the center where it will drip into the can. This method also can be used to purify water obtained by other methods, just pour the water into the pit and let it condense onto the plastic. It takes a while but it can mean the difference between life and death.

FIRE - Fire is a necessity for cooking, boiling water, signalling for help and warmth, but it's not always easy to get one started. The best thing you can do is carry long wooden kitchen matches that have been dipped in paraffin in a zip-lock bag. This ensures that the matches will be dry. Small (3"x3") squares of folded newspaper dipped in paraffin can be an excellent firestarter for wet wood and in places where small wood is scarce.

SHELTER - If you are stranded in your car, the best thing to do is stay close to the road and close to your car. Not only does it provide shelter from the elements, it can also protect you from attackers and you have a better chance of being rescued. If you are not in a car, you can build a shelter from broken limbs, blankets or anything you might have available to keep you out of the weather.

If you are stranded in the snow, do not ever turn on your car for warmth. Ice and snow can block exhaust pipes and cause toxic carbon monoxide to build up in the car possibly causing death or illness. If you must turn on the car for any reason, be sure to roll down both windows at least half-way.

FOOD - A supply of non-perishable food items (dried or freeze-dried foods, canned soups, beans, vegetables, etc.) should be carried with you in your car in case of emergency. If you do not carry food and you do not know what plants are edible, do not try to eat any of them. Even watching what birds and animals eat is not a good method, since what is good for them can often cause illness or death in humans and vice versa. It is best to go hungry for a few days rather than risk illness.

FIRST AID - Knowledge of First Aid and/or CPR can be vital to your survival. If you do not know either of these, contact your local Red Cross office for information about when and where classes are available. The cost is usually low and first aid training can prove invaluable wherever you are.

SURVIVAL AT HOME

A major emergency of almost any kind may interfere with your normal supplies of food, water, heat and other necessities at home. The following information will give you an idea of how to prepare for an emergency and what steps to take if you haven't.

Water (in plastic jugs or capped containers) should be stored in your home or storm shelter. During a natural disaster, you should also fill your bathtubs and sinks with water as soon as you hear of the emergency. Local water supplies may become contaminated through power loss or flood waters. These supplies of water should be covered and boiled before use as drinking water.

Keep at least week's supply of food on hand that does not require refrigeration or cooking. An extra supply of prescription medicines and first aid supplies are also good to have around. If you wear prescription glasses or contacts, an extra pair of these might come in handy also. Flashlights, transistor radios, extra batteries, candles and matches are obviously needed. Work gloves and clothing may also be necessary. If you have not prepared for these emergencies, listen to your radio or television and find out where the community shelters are in your area. They will provide shelter, food, clothing and medical supplies. However, it is always best to be prepared to remain in your home since emergency shelters may not be readily available.

SURVIVAL KIT

A survival kit for your car and your home can greatly increase your chances of survival. The following is a list of items you may need and what they can be used for.

Large Coffee Can w/ Lid - use to store other equipment; for cooking, boiling & collecting water; for use as a waterproof container.

Iodine - for sterilizing water; treating cuts and abrasions

Matches - Large wooden kitchen matches are best when dipped in paraffin to prevent moisture from ruining them. Store in zip-lock bag.

-23- Fire Starters - 3x3 pieces of folded newspaper dipped in paraffin make a water-proof, fast starting, long-burning fire starter.

Knife - Hunting knife or large pocket knife.

Flashlight - with at least 2 extra sets of batteries

Radio - battery powered, with extra batteries

Short Stout Candles - for fire starting and light

Toilet Paper - easier to store if center cardboard removed and roll flattened

Sanitary Napkins or Tampons - no explanation needed

Maps of the area in which you are traveling

Small (3x3) piece of clear, heavy plastic

Band-aids

Aspirin

Kleenexes

Rolled Bandage & Tape

Vaseline - for chapped lips, sunburn, windburn & protection for hands against cold

Extra supply of any prescription medication

Extra prescription eyeglasses

Sunscreen
Work gloves

All of the above can be fitted into a small tackle box or tool box and carried in the trunk of your car or stored at home.

When packing for a trip, always carry clothes for the climate you will be traveling to and the climates you will be traveling through! A long sleeve shirt and hat are a necessity when traveling across desert to protect against sunburn.

If traveling by car through a cold climate, put blankets or sleeping bags in the trunk, along with a hat, gloves, heavy socks, etc. You may be on your way to a warmer climate, but you never know what can happen on the road!

I could go on and on, there is much more to survival than this. But, I've given you the basics. If you wish to learn more, your local bookstore or library is the best place to look. You may also want to check into some classes on this subject in your area.

Poetry

*I looked up to see her face
Touched by her warmth and grace
Her eyes filled with love and fear
As I reached to draw her near
I took her hand trembling yet willing
I wanted to share my every feeling
Watching her eyes at my first touch
She shed a tear, the love was too much
A gentle smile on her heart was placed
Then her body and soul I embraced
I prayed this night would never end
The night I made love to my best friend.*

you are you are here
now.
be aware of yourself and your surroundings...
there are raindrops falling and leaves rustling music—
just for you.
there are sunsets
and seagulls and clouds—peace
just for you.
and there is you
for you
when these things cannot be found.
you are perfect.
you are the perfect you.
cast your cares to the wind
be happy
be free
but most of all—
be you.

IF YOU SCORED: 25-17

Satisfaction describes your sex life well. You know that you are responsible for your own sexual satisfaction and therefore you derive greater enjoyment from it. You are comfortable with touching, and are not afraid of rejection. You know how to let go of your inhibitions and enjoy yourself. You have the communication skills to let your lover know what is best for you in bed and you use them quite frequently. You are not overpowering and encourage your lovers to communicate with you also.

16-8

For the most part you are quite happy with your sex life but you have a tendency to be somewhat inhibited. Because of this, your sex life may seem to have no middle ground, there tends to be some pleasure mixed with unhappiness about the way you look, perform, etc. Try loosening up a bit and tell your lover what makes you happy. Communication is definitely the key to good sex. Don't worry about your looks or performance...just try to enjoy yourself!

7-0

You are unhappy with your sex life more than half of the time and this is definitely not good. Sex is a very complex part of our mental and physical well-being. You may think that your sex life does not affect how happy you are in other areas of your life but sexual dissatisfaction is not to be taken lightly. Sexuality plays a large role in our lives and should be recognized for its importance. Research has found that sexual anxiety is a major cause of sexual dissatisfaction in women. Self-analysis is called for in this situation. Find out what makes you unhappy and work to change it.

SCORPIO

(Oct 24 - Nov 23)

The first week of September emotions run high for Scorpio. Love may be a major conflict in your life now. Partners are not the problem, making up your mind about what you want is. The 8th to the 16th may find you stressed out. Now is good time to take some time off, go on a short trip or just sit home. It is an excellent time to be alone. There may be conflict if a lover is involved in your day to day activities now. The 17th to the 23rd will find you caught up in social activities. There are new and exciting people to meet, your career is taking off, and happiness is within reach. Grab it.

SAGITTARIUS

(Nov 23 - Dec 21)

The first week of September starts an new cycle in your love life. Test the waters before you jump in. This should be the start of a very positive period for you. The 8th to the 16th watch what you say or you may get more than you bargain for especially in the romance department. Avoid people who will use you now. The 17th to the 23rd may find you in a strange situation with either a friend or financial matter. Check out the situation before you make any promises. Remain cautious in your romances. Try to be open mind with friends and don't overemphasize your opinion. The 24th to month's end career and money come into sharp focus. Organization is your key at work, and do not to act until you are organized.

CAPRICORN (Dec 22 - Jan 19th)

The first week of September may be a better time for planning than action. Surround yourself with friends whom you enjoy this week. Friends who put you in a good mood. Be cautious in business. The 8th to the 16th try to maintain harmony in your life and avoid being judgmental. Plan for the future. The 17th to the 23rd your social calendar is filled and romance plays an important role in all these activities. Don't let someone's jealousy spoil your mood by casting doubts where they don't belong. The 24th to month's end avoid gossip and don't discuss your personal problems. This is a time for planning and moving forward in your life. Don't dwell on events that can't be changed. Romance should keep you busy. Enjoy yourself.

AQUARIUS (Jan 20 - Feb 18)

The 1st to the 7th could be an excellent time to socialize. Romance is in the picture too and you may be most attractive in familiar surroundings. The 8th thru the 16th may find you with new and exciting opportunities. This doesn't mean money, but that may change down the road. Your love life will continue to keep excitement in your life. The 17th to the 23rd your moodiness will be showing this week. A lover may not understand. Work will be demanding but rewarding and travel could be involved. The 24th to month's end may prove to be a difficult time. You may find a relationship "too much" because of pressure or continuing difficulties. The social calendar will be filled this week.

Splurge and buy that new outfit you want.

PISCES (Feb 19 - Mar 20)

The past may haunt you this first week of September and add to the difficulties encountered in a relationship. Put the past behind you. Don't lose your temper. The 8th to the 16th could be financially tough. Get control of your money and don't complain. Work and friends are your two key assets. Listen to the advice of a relative. The 17th to the 23rd begins a period of change. Change for the better. Planning for the future should be high on your list of priorities now. The 24th to month's end, change will continue to be a key part of your life. Friends play a major role in your life now. Be at your best. A trip may be just what you need and the opportunity will present itself.

ARIES (Mar 21 - April 19)

The first week of September may find you planning a career move, but do all your homework before making any decisions. People around you may be in disagreement over an important issue. Wait for the right time to get involved. The 8th to the 16th be optimistic in matters of love and don't base this romance on past experience. Changes are ahead in your career and there are financial gains in association with it. The 17th to the 23rd could be a difficult week. Beware of trusting secrets to friends or associates; things could easily backfire. A new acquaintance may be attractive to you but beware of involvement. The 24th to month's end is an excellent time to entertain. Don't over indulge yourself. Avoid over eating or drinking. Take care of yourself.

TAURUS (April 20 - May 20)

Avoid gossip, even if someone else is digging at you the first week of September. There are other more adult ways of dealing with such problems. The 8th to the 16th could be a major turning point in your life because of a new opportunity. Someone you have trusted may turn out to be a fraud. It may be best to cut this person out of your life. The 17th to the 23rd could find you in the mood to shop. There are some items at home you should replace. Spend wisely. The 24th to month's end should be a peaceful period, catch up on your reading, movie watching, or other hobbies you have neglected. You may be in a reclusive mood now.

GEMINI (May 21 - June 21)

The first week of September may be an emotional one. Try not to blame others for your mood. Financial prospects are good if you work hard. The 8th to the 16th your work may be much more rewarding than your love life. Be faithful to work, it will pay off. This is a good time to shop for a fall wardrobe. The 17th to the 23rd will find your love life back on track. Be thoughtful of others this week, call or mail a card to friends you haven't corresponded with in a while. The 24th to month's end will be an excellent time for vacation. Go away and indulge yourself. After all you deserve it. If you stay around home, entertain, but save time for yourself.

CANCER (June 22 - July 22)

The first week of September expect good news about a project you are working on. Be cautious in love especially if there are great differences between you and your lover. The 8th to the 16th is a great time to start a self-improvement program. It could change your entire outlook. The 17th to the 23rd could find you catching up on reading or other projects you enjoy. There may be a disagreement with someone you know.

The 24th to month's end a new romance may have your interest. Do not let other people's opinions sway your thinking. A new creative idea for business may be in the works. Put it on paper and it will get the ball rolling for you. Remember, anything is possible if you will work for it.

LEO (July 23 - Aug 22)

September may start as a quiet time for the Lion. Relax, stay home and do the things you really enjoy. Don't let anyone "get to you" this week. The 8th to the 16th continue with the slower pace of the previous week. It may suit you to shop for fall clothes now, but spend with care. Romance enters the picture at week's end. The 17th to the 23rd may find you meeting social demands, but romance will mix nicely into the picture too. Surround yourself with positive people or you could end up with a case of the blues. The 24th to the 30th will continue to be socially demanding. There may be times you end up rushing from event to event. This may be related to a community project you have been involved in.
