Central is Oklahoma's largest metropolitan university, providing our students direct access to internships, jobs, and the cultural offerings of the Oklahoma City metro – just minutes from one of the nation's safest suburbs. Central's presence expands to reach throughout the metro, with facilities like the CHK|Central Boathouse, the Academy of Contemporary Music at UCO and UCO at the Carnegie Centre, as well as UCO at Santa Fe Plaza. This expanded presence creates strong connections with businesses and organizations, providing unmatched opportunities for our students to learn and our community to thrive.

An Education as Unique as You

An education at Central means a personal experience. Whether you prefer in-person classes or you're looking to stay online, Central has options that fit your needs and keep you on track to graduate.

IN-PERSON: Join your fellow peers inside the classroom on campus, as part of a more traditional learning experience.

HYBRID: A hybrid learning experience splits time between in-classroom learning and taking learning online, offering the convenience of an online course, while occasionally bringing students and their professors together in a face-to-face environment.

ONLINE: Learn on your own time with online classes. Central offers a variety of online-only courses, as well as a few degree programs completely online through its Connected Campus. Visit online.uco.edu to learn more.

Track Your Transformation

We know learning doesn't stop when you leave the classroom. UCO's Student Transformative Learning Record (STLR) helps you track those unique learning experiences from internships, volunteer service, involvement in student organizations, cultural activities and more. These activities are tied to our Central 6 tenet categories of transformative learning, represented by the colorful icons to the right.
