Against which there will remain on June 30, 1893, unexpended balances of continuing appropriations for heavy ordnance, rivers and harbors, increase of the Navy and public buildings amounting to $44,000,000.00.

No account is made in the foregoing of the requirements of the sinking fund for 1894, amounting to $48,600,000 beyond the redemption of past due bonds, fractional currency, and national bank notes estimated at $5,000,000.

The estimated receipts are based upon conditions prevailing prior to the late election. Public opinion having decreed a change of policy, particularly in the tariff laws, the altered conditions resulting therefrom render it impossible at the present time to estimate the annual income with any marked degree of accuracy, and it is impossible to predict the effect that such proposed radical changes would have upon the future revenues of the Government.

Under all of the circumstances, it would be inappropriate in me to undertake to make an estimate other than as already stated, but it is not out of place to remark that the business community having a full knowledge of proposed tariff reductions, the inevitable result will be a falling off in importations and a corresponding decrease in the revenues. The extent of this decrease no one will be able to measure until business shall again adjust itself to new conditions.

A careful review of all the facts fully justifies the opinion that the large increase of receipts ascribed to the marvelous prosperity of the country under the present revenue system would, if continued, enable the Department during the coming fiscal year to meet all obligations without the slightest impairment of its cash, and thereafter continue to show a material improvement in its condition.

The estimates of appropriations for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1894, are based upon the reports of the heads of Departments and other data at command. They are believed to be only such as the needs of the public service demand.

Legislation will determine the amount to be appropriated and administration will in many instances define the sum to be expended in any one year. The committees of Congress can, with the data here furnished, more closely determine the appropriations to be made for the year ending June 30, 1894, and also of expenditures to be made therefrom, and from continuing appropriations above referred to, than it is possible for the Department to do at this time.

SINKING FUND.

The act of February 25, 1862, section 5 (12 Stat., 346), provides that all duties on imported goods shall be paid in coin, and that the coin so paid shall be set apart as a special fund and applied, first, to the payment of interest on bonds and notes of the United States; and second, "to the purchase or payment of one per centum of the entire debt of the United States, to be made within each fiscal year after the first day of July, eighteen hundred and sixty-two, which is to be set apart as a sinking fund, and the interest of which shall in like manner be applied to the purchase or payment of the public debt, as the Secretary of the Treasury shall from time to time direct."

The total requirements of the fund to June 30, 1892, as shown by the appended table, aggregate $924,394,426.34. The bonds and other securities annually applied to the fund, including interest paid thereon, aggregate $935,337,061.20, and the total redemption of the debt including amounts applied to the fund since August 31, 1865, when the debt attained its highest point, aggregated $1,914,905,107.83, or $990,510,681.49 more than was required to be paid by the terms of the sinking fund act. It is hardly probable that more than about $7,000,000 can be credited to the fund during the present fiscal year as against a legal requirement exceeding $48,000,000, and further applications to the fund during succeeding years must necessarily be limited to such small sums as may from time to time be paid for past due bonds, fractional currency, and national bank notes redeemed under the act of July 14, 1890.

The act of March 3, 1881 (21 Stat. 457), provides that the Secretary of the Treasury may at any time apply the surplus money in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated to the purchase or redemption of United States bonds. In view of this provision and of the very large decrease of the debt already effected in excess of the legal requirements of the act, coupled with the probable future condition of the national finances, I would strongly urge its repeal. Sound policy would seem to dictate this course. The conditions which called for its enactment have long since passed away, and no valid reason for its continuance now exists. I therefore recommend its unconditional repeal.

The total debt of the United States, less cash in the Treasury, at its maximum point, August 31, 1865, was..... $2,756,431,571 43
 On June 30, 1892, it was..... 841,526,463 60

Making a reduction of the debt, less cash in the Treasury, of..... 1,914,905,107 83
 Or $990,510,681.49 more than the requirements of the sinking fund called for.

One of the embarrassments to the Treasury, in the opinion of the Secretary, is the inability, with the limited amount of cash on hand above the one-hundred-million reserve, to keep up a sufficient gold supply. When the demand comes for the exportation of gold the Treasury is called upon to furnish it. If this demand should prove to be as large the coming year as it has been for the past two years, gold in the Treasury would be diminished to or below the reserve line.

The status of this reserve and its amount, have recently been subjects of discussion. In the bank act of 1882 Congress gave expression to its belief that $100,000,000 in gold was a suitable reserve; by providing that whenever the amount of gold in the Treasury should fall below that sum the issue of gold certificates should cease. In 1885 the then Secretary of the Treasury adopted the practice of reporting $100,000,000 of the gold in the Treasury as a "reserve for the redemption of United States notes," and recently the majority of the Judiciary Committee of the present House of Representatives expressed the opinion that under existing law the maintenance of this reserve is obligatory.

But, if $100,000,000 in gold was a suitable or necessary reserve in 1882 and in 1885, it would seem clear that a greater reserve is necessary now. It should be remembered that since 1882 we have added to our silver circulation the sum of $259,016,182 in standard silver dollars coined under the old silver act of 1878. These dollars are nearly all outstanding, and largely represented by silver certificates. We have also increased the legal-tender paper circulation by issuing about $120,000,000 of the Treasury notes authorized by the act of July 14, 1890, and to this we are adding about four millions each month in payment of silver bullion purchased.

It is true that silver certificates are not redeemable in gold, and that the Treasury notes of 1890 are redeemable in coin; but since it has been declared to be the established policy of the United States to maintain the two metals, silver and gold, on a parity with each other, it is obvious that this large addition to our circulation has increased the possible charge upon our gold reserve.

In view, therefore, of these increased and increasing liabilities, the reserve in the Treasury for the redemption of the Government obligations should, in my opinion, be increased to the extent of at least 20 per cent of the amount of Treasury notes issued and to be issued under the act of July 14, 1890.

As will be seen by the estimates submitted, the receipts of the current and the next fiscal year are not likely, if present conditions continue, to fall below expenditures. Yet in view of the fact that the surplus for this year will be small, upon the basis stated, with the probability of a falling off in receipts for causes mentioned, I think the revenues should be so increased as to enable the Treasury Department to maintain a gold reserve of not less than $125,000,000, and to maintain a comfortable working balance in the Treasury cash. As a general revision of our customs laws is now probable, I do not feel at liberty to suggest any special method for increasing the revenue, though I should otherwise think that an additional tax on whisky, which could be collected without additional cost, would furnish an easy method.

PUBLIC MONEYS.

The monetary transactions of the Government have been conducted through the Treasurer of the United States, 9 subtreasury officers, and 202 national-bank depositaries. The number of such depositaries on November 1, 1892, was 159, and the amount of public moneys held by them on that date, including those to credit of the Treasurer's general account and United States disbursing officers, was $15,862,414.81, a reduction, since November 1, 1891, in number of depositaries of 24 and in amount of holdings of $4,515,688.87.

LOANS AND CURRENCY.

Since March 1, 1889, there have been purchased and canceled United States bonds of the face value of $233,729,150, for which there was expended the sum of $270,952,431.20. Of the bonds so purchased $121,615,950 were four per cents and $112,113,200 four and one-half per cents. The expenditure was $55,352,493.51 less than the sum which would be required to redeem the bonds and pay interest thereon to the date of their maturity.

During the same period there were redeemed at par $25,504,700 four and one-half per cent bonds, and a further amount of $25,364,500 of the same loan has been continued during the pleasure of the Government, to bear interest at the rate of 2 per cent per annum. The annual interest charge March 1, 1889, was $34,578,459.80; it is now $22,893,990.80.

The volume of money in circulation has increased during the twelve months ended November 1, 1892, as shown by the following table:

The principal changes are in gold certificates and Treasury notes of the act of July 14, 1890. Of the former there is a decrease of $15,844,970, and of the latter an increase of $48,093,939.

The increase in circulation since March 1, 1889, is $201,933,839, of which $152,048,345 is paper money. The amount of paper money held in the Treasury March 1, 1889, was nearly thirty millions greater than on November 1, 1892, while the net increase in the issue was $122,366,433. A notable fact connected with this increase is the large quantity of notes of the smaller denominations added to the volume of money, while at the same time there has been a decrease in the higher denominations. This is shown in the accompanying table :

Table showing the amounts of paper currency, by denominations, outstanding on March 1, 1889, and on November 1, 1892, and the changes during that period.

PRECIOUS METALS.

Deposits and purchases.

The value of the gold deposited at the mints and assay offices during the fiscal year 1892, was $66,476,975.98, of which $61,131,460.04 were original deposits, and $5,345,515.94 were redeposits.

Of the original deposits, $31,961,546.11 were the product of our own mines; $24,975,342.39 foreign gold coin and bullion; $557,967.86 light weight domestic gold coin; and $3,636,603.68 old material.

The deposits and purchases of silver aggregated 72,121,268.03 standard ounces, of the coining value of $83,922,930.01, including 640,461.19 standard ounces, of the coining value of $745,263.92 redeposits.

Of the silver received, 63,130,608.86 standard ounces, of the coining value of $73,461,072.08, were the product of our own mines; 2,118,077.89 standard ounces, of the coining value of $2,464,672.45, were foreign silver bullion and coin; 5,593,907.71 standard ounces, of the coining value of $6,509,274.43, were uncurrent domestic coins; 1,921.53 standard ounces, of the value of $2,235.96, were trade dollars; and 636,290.85 standard ounces, of the coining value of $740,411.17, consisted of old plate, jewelry, etc.

Coinage.

The coinage of the mints during the last fiscal year aggregated 113,-556,124 pieces, valued as follows :

|                        |                 |
|------------------------|-----------------|
| Gold.....              | $35,506,987.50 |
| Silver.....            | 8,329,467.00    |
| Subsidiary silver..... | 6,659,811.60    |
| Minor coins.....       | 1,296,710.42    |
| Total.....             | 51,792,976.52   |

The number of silver dollars coined during the fiscal year from bullion purchased under the act of July 14, 1890, was 3,450,995, and from trade-dollar bullion 4,878,472, a total of 8,329,467 silver dollars upon which the seigniorage or profit was $930,487.41.

The total coinage of silver dollars from March 1, 1878, to November 1, 1892, has been as follows :

|   |                 |
|---|-----------------|
| Act of February 28, 1878.....                     | $378, 166, 793 |
| Act of July 14, 1890 .....                        | 33, 167, 570    |
| Act of March 3, 1891 (trade-dollar bullion) ..... | 5, 078, 472     |
| Total .....                                       | 416, 412, 835   |

The net profit on the coinage of silver during the fourteen years ended June 30, 1892, including the balances in the coinage mints on July 1, 1878, has aggregated $72,736,065.

Bars.

In addition to the coinage, gold bars were manufactured during the last fiscal year, of the value of $36,125,552.39, and silver bars of the value of $7,130,270.12, a total of $43,255,822.51.

Purchases of silver.

The purchases of silver during the last year were made under the provisions of the act of July 14, 1890, requiring the purchase of 4,500,000 ounces in each month.

The total amount purchased was 54,335,748 fine ounces, costing $51,106,608, the average cost being 94 cents per ounce.

The total amount of silver purchased under the act of July 14, 1890, from August 13, 1890, to November 1, 1892, has been 120,479,981 fine ounces, costing $116,783,590, an average cost of $0.969 per ounce.

The price of silver fluctuated during the last fiscal year from $1.02 to $0.855 per fine ounce, a variation of 16½ cents an ounce.

Since July 1, 1892, the price still further declined until, on August 11, 1892, it reached 83 cents a fine ounce, the lowest price on record.

The price November 1, 1892, was 86 cents per fine ounce.

The average price of silver during the year, based upon London quotations, was $0.937 a fine ounce.

Imports and exports.

The net loss of gold by exports during the fiscal year was only $142,654 against a loss in the preceding fiscal year of $67,946,768. The net exports of silver were $5,035,828, against a net import in the previous year of $2,745,365, a difference of $7,781,193.

Earnings and expenditures.

The total expenditures for the support of the mint service for the last fiscal year aggregated $1,106,538 against $1,335,910 in the preceding year, a reduction of expenses of $229,371.

The total earnings of the mints and assay offices from all sources were $2,294,288, and the total expenditures and losses of all kinds $1,500,494, a net profit of earnings over expenditures of $793,794.

The mines of the United States produced during the calendar year 1891 precious metals as follows:

|             | Fine ounces. | Commercial value. | Coining value. |
|-------------|--------------|-------------------|----------------|
| Gold.....   | 1,604,840    | $33,175,000      | $33,175,000   |
| Silver..... | 58,330,000   | 57,680,040        | 75,416,565     |

The product of the mines and reduction works of the United States, including precious metals contained in foreign material reduced in the United States, was:

|             | Fine ounces. |
|-------------|--------------|
| Gold.....   | 2,169,863    |
| Silver..... | 69,336,415   |

The product of gold and silver in the world, based upon returns to the Director of the Mint, was, the same year:

|             | Fine ounces. | Commercial value. | Coining value. |
|-------------|--------------|-------------------|----------------|
| Gold.....   | 6,102,893    | $126,159,000     | $126,159,000  |
| Silver..... | 143,994,000  | 142,266,000       | 186,174,000    |

World's coinage.

The coinage of gold and silver by the various countries of the world aggregate, for the calendar year 1891, so far as reports have been received:

|             |               |
|-------------|---------------|
| Gold.....   | $119,183,735 |
| Silver..... | 135,008,142   |

Metallic stock of the United States.

The stock of gold and silver in the United States, based upon official tabulations brought forward from year to year, was, on November 1, 1892, approximately:

|             |               |
|-------------|---------------|
| Gold.....   | $656,041,863 |
| Silver..... | 587,614,951   |
| Total.....  | 1,243,656,814 |

Use of gold and silver in the arts and manufactures.

According to the information gathered by the Bureau of the Mint, the value of the gold and silver used in the industrial arts in the United States during the last calendar year was, approximately: gold, $19,700,000, and silver, $9,630,000, of which $10,697,679 gold and $7,289,073 silver were new bullion.

MONETARY CONFERENCE.

As early as the month of April, 1891, investigation was begun by this Department to ascertain the state of public sentiment in Europe regarding the propriety of an agreement to hold a monetary conference of representatives of the leading nations on the subject of the money uses of silver.

Upon the ascertainment that the leading nations were favorably disposed to the holding of such a conference, the United States, addressed an invitation, through the State Department, to the governments of Europe, of Mexico, and Turkey.

All of the countries to which this invitation was addressed accepted it.

Upon conference with the governments named, after considerable delay, occasioned by a variety of causes, Brussels, Belgium, was agreed upon as the place, and November 22, 1892, as the time, for the conference to assemble.

For this country five commissioners were appointed, as follows: Hon. Wm. B. Allison of Iowa, Hon. John P. Jones of Nevada, Hon. James B. McCreary of Kentucky, Mr. Henry W. Cannon of New York, and E. Benjamin Andrews of Rhode Island. By usage the American minister, Mr. Terrill, was added.

This conference is now in session; as yet little is known as to what its action may be beyond the general fact that the subject of the better use of silver as a money metal is receiving its earnest attention.

Whatever may be the outcome of the conference, it is safe to predict that a clearer idea will be had of the views and purposes of the countries represented.

NATIONAL BANKS.

The report of the Comptroller of the Currency* gives complete and detailed information as to the organization, condition, and management of all active and failed national banks during the year ended October 31, 1892.

One hundred and sixty-three banks, with an aggregate capital of $15,285,000, were organized during the year, 53 went into voluntary liquidation and 17 became insolvent, leaving a net increase of 93 for the year.

Of the new banks organized during the year, about one-half were west of the Mississippi River and 35 per cent were in the Southern States.

The total number of banks in operation October 31, 1892, was 3,788, having an aggregate capital of $693,868,665, and surplus and undivided profits of $340,524,179. The total amount of individual deposits was $1,765,422,983; total bank deposits, $530,653,202; and total resources, $3,510,094,897. The national bank circulation outstanding shows a net increase of $10,487,226, and the gold held by the banks, as compared with last year, shows an increase of $21,994,115. Surplus and undivided profits, increase, $9,663,020; individual deposits, increase, $177,104,902; bank deposits, increase, $100,058,428.

Of the liabilities of the 17 banks that failed during the year two-thirds of the amount belonged to the Maverick National Bank of Boston. Aside from this one institution, the failures were not of a serious character. The estimated value of the assets indicate that over 85 per cent will be paid to creditors. The Maverick National Bank as already paid 85 per cent, and there is a probability of an additional dividend of from 2 to 5 per cent.

The domestic exchange drawn by banks for the year ended June 30, 1892, was $12,994,959,590, an increase over the preceding year of over 10 per cent.

The following recommendations of the Comptroller are approved :

(1) That the minimum deposit of Government bonds required of national banks be $1,000 for banks of $50,000 capital, and $5,000 for banks whose capital exceeds $50,000.

(2) That banks be allowed to issue circulating notes equal to the par value of the bonds held to secure circulation.

(3) That the monthly withdrawal of bonds pledged to secure circulation shall not exceed $4,500,000 in the aggregate.

(4) The banks should only be assessed in amount sufficient to defray the actual cost to the Government of providing circulation and maintaining Government supervision, and the tax should be placed upon capital as well as circulation.

(5) That the limit of the amount which may be loaned to any person, company, corporation, or firm to 10 per cent of the capital stock of the bank be so amended as to read "capital and surplus," and also that an exception be made in favor of temporary loans secured by collateral in our largest business centers.

(6) That the Government issue bonds having 20, 30, and 40 years to run, at a low rate of interest, with which to retire the present bonded debt of the United States, which bonds may be used as a basis to secure national bank circulation.

The Comptroller shows that by exchanging a 2 per cent bond, having the same length of time to run, for the 4 per cent bonds, at the market value of each, on the 31st of October, 1892, the Government could have saved $67,161,551.47. In addition to furnishing a permanent basis for circulation, it would prove a great saving to the taxpayers of the country.

(7) That the Comptroller of the Currency, with the approval of the Secretary of the Treasury, be empowered to remove officers and directors of banks for violations of law, leaving the vacancy so caused to be filled in the usual way, first giving such officers and directors an opportunity to be heard.

(8) That bank examiners be required to take an oath of office before entering upon the discharge of their duties, and give bond in such amount and with such sureties as the Comptroller of the Currency may require.

(9) That the Comptroller of the Currency be allowed to appoint two general examiners, of conspicuous ability and experience, to be paid out of the public funds, whose duty it shall be to visit, assist, and supervise the various examiners in their several districts, in order to secure uniformity in method and greater efficiency in work.

(10) That the law be so amended as to prohibit officers and employes of a bank from borrowing from its funds in any manner except upon application to and approval by the board of directors.

(11) In order to facilitate the collection of assessments upon stockholders of failed national banks, that the receivers of such banks be required to file with the county clerk or register of each county in which any stockholder may reside, a statement showing the names of the stockholders who reside in such county, and the amount of the stock held by them respectively, the filing of such statement to constitute a lien upon any realty of said stockholder, which lien may be vacated upon motion and giving proper bond, and shall be discharged by the receiver upon payment of the assessment.

(12) That section 380, United States Revised Statutes, be so amended as to leave it discretionary with the Comptroller of the Currency whether United States attorneys shall be employed by receivers of failed national banks.

The Comptroller submits a table showing the location of the various failed banks, and the location of the various United States attorneys in whose districts they are situated, from which it appears that when the district attorney does not reside in the same place, as happens in a few instances, the distances range from 28 to 435 miles, a great majority of the cases being over 100 miles, and the average being above 200 miles, showing the physical impossibility of these attorneys to properly represent these trusts. This results in the employment of local attorneys and the payment of double fees.

The Comptroller's argument in favor of national bank circulation, to which special attention is invited, shows that it is more elastic, more economical, and better calculated to serve the interests of the public.

He criticises and condemns State bank circulation from a historical standpoint, and shows the weakness and impolicy of Congress dividing with the forty-four State sovereignties the responsibility of furnishing the people with money; that the currency furnished by this chain of sovereignties would be no stronger or better than that of the weakest link.

Congress, by the Constitution, must furnish all money, of full debt-paying power, and by every consideration of public policy and public necessity should furnish all the money that the people require. The Government can only redeem its bonds in coin of standard value; it can not issue money except in exchange for some value—for something purchased. Every increase or diminution of the currency of the country by the General Government must of necessity be arbitrary, and hence a currency so created is nonelastic. The experience of the Government in purchasing silver as a basis for coinage, or for issuing Treasury notes, does not commend itself on the score of economy, and the depreciation in the value of silver in the hands of the Government is in sharp contrast with the more than $72,000,000 paid into the Treasury of the United States by the national banks as a tax upon circulation.

The subject of bank examiners, the duties of directors, and unsafe methods of banking are discussed at length.

Financial disturbances abroad occasioned larger exports of gold, in addition to the large merchandise balance in our favor. The after effects of the quasi-panic of 1890-'91, and the threatened visitation of cholera, have affected trade and embarrassed business to a certain extent; nevertheless the year has been one of general prosperity. Speculation has been held in check and business has been undergoing a hardening process. The results, as reflected in the banks, show steady growth and increased strength of business conditions.

CUSTOMS ADMINISTRATION.

The benefits accruing from the operation of the act of June 10, 1890, known as the "customs administrative act," have been so decided as to have demonstrated the wisdom of its enactment. The reports that have reached this Department show that both the importers and customs officers have obtained relief from many evils which it was intended to remedy, and that undervaluations have been decreased. Special attention is invited to the annual report of the General Appraisers* as showing the valuable service they are rendering and emphasizing the wisdom of the establishment of this tribunal. Certain minor features of this act, however, in my opinion, should be amended, especially sections 7, 8, 15, and 19, to which I invited the attention of Congress in my last annual report. I renew the recommendation I then made, that section 7 be so modified as to limit the additional duty to not more than 100 per cent; that section 8 be repealed, as experience has shown that it is impossible of practical administration; that section 15 be so amended as to authorize the taking of testimony on appeal from the decision of the Board of General Appraisers by commissioners appointed by the court for that purpose, as well as by one of the general appraisers; and that section 19, which imposes additional duties on unusual coverings, be modified so that such coverings shall pay but a single duty, at the rate to which they would be subject if imported separately, not less than that imposed upon their contents. In this connection, I renew the recommendations of my predecessors and myself as to certain other amendments of the customs laws. Among such recommendations I invite especial attention to the following, which I deem of urgent importance:

First. The abolition of all fees, commissions, emoluments, and perquisites now authorized or allowed to collectors or surveyors of customs and the compensation of these officers by fixed salaries.

Second. The consolidation of the customs districts demanded alike for reasons of economy and the changed condition of commerce and transportation. This might be accomplished by authorizing the Secretary of the Treasury to change the boundaries of customs districts, and to abolish districts when the expenditures exceed the receipts therein. The Secretary of the Treasury should also have authority to designate or discontinue minor ports within collection districts.

Third. The revision and codification of the customs and navigation laws which I especially urge with such modification and new provisions as practice and experience have demonstrated are required for the efficiency of the service. The original legislation on these subjects dates from the foundation of the Government; subsequent partial and fragmentary legislation has introduced confusion and doubt as to the true intent of the law, and consequent embarrassment in its administration. The result has been litigation and loss to business interests that would be in a great measure obviated by the action I recommend.

These laws are now scattered through the statutes and should be brought together and enacted in one harmonious code. This subject has heretofore been called to the attention of Congress, but the details of the work are of a kind that can hardly receive attention from a committee of Congress necessarily engaged upon other duties. I therefore recommend that provision be made for a revision and codification of these laws, by a commission or otherwise, to be reported to Congress at an early date.

FOREIGN COMMERCE.

The value of our foreign commerce (imports and exports of merchandise) during the last fiscal year was greater than for any previous year. It amounted to $1,857,680,610, as against $1,729,397,006 during the year 1891, an increase of $128,283,604.

The value of imports of merchandise during the last fiscal year amounted to $827,402,462, as against $844,916,196 during the fiscal year 1891, a decrease of $17,513,734.

The value of exports of merchandise during the last fiscal year was the largest in the history of our commerce, amounting to $1,030,278,148, as against $884,480,810 during the fiscal year 1891, an increase of $145,797,338.

The value of the exports of merchandise exceeded the value of imports of merchandise $202,875,686.

The value of the imports and exports of merchandise and specie during the last four years ending June 30, has been as follows:

It will be observed that the value of our total trade in merchandise with the United Kingdom amounted to $655,616,213, of which the value of exports was $499,315,332, and the value of imports $156,300,881, showing an excess in exports of $343,014,451.

Our import and export trade with the United Kingdom forms 35.3 per cent of such trade with all nations, and about 53 per cent of such trade with all Europe. Our trade with North America, including the West Indies, stands next in value, followed by that with South America and that with Asia and Oceanica. Our trade with Germany showed an excess of exports of $22,614,005, with France of $30,571,914, and with Belgium and the Netherlands together of $69,083,970.

In our total trade with Europe the excess of exports over imports was $458,994,681.

Our commerce in merchandise with North America, including Mexico, Central America, and the West Indies, amounted to $279,620,365, of which, the value of imports was $174,054,181, and of exports $105,566,184, an excess of imports of $68,487,997; but if our export trade by land carriage with Mexico and Canada had been correctly ascertained by means of an adequate law for that purpose, it is estimated that the value of our exports to the countries of North America would appear about $133,000,000, and the total value of the exports and imports to and from the same countries would be about $307,000,000, which would reduce the excess of imports to about $41,000,000 instead of $68,000,000 as it now appears.

Our total trade with South America in merchandise amounted to $183,875,373, of which the value of imports was $150,727,759, and of exports $33,147,614, an excess of imports of $117,580,145.

Imports.

During the last fiscal year the value of imports of merchandise was $827,402,462, a decrease of $17,513,734 from the imports of the fiscal year 1891.

The value of free merchandise imported was $457,999,658, and of dutiable was $369,402,804, an increase in the value of free merchandise of $91,758,306, and a decrease in the value of dutiable goods of $109,272,040, caused mainly by the transfer of sugar from the dutiable to the free list by the new tariff.

The material increase or decrease in the value of the principal classes of free and dutiable imports during the year ending June 30, 1892, as compared with 1891, was as follows:

TRADE WITH AMERICAN COUNTRIES SOUTH OF THE UNITED STATES.

The following table exhibits the total values of our import and export trade in merchandise with countries to the south of us during the years ended June 30, 1891 and 1892.

The total value of our imports of merchandise from Mexico, Central America, the West Indies, and South American States, during the fiscal year 1892, amounted to $288,894,902, or 34.92 per cent of our total imports of merchandise.

The value of our exports of merchandise to these countries during the same year was $92,545,868, or 8.98 per cent of the value of our total exports of merchandise.

Our total imports and exports of merchandise from and to these countries during the same year amounted to $381,440,770, or 20.53 per cent of our total imports and exports of merchandise.

It will be seen that the excess of imports of merchandise from these countries over our exports to them during 1892 amounted to $196,349,034, in other words, our imports of merchandise were 75.74 per cent, and exports 24.26 per cent, of the total trade with these countries, and we imported merchandise to the value of $3.12 for every dollar in value exported to these countries.

The excess of imports over exports of merchandise for the fiscal year 1891 was $152,099,061. For the fiscal year 1890 this excess was $108,054,472.

Our commerce with this entire group of countries shows a gradual increase of both imports and exports of merchandise since 1870.

During the year 1870 the value of imports was $117,398,951 and of exports $55,140,322, an excess of imports of $62,258,629.

During the year 1880 the value of imports was $178,985,906 and of exports $61,546,474, an excess of $117,439,432 in imports.

The per cent of our commerce with these countries, as compared with our total commerce was in 1870, 20.82; in 1880, 15.99, and in 1892, 20.53.

Table showing the value of imports and exports of merchandise in the trade of the United States with Mexico, Central America, the West Indies, and South America, and the excess of imports or of exports, during the years ending June 30, 1890, 1891, and 1892.

XLVIII REPORT OF THE SECRETARY OF THE TREASURY.

TRADE WITH COUNTRIES WITH WHICH RECIPROCITY TREATIES ARE IN FORCE.

A careful analysis of the statistics of our imports and exports from and to the countries with which reciprocity treaties have been established, from the commencement of such treaties to September 30, 1892, inclusive, shows that the predictions of the friends of this new policy have been largely verified, and that there has been a very gratifying increase in our commerce with these countries in both imports and exports. These values will appear more fully in the following detailed statement, in which a comparison of the value of our imports and exports from and to these countries during the period since the treaties have been in effect is made, with corresponding prior periods.

Value of the trade of the United States in merchandise with the following countries since the reciprocity treaties therewith went into effect, compared with the value of the trade during the corresponding preceding periods.

(a) As trade with Bermuda can not be separately stated before July 1, 1891, it is, for better comparison, included with British West Indies in 1892 for the six months ending June 30.
 (b) Includes imports from Bermuda, $441,936.
 (c) Includes exports to Bermuda, $401,986.

From this table it appears that the total values of our imports and domestic exports of merchandise, in our trade with countries with which we have reciprocity treaties, during the periods since those treaties have been in force to September 30, 1892, as compared with corresponding periods, prior to the treaties, have been as follows :

|                                       | Prior to treaty. | Since treaty. | Increase.    | Decrease. | Per cent of increase+ decrease— |

Exports.

It will be observed that the value of our exports to Germany and Austria-Hungary during the periods since the treaty of reciprocity has been in effect with these countries has increased $10,319,308, as compared with corresponding periods prior to the treaty.

The increase of exports of domestic products to Germany consisted largely of breadstuffs and provisions.

There was an increase of $10,453,313 in the value of our domestic exports to the American countries with which reciprocity treaties have been made, as compared with corresponding prior periods, and an increase of $20,772,621 in the total value of our domestic exports to all the countries with which reciprocity treaties have been made, as compared with the corresponding prior periods.

The increase of domestic exports to the American countries named consisted mainly of wheat, flour, meat, and dairy products, bacon, hams and lard, iron and steel and manufactures of, and lumber and manufactures of.

With respect to the American countries, the most marked change in value of exports and imports was in our trade with Brazil and Cuba. The increase in value of exports to Brazil, during the operation of the reciprocity treaty, up to September 30, 1892, over the corresponding period before the treaty, was $1,493,518, and the increase in value of exports to Cuba for the thirteen months ended September 30, 1892, after the treaty of reciprocity, over the value of like exports during the corresponding prior period, was $9,114,350.

In our trade with Puerto Rico since the treaty there has been an increase in value of exports of $472,512; and with Santo Domingo an increase of $182,549.

There has been a decrease in our export trade to Salvador, Guatemala, Honduras, and a large decrease in imports and exports of merchandise from and to the British West Indies and British Guiana. The decrease of our trade with the two latter countries has been much larger in imports than in exports.

Imports.

During the period since the reciprocity treaties have been in effect, it appears that there has also been a very large increase in the value of our imports from countries with which we have these treaties, amounting in the aggregate to $84,294,525. It will further be observed that this increase of imports is entirely from the American countries with which reciprocal relations have been established.

While there has been an increase in the value of our domestic exports to Germany and Austria-Hungary, amounting to $10,315,199 to the former country and $4,109 to the latter, there has been during the same time a decrease of $7,650,974 in the value of our imports from Germany and of $1,241,231 from Austria-Hungary.

There has been a very large increase in the value of our imports of merchandise from Brazil during the eighteen months the reciprocity treaty has been in effect up to September 30, 1892, over the corresponding prior period, amounting to $76,348,581.

In our trade with Cuba there has been an increase in imports of $15,955,969 during the thirteen months ended September 30, 1892, over the corresponding prior period; our imports from Santo Domingo increased $1,552,665 during the same period; and from Puerto Rico increased $314,969 during the thirteen months since the treaty, and from Salvador during the first eight months under the reciprocity treaty increased $844,704.

It will be noticed the most marked increase in the value of imports since the reciprocity treaties went into effect, has been in our trade with Brazil and Cuba.

While there is a large disparity between the increase in the value of our imports and exports, it should be remembered that our imports from these American countries are of articles which we must necessarily purchase from them in any event, as they are articles of necessity, which are to but small extent, if at all, produced in this country, and not to be procured elsewhere than in southern countries. These imports consist almost entirely of sugar, coffee, india rubber and crude drugs.

This will be better understood when it is stated that the value of the imports of coffee alone from Brazil, from April 1, 1891, when the treaty of reciprocity went into effect, up to September 30, 1892, inclusive, was $145,522,354, and the value of the imports of sugar alone into the United States from Cuba and Puerto Rico for the thirteen months ended September 30, 1892, during which the reciprocity treaty was in effect with these islands, was $69,933,566.

If we consider the total value of our commerce, imports and exports, with all the countries with which reciprocity treaties have been made, during the several periods those treaties have existed with each, it will be found that the total value of our commerce was $461,547,526, as compared with $356,480,374, for the corresponding prior periods, or an increase of $105,067,152. The total value of our imports under the treaties was $348,940,864, and the value of the exports of domestic merchandise was $112,606,662. The increase in the value of the imports of merchandise since the treaties was $84,294,525, and the increase in the value of the exports was $20,772,621.

When lines of shipping are more fully inaugurated, commercial relations more closely established, and the countries south of us become more familiar with our products and methods of business, and our manufacturers more carefully consult the tastes and wishes of southern buyers, our exports will, undoubtedly, largely increase.

Thus the result of reciprocity will be enlarged markets for our agricultural and manufacturing products, and increased employment for our ships.

INTERNAL REVENUE.

The receipts from the several objects of taxation under the internal-revenue laws for the fiscal years ended June 30, 1891 and 1892, are as follows:

The receipts from the same sources for fiscal year ended June 30, 1891, were ..... 146,035,415.97

Making an increase in the receipts for the fiscal year just ended of 7,822,128.38

The total cost of collection for the fiscal year ended June 30, 1892, was 4,315,046.26

The total cost of collection for the fiscal year ended June 30, 1891, was 4,205,655.49

Increased cost of collection for the fiscal year ended June 30, 1892. 109,390.77

The amounts herein stated are the receipts actually collected during the fiscal years mentioned, but in many cases the money collected on the last day of June is not deposited until the first day of July, thus causing a discrepancy between the collections and deposits.

The increase of the cost of collection for the fiscal year ended June 30, 1892, over the previous fiscal year resulted largely from the increase in the salaries and fees of gaugers, storekeepers, and storekeeper-gaugers, and deputy collectors whose employment was rendered necessary by the very large increase in the number of distilleries operated during the fiscal year, and also from the large sum expended for weighing beams utilized in putting into operation the system of ascertaining the production of distilled spirits by weighing instead of by use of the gauging rod.

A detailed statement of these increased expenditures will be found in the report of the Commissioner of Internal Revenue.*

It is estimated that the receipts from all sources of internal revenue for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1893, will aggregate $165,000,000.

The percentage of cost of collection for the fiscal year ended June 30, 1892, was 2.80 per cent, as against 2.88 for the fiscal year ended June 30, 1891, the increase of collections resulting in a decrease in the percentage of cost of collection, even with the extraordinary expenditures above referred to.

* See page 392.

A comparison has been made of the reports of distilled spirits produced at a large number of distilleries for the months of May, June, and July, 1891, when gauging was done with the rod, with the reports from the same distilleries for the months of May, June, and July, 1892, when the contents of packages were ascertained by weighing. It is found by this comparison that during the first period the Government lost in taxes upon fractional parts of a gallon less than fifty-hundredths the sum of $48,947.40, while for the corresponding period in 1892 the loss from the same cause was only $18,659.70, making a reduction in the loss as compared with the preceding year of $30,287.70.

The total production of distilled spirits, exclusive of fruit brandies, for the fiscal year ended June 30, 1892, was 114,769,041 taxable gallons; the total production for the fiscal year ended June 30, 1891, was 115,962,389 gallons, making a decrease in the production of distilled spirits for the fiscal year just ended of 1,193,348 gallons.

There were also produced during the fiscal year ended June 30, 1892, 1,310,437 gallons of apple brandy, 99,398 gallons of peach brandy, and 2,257,630 gallons of grape brandy, making a total production of 3,667,465 gallons of brandy from fruits during the fiscal year ended June 30, 1892. A further comparison of the two fiscal years shows an increase of 1,026,402 gallons in the production of apple brandy, an increase of 98,621 gallons in the production of peach brandy, and an increase of 737,730 gallons in the production of grape brandy for the fiscal year ended June 30, 1892, an aggregate increase of 1,862,753 gallons of brandy produced from fruits as compared with the previous fiscal year.

The quantity of distilled spirits contained in any package was ascertained prior to May 1, 1892, by the use of the gauging rod.

It was made manifest, however, that the contents of such packages could be more readily and correctly ascertained by weighing than by the use of the old gauging rod, and on May 1, 1892, an order was issued requiring gaugers to ascertain the contents of such packages by weighing. This order was put into effect in all distilleries except fruit distilleries, where it was found impracticable to apply it. The result has been entirely satisfactory.

The quantity of distilled spirits gauged for the fiscal year ended June 30, 1892, was 352,728,202 gallons; the quantity gauged for the fiscal year ended June 30, 1891, was 342,343,638 gallons, making an increase in the quantity of spirits gauged for the fiscal year just ended of 10,384,564 gallons.

During the fiscal year ended June 30, 1892, 5,925 distilleries of all kinds were operated; for the preceding fiscal year 3,819 distilleries of all kinds were operated, a comparison showing an increase of 2,106 in the number of distilleries operated for the fiscal year just ended. The greater portion of this increase arose from the large number of fruit distilleries operated during the year.

During the fiscal year ended June 30, 1892, there were produced 31,856,626 barrels of beer. The number of barrels produced during the fiscal year ended June 30, 1891, was 30,497,209, making an increased production for the fiscal year just ended of 1,359,417 barrels.

For the fiscal year ended June 30, 1892, the total receipts from the taxes on tobacco, cigars, cigarettes, snuff, etc., were $31,000,493.07. The receipts from the same sources for the fiscal year ended June 30, 1891, were $32,796,270.97, the decrease in the receipts for the fiscal year just ended being $1,795,777.90, which may be ascribed to the operations of the act of October 1, 1890, affecting this source of revenue.

The total bounty paid upon sugar produced in the United States for the fiscal year ended June 30, 1892, was $7,342,077.79.

Expenses relating exclusively to the payment of the bounty on sugar for the fiscal year ended June 30, 1892.

The increase in the documented tonnage of the United States for the fiscal year of 1892 over the tonnage of the preceding year was 80,163 tons.

The foreign-going tonnage, not including that engaged in the whale fisheries, is 977,623.76 tons, of which 247 vessels, aggregating 225,437.34 tons, are propelled by steam, and 1,212 vessels, aggregating 752,186.42 tons, are sailing vessels.

Of the total documented tonnage 2,074,416.94 tons are steam and 2,690,504.26 tons are other than steam.

The registered vessels in the whale fishery aggregate 17,051.71 tons. The enrolled and licensed vessels above mentioned include 3,700,773.09 tons engaged in the coasting trade along the seacoast, the rivers, and the Great Lakes of the United States, and 69,472.64 tons licensed for the fisheries.

The figures above, relative to navigation, by no means include all the craft suitable for transportation of merchandise by water. Including certain barges, flatboats, and steam craft, the transportation fleet of the United States at the beginning of 1890 was found by the Census Office to aggregate a gross tonnage of 7,633,676 tons, valued at $215,069,296, the crews of the vessels numbering 106,436, and their wages being no less than $36,867,305. These estimates of values and wages do not include the values of wharves, elevators, shipyards, or other plants connected with shipping, or the wages of the persons employed in connection therewith.

The total ton mileage of freight carried in vessels in the United States for the season of 1889 was reported to be 15,518,360,000 or nearly one-fourth of the total ton mileage of all the railways in the United States.

The tonnage of all the vessels, documented or undocumented, in the United States is reported by the Census Office to be, by grand divisions, for the year ending December 31, 1889, as follows:

| Grand divisions.        | Grosstons. | Value.        |
|-------------------------|------------|---------------|
| Atlantic coast.....     | 2,794,440  | $123,874,177 |
| Gulf of Mexico.....     | 77,562     | 3,851,270     |
| Pacific coast.....      | 441,939    | 23,067,370    |
| Great Lakes.....        | 926,355    | 48,941,474    |
| Mississippi Valley..... | 3,393,380  | 15,335,005    |
| Total.....              | 7,633,676  | 215,069,296   |

Besides the shipbuilding noted above, our dockyards and iron works have been busy in constructing a considerable number of war and other vessels for the various services of the Government. A list of such vessels is published by the Bureau of Navigation. It will be seen that our coasting trade is in a flourishing condition, and constitutes one of our greatest industries. No foreign vessel is allowed to engage in it. Foreign vessels, however, are admitted to our foreign commerce on equal, or, in certain cases, on better terms than our own, and in the absence of any protection to our ships, the trade is largely monopolized by foreigners, many of whose vessels are subsidized by their governments.

The following table shows the proportion of our exports and imports carried in American and foreign vessels, respectively, viz:

Values of imports and exports of United States carried, respectively, in cars and other land vehicles, in American vessels and in foreign vessels, during fiscal years from 1857 to 1892, inclusive, with percentage carried in American vessels (coin and bullion included from 1857 to 1879, inclusive, as method of transportation can not be stated; subsequent years merchandise only).

NOTE.—The amounts carried in cars and other land vehicles were not separately stated prior to July 1, 1870. Exports are stated in mixed gold and currency values from 1862 to 1879, inclusive.

The figures in the above table exhibit a lamentable condition of affairs. It would seem that we were well hemmed in by subsidized steamship companies and subsidized railroads of the British Government monopolizing trade legitimately belonging to our own people. The amount paid per annum for the transportation of freight and passengers between the United States and foreign countries is stated to be more than $200,000,000; to nearly equal, year by year, our collections from the customs, and to be more than four times the value of our annual exports of wheat for the four years prior to the fiscal year of 1891. Most of the amount goes to support the trade and business of foreign countries, its payment constituting a continual drain on our resources, which by wise legislation might have been prevented. The step toward such prevention, by the provision in the statutes for payments to American built, American-owned vessels of certain classes in the foreign trade, is in the right direction. It has already borne fruit by causing the addition of steam vessels of a good class to our merchant marine, and its effect undoubtedly will be still more beneficial in future by encouraging the establishment of new lines of American vessels and the development of old ones. It is very desirable that there shall be a continuance or extension of the present policy of protecting our vessels in the foreign trade against the subsidized lines of foreign governments, so that we may retain for our merchants, our ship-owners, sailors, insurance companies, brokers, iron and steel workers, miners, shipwrights, canvas manufacturers, ropemakers, farmers, and others, directly or indirectly interested, a fair portion of the money now expended in foreign countries for ships and the navigation thereof; so that employment and nautical knowledge and experience may be given to officers and men, who, in case of war, could be utilized in our Navy, and so that we may be enabled to build up, as auxiliary to the Navy, a class of powerful steam vessels, constituting an offset to the vast fleets of such craft, belonging to foreign nations, now swarming along our coasts, fitted for immediate use as war vessels, with cannon in store at home, and ready for service at a day's notice as destroyers of our commerce in waters with which their crews are familiar, or as transports for troops to our shores, or shores in our vicinity.

Some additional legislation may be found requisite, as mentioned in the reports of the Bureau of Navigation, or as specially recommended by this Department, regarding pilotage, the tax on tonnage, undocumented foreign vessels in the United States, bonds given on the documenting of vessels, advance wages to seamen, fees for certificates of title to vessels, lights on barges, and timber rafts on the ocean.

IMMIGRATION.

The Bureau of Immigration reports the arrival of 579,663 immigrants during the fiscal year ending June 30, 1892, an increase over former years.

This increase is accounted for by the abnormal emigration resulting from the unfortunate conditions in Russia. The great influx ceased some six months since, and the number of incomers from Russia has now assumed something like its usual proportion.

An analysis of the statement of arrivals during the last fiscal year shows that the act approved March 3, 1891, has had a healthy deterrent effect on the classes who are the least inclined to assimilate with American life. For ten years prior to the act of March 3, 1891, undesirable immigration has been steadily increasing. Many societies throughout Europe have for years aided needy families to emigrate to America, and many public and private charities have assisted paupers and encouraged criminals to come.

There are a very large number of immigrants whose cases can only be properly decided by the officer making the inspection, and where it is impossible for the law to particularize in each case. The provisions of the new law, making the decisions of the inspectors of immigration final as to the right of an immigrant to land, except on appeal to the Superintendent of Immigration and the Secretary of the Treasury, has materially lessened litigation at the landing ports.

Formerly paupers were not allowed to land; now any person who is likely to become a public charge is also prohibited. Formerly the immigration aid societies and charity institutions of Europe unloaded many of their indigent upon our shores, supplying them with passage tickets and a pittance of money. They also assisted their outdoor poor or other doubtful classes to come. Now if an immigrant comes with a ticket, assisted by some one on the other side, he must show affirmatively and satisfactorily to the inspection officers that he does not come within any of the prohibited classes. In all other cases the Government must show that the immigrant is not entitled to land, else under the ultimate proceedings of habeas corpus he would be landed; but in these cases the burden of the proof is transferred to the incomer, and he must show his right to land. It certainly is not asking too much from any foreigner that he shall come prepared to show a clean bill of lading in health and morals, and ability to earn a living. This has proved one of the most salutary provisions of the law.

In this connection attention is called to the embarrassment attending the question of determining the status of the prohibited classes under the law. The only resource of the inspector, as a rule, is the answers given to questions, upon which he forms his judgment, and the personal appearance of the immigrant. If his decision is not satisfactory to the immigrant, and habeas corpus proceedings are taken, the result in most cases is that the inspector is overruled and the immigrant permitted to land.

I am clearly of the opinion that only by a rigid examination, made at the place of departure, can the prohibitive features of the law be executed with any considerable degree of efficiency.

That section of the law which compels the steamship companies to return, free of charge, to the port whence he came, any immigrant who has been denied a landing, or has fallen into destitution within one year after landing, from causes existing prior to his coming to this country, and also that section charging to the steamship companies the maintenance of all immigrants until the date of the final decision in their cases, has been actively enforced. The steamship companies have consequently ordered an inspection on their own account of all emigrants applying for tickets on the other side. They have also issued circulars to their agents reciting the prohibitive provisions of the law, and instructing them to faithfully observe the law.

The effect of the publication of the restrictions of our law throughout Europe has been to cut off a portion of the undesirable elements that have been coming here. It is estimated that fully 50,000 of the most objectionable classes have thus been stopped.

The doors to immigration should not be closed, but it is evident that we are receiving great numbers of people who are thriftless and ignorant and who have come to this country in the spirit of adventure, or who are driven by starvation from their old homes.

The rapid exhaustion of our arable land is closing one of the hitherto great safety valves in distributing and Americanizing our foreign element, and, as a result, these undesirable people are congregating in our cities. There is a growing disposition to colonize in certain quarters of these cities, and to create there, in some sense, a nationality and independency of their own, thus perpetuating the habits and customs of their homes, and practically transplanting to our shores a section of the Old World. These sections may, after a time, come to revere the old, and bear antagonisms to the new country.

The remedy for these evils, now so apparent to all our people, and happily removed from the plane of politics, is within the control of Congress.

While we were receiving only such immigration as was of a character to be easily assimilated with American civilization a nominal tax, in amount barely sufficient to pay the expenses occasioned thereby, was sufficient. But now, that immigration has reached such vast proportions, and the quality of a large portion of it is such as to create alarm in the minds of thoughtful people, who doubt the ability of our institutions to assimilate these objectionable classes, the time is at hand when an increase of the head tax should be imposed, and other remedial measures adopted to protect the country.

One of the reasons why an undue number of undesirable immigrants come to this country is, because we can be reached at a less expense than South America and Australia.

As a measure to determine what this tax should be, it is suggested that the sum be such as would equalize, at least approximately, the cost to the immigrants to reach the other countries referred to.

It is suggested that an increase of this tax would deflect immigration to this country via the Dominion of Canada. Should attempts of this kind be made for the purpose of evading the tax, the country would not be without the resources necessary to prevent the success of such evasion.

In legislating upon this subject, it must not be overlooked that the rapid development of the country has been greatly stimulated by immigration of a most desirable character, and that immigration of the proper kind is yet desirable, but we have reached a condition when the character of future immigration should be the subject of vigilant scrutiny.

Alien contract-labor laws.

The alien contract-labor force has been reorganized and placed under one management which has greatly increased the efficiency of that branch of the immigration service. One thousand seven hundred and sixty-three alien contract laborers have been detected and returned to the country whence they came during the past year, as against 123 returned the year previous.

Inspectors have been stationed on the Canadian and Mexican borders and have enforced the provisions of the law with much success.

On the 1st of July, 1891, few of the suits brought for violation of the contract-labor law had been prosecuted, and 186 cases were on the docket. An inspector was detailed to take special charge of these prosecutions. Many of these cases had remained on the docket until the witnesses necessary to a successful prosecution could no longer be found.

Six cases were dismissed, judgment was obtained in 151 cases; 86 cases are pending. It is expected that all will be disposed of by the 1st of April, 1893.

On information which indicated a violation of the contract-labor law at any given place, an inspector was at once detailed to make a thorough investigation; and unless the inspector reported no violation of the law, the evidence in each case was forwarded to the United States district attorney for that locality for his action in the premises.

The inspectors have been greatly assisted by the active coöperation of the labor organizations. The vigorous execution of this law has called a halt in the extensive importation of foreign laborers under contract. The effectiveness of the laws in question is not to be measured by the number of prosecutions of violators, or the number of laborers returned. Its most salutary effect has been to prevent, in a large measure, the continuation of the importation of unlawful laborers.

Chinese exclusion.

Notwithstanding the severity of the laws relating to the exclusion of Chinese, many persons of that race find their way into our territory chiefly by way of Canada. During the past year one hundred and seventy-five Chinese persons were arrested and returned to China under the exclusion acts.

The act approved July 5, 1884, provides as a condition precedent to landing that Chinese persons of the exempt class arriving at ports in the United States shall present certificates from the Chinese Government, or such other foreign government of which at the time the applicant may be a citizen, showing that permission has been obtained from said government to visit the United States. In no instance has a certificate been presented from the Chinese home Government, but in a number of cases certificates issued by the consular representative of China resident in Havana have been offered and accepted as prima facie evidence of the right of the holder to land. I have instructed collectors of customs to recognize such certificates upon the statement of the Chinese minister at this capital that his Government has authorized its consular officers to issue the same.

By a joint resolution of Congress approved August 5, 1892, provision is made for the admission of Chinese exhibitors and employés of exhibitors at the World's Columbian Exposition, and the requirement of the act of July 5, 1884, as to certificates is not applicable in such cases. It is probable that a large number of Chinese laborers will enter the United States under this authority.

Under an opinion of the Supreme Court Chinese merchants residing in this country, and who may depart therefrom with the intention of returning thereto, are permitted to land upon submission of evidence of their identity as such returning merchants. The question as to what constitutes a merchant is a perplexing one, in view of the practice among Chinese of organizing firms composed of a large number of members, each of whom may contribute a few dollars to the capital of the firm.

Chinese registration.

The Act of Congress of May 5, 1892 requires that certificates of residence be issued to such Chinese laborers as are entitled to remain in the United States after the date of such act. These certificates are to be issued by the collectors of internal revenue. The act further provides that "immediately after the passage of this act the Secretary of the Treasury shall make such rules and regulations as may be necessary for the efficient execution of this act, and shall prepare the necessary forms and furnish the necessary blanks to enable collectors of internal revenue to issue the certificates required thereby, and make such provision that certificates may be procured in localities convenient to the application.”

The necessary rules and regulations for the efficient execution of this act have been prepared, and the forms and necessary blanks to enable collectors of internal revenue to issue such certificates have been furnished to them. They have been placed in the hands of the collectors of internal revenue, who are ready to deliver the same to such Chinese as are entitled to them. The Commissioner of Internal Revenue reports that at the closing of the present fiscal year no applications for certificates had been made, and that there seems to be a determination on the part of the Chinese not to register. However, the collectors of internal revenue have been instructed to hold themselves in readiness to register under this act any person who is entitled to certificates and desires to register, and such persons will have an opportunity to do so at any time prior to the 5th of May with as little inconvenience as may be possible.

SEAL FISHERIES.

The modus vivendi entered into in 1891 between the United States and Great Britain was renewed in 1892 pending the arbitration between the two Governments, and in consequence thereof the quota of seals to be taken on the Pribilof Islands during the season of 1892 was again limited to 7,500.

Under the terms of the modus the taking of seals in the waters of Bering Sea was prohibited as it was last year, and vessels of the British and our own Navy, as well as those of the Revenue-Marine Service, coöperated to enforce its provisions. But three attempts were made to enter the sea through the passes, and the vessels in each case were seized and proceeded against under the international agreement. From thirty to forty thousand seals of the Pribilof Island herd, a large proportion of which were gravid females, were taken by pelagic hunters in the North Pacific between January and July, 1892. As a result, the number of seals on the breeding grounds on the islands was found to be smaller this year than last.

As the income derived by the natives on the islands of St. George and St. Paul from the taking of the 7,500 skins will be inadequate for their support, thus rendering them dependent upon the Government, I recommend that the appropriation of $19,500 made for their support during the current fiscal year be renewed.

REVENUE-CUTTER SERVICE.

During the past fiscal year thirty-six vessels have been in commission, which have been constantly engaged in patrolling the coasts, rivers, and harbors of the United States, for the protection of the revenue and the enforcement of law relative to other subjects. The following is a statistical statement of their work :

|  |                |
| Aggregate number of miles cruised by vessels.....  | 335, 512       |
| Number of merchant vessels boarded and examined.....   | 37, 521        |
| Number of merchant vessels found violating law in some particular, and seized or reported to proper authorities..... | 1, 233         |
| Fines or penalties of vessels so seized or reported.....   | $363, 173. 80 |
| Number of vessels in distress assisted.....  | 84             |
| Value of vessels and their cargoes imperiled by the sea, to which assistance was rendered.....                       | $2, 417, 745  |
| Number of persons on board vessels assisted.....   | 570            |
| Number of persons picked out of the water and saved from drowning.....   | 50             |

The duties assigned to the revenue cutters have been faithfully and efficiently conducted by the officers of the service, and the record of duty performed shows a fair increase over that of past years, notwithstanding the disabled condition of some of the vessels which require extensive repairs or replacement by new vessels. A number of new vessels are urgently needed for the proper maintenance of the service, viz: two on the Pacific coast, two on the Great Lakes, and one on the New England coast to replace the Gallatin, wrecked on the 6th of January last, near Gloucester, Mass., during a blinding snowstorm. The necessary withdrawal of the steamers Rush and Corwin from the California and Oregon coasts, for duty in Alaskan waters during the summer, has left those districts without patrol and caused serious embarrassment to the customs service.

The work of patrolling Bering Sea and other waters of Alaska Territory for the protection of the Seal Islands and other interests of the Government in those waters, and the enforcement of the provisions of the modus vivendi with Great Britain, was assigned to four vessels of the Navy and the revenue steamers Corwin, Rush, and Bear, all under the general direction and orders of Commander R. D. Evans, U. S. Navy. Having all the Government forces in those waters under one command has worked satisfactorily, and the duties have been efficiently performed.

Material assistance has been given as usual by the Revenue Marine to the Life-Saving Service; boats, stores, and supplies have been transported and delivered at stations off established routes of travel and difficult of access except by special conveyance.

The distance cruised while performing these services aggregated 10,370 miles.

The expenditures on account of this service for the year ending June 30, 1892, were $975,551.29, of which $20,448.88 was spent in enforcing the law regulating the anchorage of vessels in the bay and harbor of New York.

The personnel of the Revenue Marine consists of 222 commissioned officers and 843 pilots and enlisted men.

LIGHT-HOUSE SERVICE.

The number of light stations was increased from 852 to 883. Four first class light-ships have been finished and placed on stations on the Atlantic coast. All of these vessels are fitted with compound engines and propellers. Each has a steam windlass, and the chain hawse-pipe is forged into the stem of the vessel that they may ride easier to heavy seas. The light-vessel for Cornfield Point, Long Island Sound, is fitted with an electric plant, and the masthead electric light will be displayed and extinguished automatically. This is the first vessel of the kind built by any nation. Two modern light-house tenders were built at Cleveland, Ohio, and delivered on the Atlantic coast, each furnished with an electric plant and search-light. One of these vessels is now on her way to Portland, Oregon. Another light-house tender fitted with twin screws, electric plant, and search-light, is under construction at Elizabethport, N. J., and will probably be delivered in December. The number of buoys, spindles, and daymarks was increased from 4,715 to 5,034 during the last fiscal year. The appropriation for buoyage for the last fiscal year was $330,000, a sum altogether insufficient to meet the demands of commerce. The number of lights on the Western rivers remains practically the same as last year, and the average cost of each per year is about $170. As each of these river lights serves the purpose that was formerly attained by a light-house costing very much more to build and maintain, it is deemed judicious as well as economical to increase their number.

The Light-House Board again urges that the exhibition of private lights should be prohibited, and the penalty provided by law enforced for the infraction of its regulations as to the lighting of bridges over navigable streams.

In view of the fact that the Light-House Service was organized for the purpose of protecting life and property from the dangers of the sea, only men of experience and character who can intelligently and faithfully discharge the duties of light-keepers should be employed, and to this end the Service should be made absolutely nonpartisan.

MARINE-HOSPITAL SERVICE.

The report of the Supervising Surgeon-General of the Marine-Hospital Service shows that during the fiscal year ended June 30, 1892, the total number of cases treated was 53,610, of which number 16,022 were treated in hospital, the remainder being office or dispensary patients.

There were 1,344 pilots examined for color-blindness, of which number 60 were rejected.

Nine hundred and six surfmen and keepers of the Life Saving Service were examined, of which number 64 were rejected for physical causes.

Two hundred and thirty-one seamen of the merchant marine were examined, before shipment, as to their physical fitness, and 11 were rejected.

The nineteen marine hospitals of the service are reported as being in good condition, save the one at Port Townsend, and the eight national quarantine stations have been kept in active operation during the whole of the year, the services which they rendered being of so great importance that it was deemed unwise to close them, even during the winter months. These stations are generally well equipped, except San Diego and Port Townsend, whose plants are in course of construction. Certain additions are required to a number of the stations to make them adapted to all the wants of modern quarantine science, and estimates for this purpose have been included in the Book of Estimates.

The quarantine service of the Marine Hospital Bureau has been marked by great activity during the past summer and fall, owing to the threatened invasion of cholera into the United States. As early as July eighth a circular was issued calling attention to the prevalence of the disease in Russia, and requiring disinfection of all articles from infected places, and laying restraint upon vessels from infected ports.

Regulations were issued requiring disinfection abroad of all rags prior to their entry into the United States, with a consular certificate to this effect, and the importation of old rags from infected places or localities was prohibited.

Disinfection abroad also of personal effects and baggage of immigrants was required, and all the above regulations are still in force.

September first a circular was issued, signed by the Supervising Surgeon-General and approved by the President and myself, imposing a quarantine detention of twenty days upon all vessels bringing immigrants into the United States. The object of this circular was to lessen the chances of the introduction of cholera by a temporary suspension of immigration; the expense of the twenty days' detention being such that it might prove prohibitory in effect, for the time being. As a result, immigration has been practically suspended, and the danger of the introduction of cholera into the United States very materially diminished. It is proposed to keep in force this restriction until Congress shall have opportunity to express its will in the matter, or until the danger which prompted it shall have disappeared.

The necessity of this circular was found in the large influx of immigrants from cholera infected districts, and the great danger of the importation of the disease through their persons or baggage, this being the cause of the last cholera epidemic in the United States. The public health, therefore, and a public demand, required a temporary prohibition of immigration. There being no special provision for this by any act of Congress, it was determined to make use of the quarantine prerogatives of the several States, all of whose laws permitted of at least twenty days' quarantine detention. The power of the General Government to enforce this provision was found in the national quarantine act of 1878.

On the announcement of this quarantine restriction a hearty accord was given to the same by the State and local authorities.

To prevent ingress over the Canadian frontier, of immigrants who might seek entry from Canadian seaports, medical inspectors, aided by customs officers, were appointed to inspect the frontier stations from Maine to Dakota at all points where railroads cross from Canada into the United States. These inspectors are still kept on duty, and, under instructions, are obliged to see that no baggage of immigrants is admitted into the United States without previous disinfection, and to aid in the enforcement of local regulations.

Besides this corps of inspectors aid to the State authorities has been rendered at several important maritime points where cholera appeared or was threatened.

On account of the overcrowded quarantine accommodations of the State, at the port of New York, and as a relief for healthy passengers detained upon infected vessels, a camp was established on Sandy Hook, called Camp Low, capable of accommodating one thousand persons. Through the generosity of a private citizen of New York, Mr. Austin Corbin, the material and necessary help were promptly furnished to the Government for the rapid construction of this camp, obviating the slower process of Government construction. For the details of this camp and its occupancy by immigrants, reference is made to the report of the commanding officer, Surg. J. B. Hamilton (ex-Surgeon-General Marine-Hospital Service), which accompanies the annual report of Supervising Surgeon-General Wyman. The value of Dr. Hamilton's services is hereby acknowledged.

The thanks of the Treasury Department is extended to the War Department for consenting to the location of Camp Low on its reservation, to the Navy Department for furnishing the guards and boats for land and sea patrol, and to the Chamber of Commerce of New York for its support of the measure taken.

Additions will be made to this camp during the winter with a view to its utilization should cholera again appear in the spring or summer.

Sandy Hook belongs to the Government and is in charge of the War Department, and is only populated with Government employés. Owing to its peculiar conformation it can be completely isolated from the mainland. Camp Low is so located as to also be easily isolated from the stations of the Light-house and Life-saving stations and the quarters occupied by the War Department. Safe, deep, and commodious anchorage exists at Camp Low. Sandy Hook is in all respects admirably suited for the purpose of a sanitary camp, and if such portion of it as can be spared without detriment to the other departments of the Government service could be added to the present accommodations of the quarantine of the State of New York, it would afford an equipment that would furnish ample facilities to deal with the danger at that point of the introduction of contagious diseases that is constantly threatening the country.

A quarantine camp was also established at the Delaware Breakwater station, where permanent barracks for the accommodation of 800 immigrants have been erected and tents provided for the protection of additional numbers. A rigid quarantine has been and is still maintained at this point, and also at the national station near Cape Charles at the mouth of the Chesapeake.

A detention camp was also established at Fort Pulaski, Ga., for the protection of the city of Savannah and the surrounding territory. At the more southern national quarantines on the Atlantic coast as well as at those on the Gulf and North Pacific coasts the usual activity and vigilance have been maintained.

At smaller seaports, where local quarantine provision is insufficient, and where cholera infected vessels might seek entrance to avoid the greater restrictions at larger ports, the authorities have been invited by circular to apply for such aid from the Marine Hospital Bureau as may be required for their defense.

Sanitary information, including an account of the progress of the cholera has been regularly transmitted to all quarantine and local health officers, through the publication of the Weekly Abstract of Sanitary Reports, under section 2, act of 1878; and for the purpose of securing accurate information from abroad, officers have been detailed for gathering, in foreign seaports, such data regarding the recent epidemic of cholera and its threatened reappearance, as will be valuable to the sanitary authorities of the United States.

State laws can not properly control or direct the management of great quarantines where other States are interested. The quarantines of our seaboard are of equal interest to all our population. The whole country should have a voice in their ownership and management, and this can only be accomplished by such legislative action as will forbid the collection of quarantine fees by State or municipal authority, and which shall direct the assumption of all quarantine duties by the United States. This duty rests under the same authority as that under which laws relating to immigration are framed and executed.

Every serious epidemic that this country has ever known has been traced to the immigrant, and it must be apparent that the same authority that controls immigration should control quarantine.

Admitting that any particular local quarantine may be perfectly managed, of what avail is it if a neighboring port has either a lax and insufficient quarantine, or none at all? Such are the facilities for inland communication that all quarantines must be equally efficient to be successful in preventing implantation of disease, and only the strong arm of the Government, directed under laws enacted by representatives of the whole people, can give confidence and security.

STEAMBOAT-INSPECTION SERVICE.

The Supervising Inspector-General reports the inspections, during the fiscal year, of 7,661 domestic steam vessels, having a net tonnage of 1,546,325.29. Officers licensed, 36,520. Increase, 1,404. The number of foreign passenger steamers inspected was 293, with a net tonnage of 559,020.97. The number of passengers carried during the year (partly estimated) was 650,000,000. The number of lives lost was 200, being 138 less than in 1891. Of the lives lost, 48 were passengers and 152 were officers and sailors belonging to the vessels. The expenses of the Service have been, for salaries, $244,300.43; contingent expenses, $44,836.13; making a total of $289,136.56.

Especial attention is invited to the gratifying results of the present law, as compared with the law of August 30, 1852.

During the nineteen years of the operation of the law of 1852 there were 1,504 disasters to steam vessels, with a loss of 9,320 lives, or an average loss of 490 lives per annum. Under the present law, notwithstanding the increase in the number of steam vessels since 1870 of over 100 per cent, there have been but 729 disasters to steam vessels, with a loss of but 5,057 lives, or an average of 240 per annum, while the number of passengers carried per annum has increased from 122,589,130 in 1870 to not less than 650,000,000 in 1892. The average loss of life under the law of 1852, as obtained by dividing the number of passengers carried in 1870 by the above average of 490, was 1 to every 250,181 passengers; while the average loss of life under the operation of the present law, as obtained by dividing the number of passengers carried in 1892 by the above average of 240, has been only 1 to every 2,708,393 passengers, or, considering the number of passengers carried, a decrease in the number of lives lost of nearly 11 to 1.

There are some defects in the present law, but they are matters of detail, and can be amended without affecting its main features.

In this connection, I renew my recommendation of last year that provision be made for the regulating and equalizing the pay of the subordinate officers of the Service.

The Supervising Inspector-General recommends that the officers and employés of the Service below the office of supervising inspector be appointed solely with reference to their fitness and without reference to their political or party affiliations, as is now the case in the Life-Saving Service. In this recommendation, the reasons for which are sufficiently obvious, I concur, and take occasion to urge upon Congress an early and favorable consideration of the subject.

LIFE-SAVING SERVICE.

The following statistics of the operations of the Life-Saving Service during the year are calculated to justify the confidence reposed by the public in that humane institution and the wisdom of Congress in giving it liberal support.

The number of stations in commission at the close of the year was 242.

The reports of the district officers show that during the year there were 337 disasters to documented vessels within the scope of station operations. On board these vessels there were 2,570 persons, of whom 2,550 were saved and 20 lost. The estimated value of property involved was $8,284,525, of which $7,111,005 was saved and $1,173,520 lost. The number of vessels totally lost was 60. In addition to the foregoing there were 170 casualties to smaller craft, such as sailboats, rowboats, etc., involving the lives of 353 persons, of whom 346 were saved and 7 lost. The property involved in these instances is estimated at $67,810, of which $63,470 was saved and $4,340 lost.

|   |               |
|---|---------------|
| Total number of disasters.....                                | 507           |
| Total value of property involved.....                         | $8, 352, 335 |
| Total value of property saved.....                            | $7, 174, 475 |
| Total value of property lost.....                             | $1, 177, 860 |
| Total number of persons involved.....                         | 2, 923        |
| Total number of persons lost.....                             | 27            |
| Total number of shipwrecked persons succored at stations..... | 747           |
| Total number of days' succor afforded.....                    | 1, 847        |
| Number of vessels totally lost.....                           | 60            |

There were also rescued 36 persons, not included in the above table, who had fallen from wharves, piers, etc., and would probably have perished but for the help of the life-saving crews. Much assistance was rendered in saving imperiled vessels and cargoes, 480 vessels having been worked off when stranded, repaired when damaged, extricated from dangerous positions, and similarly aided by the station crews. There were also 265 instances where vessels in danger of going ashore were warned off by the signals of the patrolmen.

The cost of the maintenance of the Service during the year was $1,009,234.86.

The stations mentioned in the last report as being in process of construction at Burnt Island (near the mouth of St. Georges River), Maine; Quonocontaug, Rhode Island; Fenwick Island, Delaware, and Ilwaco Beach, Washington, have been completed and are now in commission.

A new station is approaching completion at Brant Rock, Massachusetts, and the station authorized to be established on the grounds of the World's Columbian Exposition, to take the place of the old station at Chicago, is nearly finished.

Proposals have been invited for the construction of a new station at Fort Niagara, N. Y., and are about to be invited for the erection of stations at Duluth, Minn.; Ashtabula, Ohio, and Kewaunee, Wis.

During the year fifteen stations on the coasts of Maryland and Virginia have been extensively repaired and improved, as have also the Crumple Island station, coast of Maine; the Lewes station, coast of Delaware, and the Golden Gate Park station, California. Similar work is progressing on several stations on the coast of Massachusetts. The Short Beach station, coast of Long Island, is being removed to a new site, the old one having been rendered unsafe by the encroachment of the sea. Improved facilities for launching boats at the Crumple Island station, coast of Maine, and the Lewes station, Delaware, involving considerable expense, have been provided.

The telephone line authorized by act of Congress approved May 13, 1892, to be established between Cape Charles, Virginia, and the lower end of Assateague Island is now in process of construction and will soon be completed.

The higher rates of compensation provided by the act of Congress approved July 22, 1892, for the keepers and crews of stations while actually employed will result in very materially checking the frequent resignations referred to in the last annual report as seriously threatening the efficiency of the Service. They will also secure the best men to fill such vacancies as may occur in the natural order of things, and, together with the continued faithful observance of the provision of law requiring the employment of the officers and men with sole regard to their professional fitness and without reference to political considerations, will, it is believed, still further advance the acknowledged preëminence of the Service in its beneficent work of rescuing imperiled life and property.

COAST AND GEODETIC SURVEY.

The report of the Superintendent of the Coast and Geodetic Survey shows that upward of eighty-five field parties were actively employed during the fiscal year upon the coasts of the Atlantic, the Gulf of Mexico, the Pacific Ocean and Bering Sea, and in the interior of the United States. Their work was carried on within the limits and on or off the coasts of sixteen States on the Atlantic and Gulf seaboard; three States and one Territory bordering on the Pacific Ocean and on Bering Sea, and in fourteen States and three Territories in the interior. It included the measurement of base lines; reconnoissance and triangulation; time, latitude, longitude, and azimuth determinations; gravity research; geodetic leveling; magnetic observations; topographic surveys, and hydrographic work involving inshore and offshore soundings, and observations of currents and tides.

Among work of importance may be mentioned the continuation of the surveys of the Northeastern boundary lakes, the completion of which will afford data for the location of a part of the boundary line between the United States and the Dominion of Canada; the beginning of the resurvey of Boston Harbor; the completion of the resurvey of Nantucket Shoals; the connection of longitude determinations coming westward from the Atlantic coast with those coming eastward from the Pacific; the resurvey of Mobile Bay and entrance; the advance toward a junction in Colorado of the transcontinental triangulation proceeding westward from the Atlantic coast with that proceeding eastward from the Pacific; the completion of the observations for the variations of latitude at three widely separated stations in coöperation with the work of the International Geodetic Association, and the progress toward completion of the surveys in Alaska for the more exact determination of the geographical position of Mount St. Elias, and of its height and distance from the coast.

In addition to this advance of the regular operations of the Survey, a number of requests from national or State authorities for the detail of officers for special service were acceded to, in accord with the policy and practice of the Department. Upon the application of the commission organized for the adjustment of the boundary line between the States of Delaware and Pennsylvania, an officer of the Survey was detailed to execute the reconnoissance and triangulations desired by the commission. In compliance with a request from committees of the senate and house of delegates of the State of Virginia, an officer of the Survey was directed to make the observations needed for the accurate delineation and mapping of the natural oyster beds in the waters of the State. Action was taken by the Superintendent, at the request of the governor of Ohio, for such a preliminary investigation of the points at issue between that State and the State of Indiana relating to the Ohio-Indiana meridian boundary line as might lead to the organization of a joint commission empowered to establish and mark the line by suitable monuments. At the suggestion of the Secretary of State, made by him to the Secretary of the Treasury, officers of the Survey were detailed to determine in latitude and longitude such points on the boundary line between the United States and Mexico as the International Boundary Commission on the part of the United States might indicate.

The special services of an assistant in the Survey were requested temporarily by the mayor and board of supervisors of the city and county of San Francisco as consulting engineer in association with an officer of the United States Engineers. The detail of an assistant in the Survey to coöperate with the harbor line commission of the State of Washington in harbor surveys on Puget Sound was renewed at the request of the commission in the spring of 1892.

In addition to the service of one of the older officers of the Survey as a member of the Mississippi River Commission, as required by law, another officer was appointed by the President as a member of the International Boundary Commission organized for the location of the United States and Mexican boundary line.

From the office of the Survey there were issued during the year 52,675 copies of charts, of which number 2,581 were required by Congress, 14,278 by the Executive Departments, 1,985 by foreign governments, and 28,620 were sent to sale agents. Tide Tables for the Atlantic coast, predicting for 1893 the times and heights of high and low water at fifteen principal ports, were published in May, 1892, and similar tables for the Pacific coast were sent to press. The monthly publication of Notices to Mariners was continued, and 130,000 copies were printed for free distribution. The first edition of the United States Coast Pilot, Atlantic coast, Parts I and II, from the St. Croix River to Cape Ann, was received from the Public Printer; also the third edition of the Pacific Coast Pilot, Alaska, Part I, Dixon entrance to Yakutat Bay. There were issued during the year 591 copies of Coast Pilots for the Atlantic and 327 copies of Coast Pilots for the Pacific coast.

Office of Standard Weights and Measures.

During the fiscal year, a complete set of weights and measures, customary and metric, was adjusted and verified, and delivered to the governor of the State of Idaho, under the provisions of the acts of Congress relating to the distribution of standard weights and measures to the States.

Much of the time of the limited force of the office was occupied in meeting the demands of the Internal Revenue Bureau for the verification of alcoholometers, saccharometers, sugar flasks, weights, and quartz plates for use with polariscopes in the analysis of sugars.

For the customs division of the Treasury, several sets of glass capacity measures, intended for distribution to custom-houses, were verified.

In compliance with numerous requests from engineers, surveyors, manufacturers, and others, who have submitted weights and measures for comparison with the United States standards, this office, being the custodian of these standards, has endeavored to serve the public by making the comparisons desired, although greatly in need of the more extended facilities for such service which all other civilized countries provide.

I renew the recommendation, made in my last annual report and in the annual report of my predecessor, that early action should be taken by Congress toward such legislation as will make the use of the metric system of weights and measures obligatory in transactions at United States custom-houses on and after the first day of the calendar year 1895. The adoption of this system by the chief commercial countries of Europe, and the recent action of most of the chambers of commerce in Great Britain recommending its early introduction into that country, lend added force to the reasons for the enactment proposed.

ENGRAVING AND PRINTING.

The work of this Bureau is steadily increasing from year to year. The number of sheets delivered during the year 1892 exceeded by slightly more than 13 per cent those for 1891, which were the largest during a period of fourteen years prior thereto. The work delivered during 1892 represented a value of over $863,000,000. This large amount was handled throughout the various processes necessary to its completion without the loss to the Government of a single dollar. This result has been obtained by conducting the establishment upon a strictly business basis, and by thoroughly systematizing all its operations.

The method of printing by relief plates has been perfected and continued during the year, and out of 13,240,000 sheets of this class of stamps delivered during the year, 9,208,500 were printed by this process, at a net saving of $131,648.40. It is expected that all of the stamps of this class will be printed by this process during the year 1893, at a saving of $164,000.

With a view of improving the condition of the notes while in circulation, they have been, for several months during the past year, subjected to a bath of size, such as is used by paper-makers in finishing paper, which restores the sizing and finish destroyed by repeatedly wetting the paper for the several plate-printings. This makes a decided improvement both in the appearance and the wearing quality of the notes.

The Bureau is now fully equipped with all the necessary machinery, and has a force of trained employes sufficiently large to promptly execute within the regular hours all the securities, stamps, etc., that it may be called upon to furnish.

PUBLIC BUILDINGS.*

At this date there are two hundred and ninety-seven completed public buildings; ninety-five in course of construction, or extensions and repairs under special appropriations, or for which sites have been selected but not yet paid for, or remain to be selected; of which number condemnation proceedings have not yet been determined for the acquisition of property for sites for two, and payment of the purchase money has not yet been made for the property selected for sites for seven, and sites have not yet been selected, but will soon be selected, for three, and land additional to the site has not been selected for one.

During the year ending September 30, 1892, there was expended for public buildings, $6,741,286.71, and contract liabilities existed amounting to $2,834,408.73, making a total of $9,575,694.73.

From the present condition of the work done and being done on drawings and specifications, and the action taken and contemplated, it is believed that between this date and the close of the second session of the Fifty-second Congress several millions of dollars of the aggregate amount of the various balances of appropriations now remaining available, and aggregating about $15,000,000, will be covered by contract liabilities.

The attention of Congress is invited to the several recommendations made by the Supervising Architect which have my approval.

Also to the special statements made by the Supervising Architect in his report for the year ending September 30, 1892, in regard to the following subjects :

The proposed sale of the old court-house building in Baltimore.

Fixing a limit to the cost of the public building at Buffalo.

To secure a permanent foundation for the public building at Chicago.

As to complications as to public building at Empora, Kans.

The insufficient appropriation to pay for site of public building in the city of New York, and of the inability to sell present custom-house at price fixed by law.

As to the appraiser's stores in New York.

To enlarging facilities at the Philadelphia post-office.

For an appropriation to commence work proposed on new mint at Philadelphia.

To prescribe limit of cost of new public building at San Francisco.

To amend inaccuracy in description of site for United States court-house at Savannah, Ga.

Modifying legislation relating to the sale of marine-hospital site and the purchase of another site at Pittsburg, Pa.

The unavoidable delays in the commencement of work on many new buildings has been largely caused (1) by the failure of Congress to provide by adequate appropriations for the technical and clerical force necessary for prompt conduct of the work ; (2) because of the effect of act of Congress, approved August 1, 1892, limiting the hours of daily service of laborers and mechanics employed upon public works, new proposals had to be invited in a number of cases, etc.

And especial attention is also called to that portion of the report relating to the subject of securing plans for public buildings by competition.

DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA.

The net expenditures on account of the District of Columbia for the fiscal year 1892 were $6,331,960.56. The net revenues deposited in the Treasury on this account for the same period were $2,967,044.71.

On July 1, 1891, there were due and payable $2,490,200 six per cent bonds and $276,700 seven per cent bonds, making a total of $2,766,900.

There have been issued during the fiscal year $27,100 of the 3.65 per cent bonds in satisfaction of judgments of the Court of Claims.

Under the provisions of the act of Congress approved March 3, 1891, the Treasurer issued and sold on July 1, 1891, $2,400,000 of the 3.50 per cent bonds at a premium of 0.531 per cent, realizing the sum of $2,412,744, which was applied to the redemption of the bonds maturing that date, leaving $354,200 to be absorbed by the sinking funds, resulting in a net reduction of the bonded debt during the fiscal year of $366,900, and reducing the annual interest charge $84,781.

The net reduction of the bonded debt since July 1, 1878, is $2,973,250, and of the annual-interest charge $262,120.72.

At the close of the fiscal year 1891 the net surplus arising from the sale of bonds in which the retention from District contractors was invested was $28,066.96. During the fiscal year 1892, in settlement of these accounts, the sum due the contractors is in excess of the amount realized from the sale of bonds, showing a net loss of $4,289.69, reducing the surplus at the close of the fiscal year to $23,777.27.

Attention is invited to the fact that the fund held for the relief of policemen is being rapidly dissipated. The payments on this account being largely in excess of the receipts. At the close of the fiscal year 1891 the bonds held for this account amounted to $27,200, and at the close of the fiscal year 1892 to $20,000, a reduction of $7,200 during the year.

Detailed information in regard to the affairs of the District of Columbia will be found in the report to be submitted by the District Commissioners and by the Treasurer of the United States, ex-officio commissioner of the sinking fund of the District.

WORLD'S COLUMBIAN EXPOSITION.

Satisfactory progress has been made in the preparation of the Treasury Department's contribution to the Government exhibit at the World's Columbian Exposition. The Government building on the Exposition grounds, constructed under the direction of the Supervising Architect of the Treasury, is approaching completion and is now ready for the reception of exhibits. Suitable arrangements have been made for carrying out the customs laws and regulations respecting the admission of foreign goods for exhibition.

PUBLIC ACCOUNTS.

The desirability, if indeed it be not a necessity, of a change in the methods of disbursing public moneys, and the examination, adjudication, and settlement of public accounts, has long been manifest, not only to the officers of the Treasury Department charged with, and responsible for, the official working of those methods, but to many committees of Congress, standing and select, which have inquired into, and reported upon, such methods.

There is now a triplicate system of examination of public accounts, which has no counterpart in any other Government, whether European or in the several States of the Union. It is not only vexatious in respect to details, but wrong in respect to system. Beyond that, however, is the fact that it is highly expensive, without compensating results to the Government, while, in spite of the examination by three different offices and "sets" of clerks, accounts and claims are occasionally improperly adjusted or allowed.

The whole duty of control and audit appertaining to the public expenditure should be under the administrative direction of a Comptroller-General or Chief Comptroller of the Treasury, within whose bureau a board of audit might be created for the determination of quasi-judicial questions arising in the examination, statement, and settlement of accounts, if that mode of procedure should be regarded with favor.

Standing and select committees of Congress have, from time to time, been instructed to inquire into the defects of departmental methods, and have made many valuable reports thereon, recommending or suggesting various changes, many of which have been enacted into law by Congress, with amendments recommended by various Secretaries of the Treasury.

Commissions or committees, composed of officers and clerks of the Treasury Department, have, from time to time, been appointed to examine into the methods of the Department, and have recommended changes which have been adopted in whole or part as "Treasury Regulations."

But these investigations and recommendations, valuable as they were, have fallen far short of meeting the requirements of the situation. In the nature of things, it is impossible for committees of Congress, with other duties and obligations as to committee and department work pressing upon its members, to give their entire time to a study of this great problem, and the same is true as to a commission composed of officers and clerks in the Treasury Department. They have their own current work to perform, most of it important (its members being selected on account of their ability and efficiency), which can not be neglected, postponed, or transferred; and then, trained and accustomed as they are to existing methods, it is but natural to suppose that they would be slow to recommend radical changes therein. For this reason, it is believed that a non-partisan commission, similar in its organization to the Interstate Commerce Commission, but limited to a period of, say, three years' duration (which can be extended temporarily, if necessary), organized exclusively for the purpose of examining into existing methods of business and work in the several Executive Departments, more especially as to the disbursement of public money and the examination, adjudication, and settlement of public accounts, with the view of either establishing simpler and more accurate, as well as economical methods, or providing for a consolidation of the accounting offices of the Treasury Department, thus accomplishing a considerable reduction in the number of employés and a resulting reduction of expenditure for salaries, (thereby promoting the efficiency and general good of the public service) is highly desirable, and the subject is earnestly commended to the consideration of the President and Congress.

PROMOTIONS IN THE TREASURY DEPARTMENT.

The establishment, under the President's order, of an efficiency record which is the determining factor in the selection of clerks for promotion, has tended strongly to secure punctuality, regular attendance, industry, and accuracy, and the ambitious employés have endeavored to complete their knowledge of all matters pertaining to the offices in which they are employed, and to add to their stock of academic acquirements and general information. The ends usually sought by coercive rules and regulations have been better attained by the rewards offered for fidelity and ability. The friction first encountered in putting the new methods into effect has been largely overcome and ratings by the chiefs of division are practically equitable as between the several divisions.

The experience of the Department in making selections for places excepted from the competitive examination induced my predecessor to subject each candidate for the position of special agent to an examination as a test of fitness. I found the application of the principle to be beneficial to the service and continued it; and for the same reason I have applied during the year a like test of fitness to candidates for the position of chief of division with equally good results.

So far as can be learned the promotions, with few exceptions, have been approved by the chiefs and clerks of the bureaus in which they have been made. The head of the Department has been relieved of the importunities for promotion from those outside the classified service and from those within. The hope is entertained that the present rules, with a few modifications, will eventually place promotions wholly on the basis of merit, as ascertained from the records of faithfulness and efficiency of the clerks made from day to day. Attention is invited to the report of the Examiner, to be found in the Appendix.*

REPORTS OF HEADS OF OFFICES.

The several reports of the heads of offices and bureaus are herewith transmitted, and the Secretary desires to express his appreciation of the valuable service rendered to him by the officers and employés of this Department in the transaction of the public business.

might deem expedient, $50,000,000 to be applied to the redemption of demand notes authorized by the act of July 17, 1861; these notes to be a legal tender in payment of all debts, public and private within the United States, except duties on imports and interest on the public debt, and to be exchangeable for 6 per cent United States bonds. The act of July 11, 1862 (12 Statutes, 532), authorized an additional issue of $150,000,000 of such denominations as the Secretary of the Treasury might deem expedient, but no such note should be for a fractional part of a dollar, and not more than $35,000,000 of a lower denomination than five dollars; these notes to be a legal tender as before authorized. The act of March 3, 1863 (12 Statutes, 710), authorized an additional issue of $150,000,000 of such denominations, not less than one dollar, as the Secretary of the Treasury might prescribe; which notes were made a legal tender as before authorized. The same act limited the time in which the Treasury notes might be exchanged for United States bonds to July 1, 1863. The amount of notes authorized by this act were to be in lieu of $100,000,000 authorized by the resolution of January 17, 1863 (12 Statutes 822). The act of May 31, 1878 (20 Statutes 87), provides that no more of the United States legal-tender notes shall be canceled or retired, and that when any of said notes are redeemed or received into the Treasury under any law, from any source whatever, and shall belong to the United States, they shall not be retired, canceled or destroyed, but shall be reissued and paid out again, and kept in circulation.

FIVE-PER-CENT LOAN OF 1881.

The act of January 14, 1875 (18 Statutes, 296), authorizes the Secretary of the Treasury to use any surplus revenues from time to time in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated, and to issue, sell, dispose of, at not less than par, in coin, either of the description of bonds of the United States described in the act of July 14, 1870 (16 Statutes, 272), to the extent necessary for the redemption of fractional currency in silver coins of the denominations of ten, twenty-five, and fifty cents of standard value.

The act of March 3, 1875 (18 Statutes, 466), directs the Secretary of the Treasury to issue bonds of the character and description set out in the act of July 14, 1870 (16 Statutes, 272), to James B. Eads, or his legal representatives, in payment at par of the warrants of the Secretary of War for the construction of jetties and auxiliary works to maintain a wide and deep channel between the South Pass of the Mississippi River and the Gulf of Mexico, unless Congress shall have previously provided for the payment of the same by the necessary appropriation of money.

The act of July 14, 1870 (16 Statutes, 272), authorizes the issue of $200,000,000 at 5 per centum, principal and interest payable in coin of the present standard value, at the pleasure of the United States Government, after ten years; these bonds to be exempt from the payment of all taxes or duties of the United States, as well as from taxation in any form by or under State, municipal, or local authority. Bonds and coupons payable at the Treasury of the United States. This act not to authorize an increase of the bonded debt of the United States. Bonds to be sold at not less than par in coin, and the proceeds to be applied to the redemption of outstanding 5-20's or to be exchanged for said 5-20's par for par. Payment of these bonds, when due, to be made in order of dates and numbers, beginning with each class last dated and numbered. Interest to cease at the end of three months from notice of intention to redeem. The act of January 20, 1871 (16 Statutes, 399), increases the amount of 5 per cents to $500,000,000, provided the total amount of bonds issued shall not exceed the amount originally authorized, and authorizes the interest on any of these bonds to be paid quarterly.

The act of December 17, 1873 (18 Statutes, 1), authorized the issue of an equal amount of bonds of the loan of 1858, which the holders thereof may, on or before February 1, 1874, elect to exchange for the bonds of this loan.

FOUR-PER-CENT LOAN OF 1907. (RESUMPTION.)

The act of January 14, 1875 (18 Statutes, 296), authorizes the Secretary of the Treasury to use any surplus revenues from time to time in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated, and to issue, sell, dispose of at not less than par, in coin, either of the description of bonds of the United States described in the act of July 14, 1870 (16 Statutes, 272), for the purpose of redeeming, on and after January 1, 1879, in coin, at the office of the assistant treasurer of the United States in New York, the outstanding United States legal-tender notes when presented in sums of not less than fifty dollars.

CERTIFICATES OF DEPOSIT.

The act of June 8, 1872 (17 Statutes, 336), authorizes the deposit of United States notes without interest by banking associations in sums not less than $10,000, and the issue of certificates therefor in denominations of not less than $5,000; which certificates shall be payable on demand in United States notes at the place where the deposits were made. It provides that the notes so deposited in the Treasury shall not be counted as a part of the legal reserve, but that the certificates issued therefor may be held and counted by the national banks as part of their legal reserve, and may be accepted in the settlement of clearing-house balances at the place where the deposits therefor were made, and that the United States notes for which such certificates were issued, or other United States notes of like amount, shall be held as special deposits in the Treasury, and used only for the redemption of such certificates.

GOLD CERTIFICATES.

The act of March 3, 1863 (12 Statutes, 711), authorizes the Secretary of the Treasury to receive deposits of gold coin and bullion in sums of not less than twenty dollars, and to issue certificates therefor in denominations of not less than twenty dollars each; the coin and bullion deposited for or representing the certificates to be retained in the Treasury for the payment of the same on demand. The certificates so issued to be received at par in payment of interest on the public debt and for duties on imports. The act of July 12, 1882 (22 Statutes, 165), provides that the Secretary of the Treasury shall suspend the issue of gold certificates whenever the amount of gold coin and gold bullion in the Treasury reserved for the redemption of United States notes falls below one hundred millions of dollars.

| The act of July 14, 1890 (26 Statute, 289), directs the Secretary of the Treasury to purchase, from time to time, silver bullion to the aggregate amount of four million five hundred thousand ounces, or so much thereof as may be offered in each month, at the market price thereof, not exceeding one dollar for three hundred and seventy-one and twenty-five hundredths grains of pure silver, and to issue in payment for such purchases of silver bullion Treasury notes of the United States, to be prepared by the Secretary of the Treasury, in such form and of such denominations, not less than one dollar nor more than one thousand dollars, as he may prescribe. That said notes shall be redeemable on demand, in coin, at the Treasury of the United States, or at the office of any assistant treasurer of the United States, and when so redeemed may be reissued; but no greater or less amount of such notes shall be outstanding at any time than the cost of the silver bullion and the standard silver dollars coined therefrom then held in the Treasury, purchased by such notes; and such Treasury notes shall be a legal tender in payment of all debts, public and private, except where otherwise expressly stipulated in the contract, and shall be receivable for customs, taxes, and all public dues, and when so received may be reissued; and such notes, when held by any national banking association, may be counted as a part of its lawful reserve. That upon demand of the holder of any of the Treasury notes provided for the Secretary of the Treasury shall redeem the same in gold or silver coin, at his discretion, it being the established policy of the United States to maintain the two metals on a parity with each other upon the present legal ratio, or such ratio as may be provided by law. |                                |               |        |  | $50,228,417.00    | 101,712,071.00 |

* In the amount here stated as the outstanding principal of the public debt are included the certificates of deposit outstanding on the 30th of June, issued under act of June 8, 1872, for which a like amount in United States notes was on special deposit in the Treasury for their redemption, and added to the cash balance in the Treasury. These certificates, as a matter of accounts, are treated as a part of the public debt, but being offset by notes held on deposit for their redemption should properly be deducted from the principal of the public debt in making comparison with former years.

† Exclusive of gold, silver, currency certificates, and Treasury notes of 1890, held in the Treasurer's cash, and including $64,623,512 bonds issued to the several Pacific railroads.

NOTE 1.—The annual interest charge is computed upon the amount of outstanding principal at the close of the fiscal year, and is exclusive of interest charge on Pacific Railway bonds.

NOTE 2.—The figures for July 1, 1879, were made up assuming pending funding operations to have been completed.

NOTE 3.—The temporary loan per act of July 11, 1862, is included in the 4 per cent from 1862 to 1868, inclusive, with the exception of the amount outstanding August 31, 1865, this being the date at which the public debt reached its highest point. This loan bore interest from 4 per cent to 6 per cent, and was redeemable on ten days' notice after thirty days; but being constantly changing, it has been considered more equitable to include the whole amount outstanding as bearing 4 per cent interest on an average for the year.

* See statement which follows, showing conversion of refunding certificates, for an explanation of the increase during the year in the interest-bearing debt.

Since November 1, 1891, refunding certificates issued in 1879, under the act of February 26, 1879, have been presented for conversion into 4 per cent bonds as follows:

|                               |                  |
|-------------------------------|------------------|
| Principal.....                | $10,750.00      |
| Accrued interest thereon..... | 5,612.70         |
| Total.....             | 16,362.70 |

For which settlement was made as follows:

|  |                    |
|--|--------------------|
| Four per cent bonds issued on account of principal.....        | $10,750           |
| Four per cent bonds issued on account of accrued interest..... | 5,300              |
| Interest paid in cash .....                             | $16,050.00 |
| Total as above.....                                     | 16,362.70   |

The certificates still outstanding amount to $78,320.

The annual interest charge has been increased during the twelve months ended October 31, 1892, by the sum of $212, being 4 per cent per annum on the $5,300, bonds issued in settlement of accrued interest on refunding certificates surrendered for conversion.

The bonded indebtedness of the United States has been reduced during the period above mentioned by the redemption of $3,617,700 4½ per cent bonds, and $131,975 in 7-30 notes and bonds of various issues, all of which ceased to bear interest prior to November 1, 1891.

NOTE.—The difference between the amount of money in the country and the amount in circulation represents the money in the Treasury.

Currency certificates, act of June 8, 1872, are included in the amount of United States notes in circulation in the tables for the years 1873 to 1891 inclusive; in 1892 they are reported separately.

The foregoing tables present the revised figures for each of the years given.

It will be observed that both years there was a surplus of receipts over disbursements, not only in the aggregate, but under each of the two general heads.

To weigh the relative importance or value of the different classes of receipts, or, what is more pertinent still, to make clear the effect of the difference between the receipts and disbursements under the various heads, it is to be considered that with respect to the result to the Treasury the receipts are divided into two general classes. On the one hand, the ordinary revenues, together with the receipts from loans and the deposits for the retirement of national-bank notes, increase for the time the cash available for the uses of the Government. The ordinary revenues are an absolute property, while the receipts from the sale of bonds or on account of the bank-note redemption fund become a property subject to the condition of future payment. The compilation of the figures for the revenues and expenditures of these classes gives the following result:

|                             | 1891.            | 1892.            | Increase. | Decrease.       |
|-----------------------------|------------------|------------------|-----------|-----------------|
| Revenues .....              | $456,197,888.06 | $357,930,872.24 | .....     | $98,267,015.82 |
| Expenditures .....          | 490,330,260.22   | 385,604,138.56   | .....     | 104,726,121.66  |
| Excess of expenditures..... | 34,132,372.16    | 27,673,266.32    | .....     | 6,459,105.84    |

It must not be overlooked that the figures for the revenues of the former of the two years are swelled artificially by the transfer of the bank-note redemption fund, which amounted, at the time of its deposit in the Treasury, in July, 1890, to $54,388,475.75. If this be considered in the present comparison what it was in fact, a receipt of prior years, the figures will show an excess of upwards of eighty-eight millions of expenditures over revenues in 1891, and one of upwards of twenty-seven millions in 1892. It is unnecessary to point out that these expenditures were applied to the reduction of the public debt, or to recall that they were undertaken in pursuance of the well-considered policy of the Department, which had for its purpose the stoppage of interest by the use of moneys lying idle and useless in the Treasury.

The remaining revenues and expenditures, composing the second general class, are those which arise from the issue and redemption of gold, silver, and currency certificates, United States notes, and Treasury notes. Receipts upon these accounts tend to swell the assets of the Treasury, but do not affect the available balance. The figures under this head for the two years are as follows:

|                         | 1891.            | 1892.            | Increase.       | Decrease. |
|-------------------------|------------------|------------------|-----------------|-----------|
| Revenues.....           | $309,623,417.00 | $378,470,424.00 | $68,847,007.00 | .....     |
| Expenditures.....       | 240,796,116.00   | 298,415,151.00   | 57,619,035.00   | .....     |
| Excess of revenues..... | 68,827,301.00    | 80,055,273.00    | 11,227,972.00   | .....     |

It will be seen from the foregoing that the tendency of the recent operations of the Treasury has been toward the diminution of the available balance and the increase of the trust funds. As regards the first of the changes, the result of the past year was attained for the most part by the operations of the first six months. How successful these operations were, is perhaps best illustrated by the saving of upwards of fourteen millions of interest, out of which a substantial surplus revenue was realized. The cessation of bond purchases, together with the continuance of this surplus, has left the Treasury in the same commanding position that it has occupied for years, notwithstanding the cutting down of the revenues by legislation.

STATE OF THE TREASURY.

At the close of business on June 30, 1891, there stood charged to the Treasurer on the books of the Register of the Treasury a balance of $726,222,332.60. Adding thereto the revenues of the year from all sources, amounting to $736,401,296.24, as stated in the preceding chapter, gives a total of $1,462,623,628.84 to be accounted for. Out of this was disbursed, by warrant of the Department, as the expenditures for the year, a total of $684,019,289.56, leaving a balance of $778,604,339.28 charged to the Treasurer at the close of business on June 30, 1892.

In addition to the liability to the Department there were others arising from the postal revenues, from the deposits to the credit of disbursing officers, from the 5 per cent fund for the redemption of national bank notes, and from various other sources. These are classed together under what is known as the Treasurer's agency account. They amounted to $50,290,009.36 on June 30, 1891, and to $36,561,761.39, on June 30, 1892. Lastly, as the receipt into the Treasury invariably precedes the issue of the warrant, there is always a sum of money in the Treasurer's custody, forming a part of the current revenues, which has not yet been charged to him on the Register's books. This amounted to $1,342,603.71 at the former of the two dates and to $465,538.24 at the latter. The Treasurer's total liabilities at those dates, therefore, were, respectively, $777,854,945.67 and $815,631,638.91.

Against these liabilities the Treasury held, in the several offices and in the associated offices of the mint, certain known sums of coin, bullion, paper currency, and securities. There were other sums standing to the Treasurer's credit with the depository banks. These together constituted the live assets. But as the Register's account contains no credit for the money deposited, under the law of 1836, with the States, or for the losses sustained by the Treasury at various times in the past, the Treasurer is entitled to count these amongst his assets, although he does not carry them as such on his books. So composed, the statement of assets and liabilities, in the broadest form, is as follows:

|---|-----------------------|-----------------------|
| ASSETS.                              |                       |                       |
| Gold coin and bullion.....                  | $239,132,228.53      | $255,671,639.87      |
| Silver coin and bullion.....                | 399,746,943.51        | 448,156,453.54        |
| Notes and certificates.....                 | 82,742,877.40         | 67,077,972.37         |

| Unavailable funds.....                      | 1,405,433.91          | 1,405,433.91          |
| Total.....                           | 777,854,945.67 | 815,631,638.91 |
| LIABILITIES.                         |                       |                       |
| General account.....                        | 726,222,332.60        | 778,604,339.28        |
| Agency account.....                         | 50,290,009.36         | 36,561,761.39         |
| Uncovered moneys.....                       | 1,342,603.71          | 465,538.24            |
| Total.....                           | 777,854,945.67 | 815,631,638.91 |

The foregoing reconciles the condition of the Treasury at once with the accounts of the Department and with the results of the operations of the past year.

As actually carried on the books of this office, however, the figures differ from those above by the omission of the deposits with the States and the unavailable funds, and by the merging of the uncovered moneys into the general account. In summary form the true condition of the Treasury may, therefore, be given thus:

|                      | June 30, 1891.          | June 30, 1892.          |
|----------------------|-------------------------|-------------------------|
| Assets.....   | $748,347,866.85 | $786,124,560.09 |
| Liabilities:  |                         |                         |
| General account..... | 698,057,857.49          | 749,562,798.70          |
| Agency account.....  | 50,290,009.36           | 36,561,761.39           |
| Total.....    | 748,347,866.85   | 786,124,560.09   |

In the Appendix will be found tables showing the distribution of the assets and liabilities amongst the various offices and the depositaries; also the revised general statements, substantially in the form in which they are issued monthly, whence the above figures are taken. From those general statements may be formed the following classification of the assets with respect to the object for which they were held, and of the liabilities with respect to their character, whether arising out of outstanding obligations or out of working balance or reserve:

|  | June 30, 1891.   |                  | June 30, 1892.   |                  |

Since there were included in the assets considerable amounts of gold, silver, and currency certificates, which might have been canceled by the Department, and smaller sums of redeemed securities, which awaited delivery to the accounting officers as vouchers, the condition exhibited in the last table was such as to admit of a partial liquidation, wholly internal in its inception and consequences. Such an operation would have had the effect merely of clarifying the assets and simplifying the accounts, without affecting the real condition of the Treasury. If such an operation had been carried out the result would have been as follows:

|   | June 30, 1891.   |                  | June 30, 1892.   |                  |

Perhaps the most gratifying particular of this showing is the evidence it affords of the success which has attended the efforts of the Department to maintain a strong reserve of gold. In spite of the heavy disbursements, which cut down the working balance by more than forty millions, the gold balance, constituting as it did more than half of the net holdings, was impaired by less than five millions. In the face of the adverse monetary conditions prevailing, this result was attained not without careful management and the adoption of some new measures.

THE PUBLIC DEBT.

For the purpose of more fully detailing the operations of the Treasury affecting the public debt, already shown in the aggregate in a preceding chapter, a brief notice of the condition of the loans classified under this head, and of the changes which occurred therein during the fiscal year, will be given, as in former reports.

The condition of the debt on June 30, 1891 and 1892, may be summarized as follows:

| Class.                              | June 30, 1891.       | June 30, 1892.       |

In this statement the Treasury notes of 1890, against which full deposits of silver are held by the Treasury, are classed along with the gold, silver, and currency certificates, although, unlike the certificates, they are not payable strictly out of the deposit.

If the conditions of payment be attended to, the interest-bearing loans, which, with the exception of the 2 per cent bonds issued during the year, are payable at future dates, arrange themselves, with the same exception, under one head; the matured loans, the old demand notes, the fractional currency, and the national-bank notes secured by deposits of lawful money, being all redeemable on demand, for retirement without reissue, form a group by themselves; the United States notes and the Treasury notes of 1890 are alike in being redeemable on demand for reissue, while the certificates, expressly payable out of full deposits of coin and paper in the Treasury, compose the last and least significant class, so far as their character as the evidence of debt of the United States is concerned. The result of this arrangement is as follows:

| Condition of payment.               | June 30, 1891.              | June 30, 1892.              |

| At option of the United States..... | .....                       | 25, 364, 500. 00            |
| On demand, without reissue.....     | 48, 596, 424. 61            | 36, 508, 494. 63            |

These figures show a satisfactory change, at once in the material reduction of the interest-bearing debt, the conversion of matured bonds into others payable at the option of the Secretary, and the extinction of a considerable part of the demand loans. The processes by which these results were brought about are exhibited in the following table:

| Loan.                       | Increase.               | Conversions.            | Redemptions.            | Net increase.           | Net decrease.           |

The net reduction was effected by the application of the $9,914,453.66 of surplus revenue for the year, together with the apparent sum of $27,673,266.32 taken from the cash in the Treasury. Both of these items have been shown on former pages. Since, however, $4,910 of accrued interest on refunding certificates was converted into 4 per cent bonds, and included in the receipts for the year, the total application of money to the extinction of the principal of the debt was $37,592,629.98, being the difference between the total redemptions shown in the table and the increase of $2,977,838 arising from fresh deposits for the retirement of national-bank notes.

THE CURRENCY.

The stock of money in the United States on June 30, 1891 and 1892, is estimated to have been as follows:

| Kind.                              | June 30, 1891.          | June 30, 1892.          |

These figures are the result of the final compilation of statistics relating to the dates named, and are intended to represent the facts actually existing on those days. They differ somewhat, but not materially, from those heretofore published and reproduced elsewhere in this report, which present the showing of the records current in the Department at the time the compilations were made. The differences between the two sets of figures do not, therefore, imply errors in either. As the more precise and authoritative record, the revised figures are to be preferred; but since they are made up for the last day only in each fiscal year, they are not available for the discussion of the movements occupying shorter periods of time. Neither would it be considered accurate to substitute them in the place of those for June in the series compiled monthly, since they rest upon a different basis of fact from the others in that series. Hence the revised figures are used herein to show the net results of the year, while those in the monthly series are resorted to in the discussion of monthly changes.

To arrive at the amount and composition of the effective monetary stock it is necessary to eliminate that part of the paper currency which is purely representative, consisting of the certificates of deposit and the Treasury notes. It might be questioned, perhaps, whether the latter, from their peculiar legal constitution, may properly be reckoned in this class, but such disposition of them is preferred for the present purpose. The following is thus obtained as the effective stock in comparison with several preceding years:

|--------------|------------------|------------------|------------------|------------------|------------------|
| Gold .....   | $705, 818, 855  | $680, 063, 505  | $695, 563, 029  | $646, 582, 852  | $664, 275, 335  |
| Silver ..... | 386, 611, 108    | 420, 548, 929    | 403, 211, 919    | 522, 277, 740    | 570, 313, 544    |
| Notes .....  | 599, 049, 337    | 558, 059, 979    | 532, 651, 791    | 514, 608, 990    | 519, 364, 866    |
| Total.....   | 1, 691, 479, 300 | 1, 658, 672, 413 | 1, 691, 426, 739 | 1, 683, 469, 582 | 1, 753, 953, 745 |

The monetary history of the past year, however, is so peculiar that the foregoing figures do not give a clear idea of what has been going on. The seasonal changes which have usually distinguished the six months between June and January from the other six, the turn in each movement occurring approximately at the middle and end of each fiscal year, have been wanting or postponed. Gold exports, commonly ceasing in July, continued until September, while the return shipments, usually commencing early in the autumn, have not occurred at all. For these reasons the composition of the money stock is given also for the 30th of September in the same years, as follows:

| Kind.        | 1888.            | 1889.            | 1890.            | 1891.            | 1892.            |
| Gold .....   | $709, 881, 170  | $681, 819, 487  | $693, 026, 194  | $653, 308, 095  | $652, 130, 237  |
| Silver ..... | 393, 948, 394    | 428, 440, 671    | 468, 988, 835    | 529, 019, 947    | 579, 211, 096    |
| Notes .....  | 590, 210, 018    | 550, 248, 818    | 528, 283, 931    | 518, 466, 162    | 519, 467, 776    |
| Total.....   | 1, 694, 039, 582 | 1, 660, 508, 976 | 1, 690, 298, 960 | 1, 700, 794, 204 | 1, 750, 809, 109 |

Both of these tables bring out a substantial increase of the stock of the circulating medium since June 30, 1891; but the tendency, apparently manifest during the first twelve months of the period, to accumulate gold, gave way to an opposite one in the next three.

To exhibit more minutely the changes which occurred in the monetary stock during the fiscal year, the effects of the various causes which contributed to the result will now briefly be detailed. For reasons already explained, the estimates published monthly, compilations of which will be found in the Appendix, will be relied on for the statistics.

The imports and exports of gold, the net production of domestic mines in excess of industrial consumption, the net consumption in excess of production, and the consequent net gain or loss of the metal, month by month, during the fiscal year, were as follows:

The changes in the stock of silver grew out of the monthly purchases under the law of 1890, with slight modifications from the subsidiary coinage. Those in the notes were limited to a gradual increase, amounting to $5,000,000 in the aggregate, in the circulation of national banks. It will perhaps answer all purposes to lump these together. The monthly changes in the monetary stock are thus shown to have been as follows:

| Month.         | Gain of gold. | Loss of gold. | Increase of silver and notes. | Increase of stock. | Decrease of stock. |

The direct connection of the Treasury with the movements of gold was confined almost altogether to furnishing the material for the exports. These, as is well known, occurred, with unimportant exception, at New York, the metal being drawn, in American coin, from the subtreasury there, in exchange for other kinds of money. These transactions, together with other receipts and payments of one kind of money for another, are recorded in what is called the exchange account, and are the only means through which the subtreasury loses gold in any considerable sums. A synopsis of that account will, therefore, show the results of the export movement of gold so far as the Treasury is concerned.

The receipts and disbursements of moneys on this account in the six months ending with June, during which the bulk of the exportations occurred, and the consequent gain or loss to the Treasury, were as follows:

| Kind of money.                | Receipts.      | Disbursements. | Gain.        | Loss.          |

It appears, then, that up to the end of the fiscal year the gold taken from the Treasury for export was paid for mainly in gold certificates. The effect of these operations was, therefore, to deplete the gross holdings of gold without effecting the reserve. No legal-tender notes in any considerable amounts were presented during this period for redemption in coin. The loss to the gold reserve, which amounted in the six months to sixteen millions, was due to the issue of gold certificates for disbursement in the ordinary expenditures of the Government, when there were no other available kinds of currency in the Treasury. During this period, however, there was a tendency of silver certificates toward the Treasury for redemption, but so far as could be ascertained this movement was an incident to the return of the small denominations which had been sent out during the previous autumn to different parts of the country, and was not due to any apparent lack of confidence in the certificates themselves.

But with the beginning of July an altogether different condition of things set in. On the first day of the month three millions in gold was taken for export, for which the subtreasury received two and a half millions in United States and Treasury notes, and only half a million in gold certificates. Of the ten millions in round numbers exported in the month, four millions was paid for in United States notes, four millions and a half in Treasury notes, and only a million and a half in gold certificates. During the continuance of gold shipments through August and part of September the proportion of gold certificates offered was still less. The net results of the operations of the three months affecting the exchange account, on the days when gold was taken for export, are shown in the following table:

| Kind of money.               | Receipts.         | Disbursements.    | Gain.             | Loss.             |

With the cessation of gold shipments conditions more favorable to the Treasury set in, and the gold reserve, which had suffered severely, once more began to build up, under careful management. Advantage was taken, to this end, of the autumnal flow of currency to the South and West, by giving preference to gold for deposit in exchange for the paper desired for shipment. This plan worked well, and the results can be seen in the improved condition of the reserve.

THE CIRCULATION.

The estimates of the stock of monetary material comprise all bullion, wherever found. Included in the figures, therefore, are certain amounts of bullion, both gold and silver, which were in the custody of the mints, but were not treated as part of the cash of the Treasury, having not yet been turned over to the bullion fund or charged to the Treasurer's general account. There is included also in the estimate of the silver stock the bullion on deposit in New York against the certificates listed in the stock exchange, although this, in the strictest sense, is not money material. In estimating the circulation, therefore, the separate holdings of the mints must be added to the amount in the Treasury, while the private deposits in New York are treated as outstanding.

According to the official computations, the distribution of the stock of money, on June 30, 1891 and 1892, between the Treasury and the circulation was as follows:

| Kind.                              | In Treasury and mints. |                    | In circulation.      |                      |

In view of the somewhat unusual conditions which have prevailed for some months past, to which reference has already been made, the virtual composition of that part of the circulating medium which was outside of the Treasury on September 30 in each of the last five years is given, as follows:

In the last preceding chapter the sources of the increase of the aggregate monetary stock was traced. Of the total net increase of seventy-one millions realized during the fiscal year, about eighteen millions was gold, the surplus product of American mines, and forty-eight millions was silver, the net result of the year's operations in that metal, while the banks contributed nearly five millions in new issues of their notes. This seventy-one millions of fresh material, together with the twenty-nine millions paid out of the Treasury on balance, accounts for the increase of one hundred millions shown by the foregoing tables in the circulation. The proportions of the increase of the different kinds are readily to be seen in the tables themselves.

From September to September there was a gain of only fifty millions of new material, consisting wholly of silver, and this with the fifteen millions drawn from the Treasury on balance makes the sixty-five millions of increase of circulation which occurred during that period.

The changes from month to month in the amounts of gold and of silver and notes in the circulation, or represented therein by certificates or Treasury notes, as shown by the monthly estimates, during the fiscal year, were as follows:

From these figures it appears that since the resumption of specie payments, with the exception of a single year, there has been an annual expansion of the volume of money in circulation, the result of a large increase from July to December, and a smaller increase, or a decrease, from January to June. The normal condition of the circulation would, therefore, appear to be one of yearly growth, but varied by a seasonal decline.

Incidentally to this ebb and flow of the circulating medium, and, in particular, to the changes in the materials of which it is composed, there has occurred, with more or less uniformity, in the month of January, a sharp drain upon the gold reserve of the Treasury. To illustrate this, the amount of gold in the Treasury in excess of gold certificates in circulation at the end of December, January, and February, in each of the last ten years, together with the average for the whole period, is given, as follows:

These figures show that each year there has occurred at this season a more or less considerable diminution of the gold reserve, averaging nearly ten millions, which has been succeeded in February by a less marked tendency in the opposite direction. Last January the loss occurred between the 1st and the 22d of the month, and at the latter date exceeded $12,000,000. A recovery of one million was effected before the 1st of February. With a reserve of one hundred and fifty or two hundred millions, a reduction of five or ten in a month might pass unnoticed; but when the reserve is not more than a hundred and twenty or thirty millions, the loss of twelve in eighteen business days deserves attention.

In order to discover the causes and character of the movements which have thus annually affected the Treasury, it is necessary to inquire what other changes occurred at the same times in the composition and distribution of the money stock. A hasty examination of the tables in the appendix is all that is necessary to see that there has been nothing in the aggregate supply of money or in its division between the Treasury and the people to throw any light on the subject. Changes have occurred, it is true, in the volume of the effective stock, and in the amount of the Treasury holdings and of the circulation as well, but they have been less marked and regular, and not of a nature to have any direct bearing upon the movement of gold. It would appear to be sufficient for the present purpose, therefore, to study the facts relating to that metal in particular.

The whole stock of gold in the country at the end of each of the three months of December, January, and February in each of the last ten years is given in the following table:

| Fiscal year. | December.     | January.      | February.     |

It appears from these figures that invariably, during the months in which the Treasury has lost reserve gold, the stock of the metal in the country has been slightly increased. January is indeed the month when the turn between the imports and exports of gold frequently occurs, as well as that between the autumnal increase of the circulation and the vernal decrease, as has been noticed on a preceding page. It is plain, therefore, that the gold lost to the reserve does not go out of the country, but into the hands of the people; also, since there are no corresponding changes in the circulation, it is equally apparent that the gold goes out in exchange, directly or indirectly, for other kinds of money.

The actual holdings of gold in the Treasury, however, show that during the month of January, in spite of the drain upon the reserve, the tendency toward increase has been nearly as persistent, and in the average almost exactly as effective, as that toward the increase of the total stock of the country. The total gain of metal to the Treasury during this month for the ten years together was twenty-two millions, while that to the country was twenty-six. Below are the figures:

| Fiscal year. | December.       | January.        | February.       |

The Treasury then, in fact, has not lost gold at all in January. The drain on the reserve must, therefore, have been the effect of an increase in the circulation of gold certificates. That circulation at the dates under consideration was as follows:

| Fiscal year. | December.      | January.       | February.      |

It is thus brought out that at the return of January in each of the last ten years the Treasury's reserve of gold has been trenched upon by the issue of gold certificates, but, that, with the exception of one year only, the full effect of the fresh issues has been lessened by a gain of the metal. It has also been observed that these fresh issues are largely for direct or indirect conversion into other kinds of currency. To show the net results of all the operations of the month of January to the Treasury, without attempting the difficult if not impossible task of ascertaining what proportion of the loss of gold was due to the redemption of notes and silver certificates in gold certificates, and what to the excess of the receipts over the disbursements of silver and notes on account of the ordinary revenues, the following table is given, exhibiting the net decrease of the gold reserve, the net increase of the holdings of silver and notes, and the increase and decrease of the cash in the Treasury in excess of certificates in circulation:

There is here apparent in the month of January not only a tendency toward an inflow of silver and notes to the Treasury at the cost of gold certificates, but also a not less marked tendency toward an additional loss of gold certificates, whenever, in the same month, the cash balance runs down, that is, whenever the current expenditures exceed the current revenues. It does not appear, however, that these losses are due to the development of any unusual demand, at this season, for gold certificates in particular, or to any lack of confidence on the part of the public in the ability of the Treasury to maintain the parity of the different kinds of money. The gradual rebuilding of the reserve, which ordinarily begins in February, would be sufficient proof of this, even without the confirmation lent by the experience of this office.

It is perhaps reasonable to suppose that an incident which has thus recurred annually has arisen out of the recurrence of the same conditions. An investigation of the causes which were at work last January may, therefore, throw some light upon those operative in earlier years.

Not to enter too much into detail, it was found that from the end of December to the 22d of January last the gold reserve ran down $12,400,000; that in the same period there was a net gain of $3,200,000 in gold coin and bullion to the Treasury; that the expenditures were $3,000,000 in excess of the revenues; that the circulation of gold certificates increased $15,600,000; that the Treasury holdings of silver and notes increased $5,600,000. The net loss of $12,400,000 to the reserve was, therefore, the result of the fresh issue of gold certificates and the receipt of new gold and was found to have been occasioned by the exchange of about $3,000,000 in gold certificates for silver certificates, and the disbursement of about $9,400,000 of gold certificates, in excess of their receipt, in other transactions. It was found also that these exchanges and disbursements were not made in response to demands for gold certificates, but simply because at the time and place where payment was to be made there was no other kind of paper available. The difficulties of the situation were all on the side of the Treasury, which paid out gold certificates when legal-tender notes, if not silver certificates, of suitable denominations, would have been equally acceptable to the applicant, but were not at hand.

The expansion of the active circulation, which occurs in the autumn months, is attended by a partial change of character. The demands for moving the crops require paper money for cheapness of transportation, and small denominations for convenience of distribution. These demands are, therefore, supplied for the most part in new legal-tender notes and silver certificates, and advantage is taken of them, on occasion, to accumulate gold in the Treasury. The return tide sets in strongly after the 1st of January, through the subtreasuries. When received there the notes have two disqualifications which make them unavailable for immediate use; they are more or less worn, and of unsuitable denominations. They are therefore sent to Washington for redemption, and the demands upon the subtreasuries are met with such available currency as may be at hand. The shipment, redemption, and destruction of the old notes and the issue of new take time. Before the Treasury can make the conversion the subtreasuries are drained, and the Treasury has nothing but gold certificates to send them. The situation is aggravated by the circumstance that generally the limit of the issue of notes and silver certificates has been reached, so that none of these are available. In this way the gold reserve suffers, until the Treasury is able to gather in a working balance of other material.

Considered with reference to the gain of gold which the Treasury commonly realizes from the autumnal outflow of currency, this loss of the metal is no more than a compensation for previous favors. But with a low reserve it may threaten disturbance both by its rapidity and extent. It occurs, too, at an awkward time, especially in seasons when exports of gold begin early or become heavy. Unless the records of former years are misleading and the deductions here drawn from them erroneous, this incident is natural to the present monetary system, and may be expected annually under ordinary conditions. Doubtless it may be anticipated by adequate provisions, if not neutralized or prevented by proper measures. At all events it introduces into the currency problem an element that is not to be neglected in close calculations.

ISSUES AND REDEMPTIONS.

The issues of United States paper currency from the Treasury exceeded those of any previous year, amounting in all to $376,726,583. The nearest approach to this was $310,000,000 in the year before, and the next nearest $291,000,000 in 1863. Upwards of $298,000,000 of the year's issues took the place of equal amounts of like kinds redeemed and destroyed, while $78,000,000 went to increase the balances outstanding. The redemptions, corresponding to the reissues, were also greater than those of any other year.

The amounts of the fresh issues, the reissues, and the total issues of each kind of currency, were as follows:

| Kind.                        | Fresh issues. | Reissues.    | Total.       |
|------------------------------|---------------|--------------|--------------|
| United States notes .....    |               | $66,264,000 | $66,264,000 |
| Treasury notes of 1890 ..... | $50,634,813  | 8,646,770    | 59,281,583   |
| Currency certificates .....  | 6,640,000     | 64,160,000   | 70,800,000   |
| Gold certificates .....      | 4,137,500     | 66,387,500   | 70,525,000   |
| Silver certificates .....    | 16,899,119    | 92,956,881   | 109,856,000  |
| Total .....                  | 78,311,432    | 298,415,151  | 376,726,583  |

Reference has already been made to the changes which ordinarily take place, approximately between the first half and the second of each fiscal year, in the amount of money in circulation, and also, incidentally, to the changes in the denominations. While the issues and re-demptions do not bear directly upon the result, the cash in the Treasury standing between them and the net circulation, they yet follow the general course of the latter, and, as the accounts are now kept, afford the only means there is of approximating the facts.

For the purpose of illustrating these changes in denominations, the issues and redemptions of all the different kinds of paper currency, for the first and the last six months of the fiscal year, are given below:

| Denomination.               | First six months. |              | Last six months. |              |
|-----------------------------|-------------------|--------------|------------------|--------------|

A summary statement of the changes in the outstanding denominations of $20 and under, and of $50 and over, will bring out the main facts still more clearly, thus:

| Denomination.                  | First six months. |             | Last six months. |           |

It appears from the foregoing that the increase of the smaller denominations in the first six months of the fiscal year, and that of the larger in the last six, were both effected substantially by the use of new material, there being but slight net changes in the aggregates of the several denominations previously outstanding. In both periods the result was the outcome of the efforts of the Treasury to supply the demands of the public.

Since the money of the country, with the exception of the gold mined or imported by private enterprise, is now all issued by the Treasury, and since the Government in various ways derives a profit from the monopoly, it would seem to be the proper policy to yield to the reasonable preference of the public for the different denominations as much as can be done consistently with law and the interests of the Treasury. Such a policy would contemplate provisions for the periodic changes which seem to be natural, both in the amount and the denominations.

The heavy redemptions have severely taxed the resources of this office, requiring a good deal of work overtime. Even with the best efforts that could be put forth occasional delays have not been avoided. It is probable that an increase of the clerical force employed in this work will be required in the near future.

Tables will be found in the Appendix showing the yearly issues and redemptions of the several kinds of paper from the first. With the exception of a few years prior to 1870, when the unissued reserve was carried without record of denominations, the amounts given as outstanding are those which were actually performing the functions of money.

THE COINAGE.

A very satisfactory change has been effected in the condition of the fractional silver coinage, and another, not less so, in the distribution of the stock of pieces. The improvement in the former particular is the result of the liberal appropriations made by Congress for recoinage, while that in the latter is in no small part traceable to the same origin.

With only small amounts available for the expense of recoinage, the direct object of the appropriation had often to be sacrificed to that of supplying imperative demands for pieces of a particular denomination. The material had to be selected not with reference to its needs for rehabilitation, but with reference to the product required. Pieces so much worn as to be uncurrent could not be touched, since the loss would have been so heavy that the product would have been insufficient. Only pieces so near full weight as to bring the cost of the required product within the appropriation could be operated on. Consequently a good part of former expenditures for recoinage was devoted to working over good material, and brought about no substantial improvement in the condition of the whole stock.

The more adequate provisions made at the last two sessions of Congress have permitted attention to be devoted to the demands of the coinage itself, and by October last all the silver reported by the several offices of the Treasury to be held as uncurrent had been transferred to the mints. The amounts in the different denominations so turned over during the last fiscal year were as follows:

| Denomination.          | Amount.                |
|------------------------|------------------------|
| Standard dollars ..... | $42, 881. 00          |
| 50-cent pieces .....   | 6, 405, 802. 50        |
| 25-cent pieces .....   | 685, 836. 00           |
| 20-cent pieces .....   | 3, 659. 40             |
| 10-cent pieces .....   | 159, 311. 30           |
| 5-cent pieces .....    | 29, 294. 10            |
| 3-cent pieces .....    | 1, 428. 48             |
| Total .....     | 7, 328, 212. 78 |

The loss in melting was $180,985.91. Minor coins amounting to $80,000 were also transferred to be cleaned.

While noteworthy improvement has been effected by these operations, it must not be understood that no more uncurrent coin is left in the Treasury. Considerable sums of it are still held, being mixed through unassorted lots. The new coins, too, drive in the old to some extent.

A remarkable and satisfactory reduction has occurred in the amount of fractional silver in the Treasury, no less than $7,000,000 having been disposed of between June 30, 1891, and September 30, 1892, out of $19,600,000 held at the former date. Several causes appear to have contributed to this result, perhaps not the least effective of them being the change in the practice of the Department in the method of free distribution. So long as less than $500 could not be obtained from the Treasury by express, without cost for transportation, the applicants were limited to persons and institutions that could afford to carry considerable sums of small change. When the limit was reduced to $200, merchants and others began to take advantage of the offer, as well as bankers in the smaller places. There have been heavier expenses in the distribution than formerly, but the results in the relief to the Treasury and the increased convenience to the public will doubtless be considered an adequate return.

The improved condition of this coinage, aided by the novelty of the new designs, has doubtless tended to popularize it and contributed largely to the increase of its circulation. The recoinage proposed for the remainder of the present year will probably be attended with similar results. Especially is this expected to be true of the $2,500,000 of the Columbian half dollars to be struck. The manufacture of these out of uncurrent subsidiary silver in the Treasury can not fail to have the double effect of improving the general stock and of still further relieving the Treasury of surplus holdings. The coins themselves, being limited to the proportion of one to every thirteen of population, and partaking, as they will, of the character of medals, seem destined to little active usefulness as money. They will doubtless be sought as souvenirs, if not as rarities, and remain nominally in circulation, without displacing any considerable amount of other coin.

At present the outlook for the speedy solution of the subsidiary silver problem is very encouraging. It seems, indeed, not unlikely that with wise management the long-existing plethora of the Treasury will soon be relieved altogether.

SPURIOUS AND FRAUDULENT ISSUES.

Counterfeit silver coins and paper currency of the following amounts and denominations were rejected and canceled, during the fiscal year, at the several offices of the Treasury:

A decrease of $207 in the aggregate, as compared with the preceding year, seems to indicate a slight improvement in the condition of the currency, so far as fraudulent issues are concerned. Some new work in this line has, however, come to light.

Important legislation, at once giving greater security to the public in the handling of paper money, and defining more precisely the character and status of national-bank notes, is embodied in the act of Congress approved July 28, 1892, which reads as follows:

AN ACT to amend the national-bank act in providing for the redemption of national-bank notes stolen from or lost by banks of issue.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That the provisions of the Revised Statutes of the United States, providing for the redemption of national-bank notes, shall apply to all national-bank notes that have been or may be issued to, or received by, any national bank, notwithstanding such notes may have been lost or stolen from the bank and put in circulation without the signature or upon the forged signature of the president or vice-president and cashier.

Approved, July 28, 1892.

The immediate effect of this enactment was to provide for the redemption of incomplete notes of the following description and amounts, which had been issued by the Treasury Department to the banks whose titles they bear, but had been stolen and put into circulation before having been signed by the bank officers:

| Bank.   | Denomination. | Bank numbers. | Treasury numbers. | Amount. |
|---|---------------|---------------|-------------------|---------|
| Osage National Bank, Osage, Iowa . . . . .            | 5's           | 1751 to 2200  | 560950 to 561408  | $9,000 |
| National Bank of Pontiac, Pontiac, Ill.               | 5's           | 741 765       | 252111 252135     | 500     |
| Merchants' National Bank, Albany, N. Y. . . . .       | 10's and 20's | 759 766       | 45195 45202       | 400     |
| First National Bank, Atchison, Kans. . . . .          | 10's and 20's | 655 663       | 670929 670942     | 700     |
| National Bank of Barre, Barre, Vt. . . . .            | 10's and 20's | 911 936       | 932805 932830     | 1,300   |
| National Hide and Leather Bank, Boston, Mass. . . . . | 10's and 20's | 11919 11972   | 22900 22953       | 2,700   |
| Kinsman National Bank, Kinsman, Ohio . . . . .        | 10's and 20's | 520 529       | 577058 577067     | 500     |

This is the last of a series of steps, each leading to the same end, but each, until the last, leaving the matter in a more illogical and unsatisfactory condition than before. Following upon a loss of this kind came the demand of the bank for new notes to take the place of those stolen, which was refused. Consequently, while the thief had no difficulty in passing the notes the bank was lying out of the use of part of its circulation. The surrender of the bonds held as security for the notes was also refused. Next, when the innocent holders who had received the notes for value, on the faith of their being impressions of the genuine plates, presented them for redemption, they were not received. So far the bank was losing interest and the public were losing principal. The thief alone had made his profits. In this position the matter rested until the passage of the act of July 12, 1882, which made it a condition of the extension of national-bank charters that lawful money should be deposited within a certain time for the redemption of the notes issued to the bank prior to the extension, and that the benefit arising from the failure to present notes for redemption should inure to the United States.

At this step the bank lost principal. Then the holders of the notes asked for payment out of the money on deposit in the Treasury. The law officers decided that the Department was without authority to accede. Here the Treasury came in as an active participant, making a quartet of interested parties, of whom the public and the bank were losers, while the Treasury and the thief were gainers. The act above quoted simply turns the profits of the Treasury over to the holders of the notes, thus squaring two of the accounts, and restoring the whole matter to its original position of an affair between the bank and the thief. The banks are left in the situation in which they had been placed by previous legislation, and, so far as known to this office, take no concern in the new law. To the holders of the notes it has come as the righting of a long-standing wrong, and they have not hesitated to give expression to their feelings.

By this act, taken in connection with former ones, which provided for the redemption of incomplete national-bank notes stolen from the Treasury Department, it is virtually settled that these notes derive qualities as money directly from the Department itself, and become binding obligations of the banks of issue by simple delivery thereto. If they are lost by accident or theft the consequences are the same as in the case of any other kind of money. These several acts have at last purged the currency of what had been for so many years its most dangerous and exasperating impurity.

There remains of the appropriation of $2,500 made by the act of September 30, 1890, for the redemption of certain incomplete notes of the Third National Bank of New York, the First National Bank of Jersey City, and the National City Bank of Lynn, stolen years ago from the office of the Comptroller of the Currency, a balance of $870, the sum of $1,630 of the notes having been redeemed since the passage of the act.

It would be a convenience to this office if the balance of this appropriation could be covered into the Treasury to the credit of the appropriation created by the act of July 14, 1890, and known as "National Bank Notes: Redemption Account." This would make these notes redeemable in exactly the same manner as all other national-bank notes. Under the existing arrangement every bank note received at this office has to be scrutinized to ascertain whether it is one of the lot covered by the special appropriation, and as no such scrutiny is now required for any other purpose than the detection of the insignificant number of these particular notes believed still to be outstanding, a very considerable labor is imposed upon this office, with the promise of no practical result whatever. Under the proposed arrangement no such scrutiny would be necessary. It is doubtful whether the whole of the special appropriation will ever be required. The total amount of the notes stolen, less $1,150 recovered, was $16,100. Of this, $7,500 has been provided for by the appropriation referred to and a former one of $5,000. There is, then, an apparent uncovered balance of $8,600 outstanding, but, with very few exceptions, no trace of the notes has ever been seen, and it has always been understood that the greater part of them were destroyed. Whatever amount may ultimately come to light, Congress could not now in justice neglect to provide for them all.

In the present shape of the matter, the exhaustion of the appropriation, which, though scarcely to be expected, may not be impossible, would restore the former condition of things, with all its annoyances and inconsistencies. It would be a sensible measure, therefore, it would seem, and perhaps the simplest that could be taken, to appropriate as much, if any, as may be needed for the liquidation of the circulation accounts of the banks concerned, the money to be drawn on only in the event of a deficiency, and only in the sums actually required. This would set all uncertainties at rest, and fully and finally settle this much-vexed question of stolen national-bank notes.

TRUST FUNDS.

United States bonds of the descriptions and amounts shown in the following table were held on June 30 in trust for national banks as security for their circulating notes and for public deposits:

| Class of bonds.                                    | Rate of interest. | To secure circulation. | To secure public moneys. | Total.       |

During the year $48,575,750 of bonds were deposited and $27,894,600 withdrawn as security for circulation, making an increase of $20,681,150. The deposits on account of public funds amounted to $3,418,000, and the withdrawals to $13,915,500, diminishing the holdings by $10,497,500. One hundred and seventy-seven new banks, organized during the year, deposited bonds as security for circulation.

The following-described bonds were held at the end of the fiscal year for the Pacific railroad sinking funds:

| Kind of bonds.  | Rate per cent. | Union Pacific sinking fund. | Central Pacific sinking fund. | Total.      |

First-mortgage bonds of the Pacific railroads amounting to $1,212,000 were added to the sinking fund of the Union Pacific and $452,000 of like bonds to that of the Central Pacific.

United States Pacific railroad bonds of the amount of $275,000 held for the Union Pacific were exchanged for a like amount of the first-mortgage bonds of the different roads, at a profit of $20,264.13 to the fund. A like exchange of $220,000 was made for the Central Pacific at a profit of $14,039.12. These profits were invested in first-mortgage bonds. A total addition of $1,664,000 was made to the par value of the securities composing these funds.

No change occurred during the year in the bonds and stocks held for the Secretary of the Interior as trustee of various Indian tribes. The following is a list of them:

| Class of bonds.                                       | Registered.  | Coupon.   | Total.       |

United States bonds, as follows, are held under various provisions of law for the institutions named:

| Institution.                               | Rate of Interest. | Amount.   |
|--|-------------------|-----------|
| American Printing House for the Blind..... | 4                 | $250,000 |
| Manhattan Savings Institution.....         | 4                 | 75,000    |
| North American Commercial Company.....     | 2                 | 50,000    |
| Total.....                                 |                   | 375,000   |

The $200,000 of 4½ per cent bonds formerly held for the Pennsylvania Company, as security under a contract, were surrendered by direction of the Secretary of the Treasury, the conditions of the contract having been fulfilled, and at the request of the owner were presented for redemption.

The bonds and other securities comprised in the following list belong to the United States, and are held for the Secretary of the Treasury:

| Kind.  | Amount.   |
|--|-----------|
| Arkansas State bonds.....                                    | $625,000 |

A special deposit of $70,000 United States 4 per cent bonds is held in the name of the Comptroller of the Currency for the benefit of the creditors of the Fidelity National Bank of Cincinnati.

REDEMPTION OF NATIONAL-BANK NOTES.

In proportion to the volume of national-bank notes in circulation the redemptions continue heavy. The causes of this are doubtless to be found in the condition of the money supply of the country, and are probably the same as those which appear to have stimulated the return of the Government issues.

A decrease of $13,254,883 has already been noticed in connection with the public debt in the fund for the retirement of national-bank circulation. The balance of this fund at the close of the fiscal year was $26,763,509.25. With no immediate prospect of any considerable fresh deposits, it is to be expected that the fund will continue to run down. Some additions will be made from time to time under the provisions of law requiring deposits after the expiration of charters, but they will not be large.

By arrangement with the Comptroller of the Currency a change has been made in the method of treating fragments redeemable under the regulations for less than the full face value of the note.

The system of part valuation of fragments has never worked well in its application to the issues of banks. When the redemption agency was first established, many fragments valued in proportion to their size came in. For a while it was the practice to redeem them at the valuation placed upon them by the Comptroller, and to hold them until they could be matched to make up full denominations. After some five years' trial a considerable amount of them had accumulated, forming part of the Treasurer's assets, but unavailable for use, the Comptroller refusing to accept them singly. It was then decided that the Treasurer was not required to bear the risk attending this way of handling them, so they were sent out to the banks and charged to the redemption account, with instructions to hold them until they could be matched and sent to the Comptroller. Thereafter when fragments came in for redemption they were returned to the owner, with the suggestion to apply to the bank of issue. Some banks would accept them, while others would not. In the one case the bank had to lie out of the use of the money, and in the other the owner received nothing. No authority was exercised by the Department in such cases. Frequently banks would redeem under a misapprehension of the regulations. A good deal of correspondence and some dissatisfaction attended the workings of the plan.

Recent legislation having clearly defined the responsibility of the banks for the full redemption of the circulating notes issued to them, and having also established the principle that the profits arising from loss or destruction shall accrue to the United States, the Department doubtless now has full authority to make and enforce proper regulations for the redemption of fragments. The practice with regard to these has therefore been changed, so that parts of notes valued under the regulations at half the original face are now received by the Treasurer directly from the owner and delivered to the Comptroller for credit of the circulation account of the bank of issue. In cases where the redemption is through the 5 per cent fund, the bank will be temporarily deprived of the use of an equal amount of its circulation, but as a large proportion of the banks have surrendered their circulation, or part of it, by the deposit of lawful money, thus retaining no interest whatever in its redemption, less difficulty will be encountered than formerly in disposing of fragmentary notes.

SAFES AND VAULTS.

Attention is respectfully called to the labors of the Commission appointed under the act of Congress approved September 30, 1890, "for the purpose of reporting the best method of safe and vault construction, with a view to renewing or improving the vault facilities of the Treasury Department." By courtesy of the Secretary and the Commission, their report, rendered last summer, was forwarded through this office, where it has not failed to arouse the liveliest interest and to receive the most careful consideration.

The report is so ably prepared, so exhaustive in the treatment of its subject, and so minute and complete in its exposition of the existing state of the manufacture to which it relates, that any attempt to give an abstract of its contents is rendered impossible, if indeed such a notice of it would be proper in this place under any circumstances. The only way in which it ought to be given publicity is by printing it entire, and the hope is entertained that Congress will give it such circulation as it deserves, and as its value will surely gain for it, in the form of an executive document. It is a most important contribution to the literature of the subject, not only summarizing in brief space the present development of the art, but also throwing out suggestions that must prove to be a powerful stimulus to future invention.

The Commission have fully indorsed the representations heretofore made of the urgency of the needs of this office and the subtreasuries. They have also approved, in substance, the recommendations offered with reference to the extent of the reconstruction to be undertaken, and found no fault with the Department's estimates of the probable cost. Such high sanction should have weight commensurate with its authority.

Not the least important point brought out is that the development of improvements in vault construction is so rapid, that what is now the best may in a few years be out of date. The necessity, even, of reconstruction at intervals of ten years or more, under the best of conditions and with the wisest foresight, is contemplated. It is apparent, therefore, that if the full measure of the advantage to be gained from the labors of the Commission is to be realized, prompt steps must be taken to carry their suggestions into effect. If delays are allowed to occur, the work of the Commission will produce no practical result, and the movement which had its initiative in their appointment will have to be abandoned for a new beginning.

PAPER CURRENCY ACCOUNTS.

The present methods of keeping account of the issue and redemption of paper money are imperfect and unsatisfactory. They do not afford the certainty of correctness desirable in a business of the magnitude to which this has grown. There being no record of the redemptions beyond a simple entry of date, denomination, and amount, the safeguards against error are insufficient. The sole reliance for accuracy is in the examination which the notes receive in passing through the Department. A mistake of description in the original schedule, if not discovered before the destruction of the notes, would probably be perpetuated. Worse than this, duplicate numbers, or numbers never regularly issued, would be passed without suspicion. In either case, the fact of an error having occurred might not be brought to light for years, and then only by the condition of the account. If, for example, in the course of the liquidation of a particular issue an overdraft should appear, the fact of some irregularity would be patent, but the correction, or even the location, of the irregularity itself might be impossible.

While some improvement might perhaps be made in the details of the present method, it is doubtful if any system short of a complete numerical registry of every note, with the dates of issue and redemption, would be entirely satisfactory. Such records would not only be a valuable check against the occurrence of errors, but would also bear upon their face a certain evidence of their own integrity, and afford the means of tracing and correcting any mistake that might creep in.

In concluding this report I desire to renew my commendation of the faithfulness and efficiency with which those officially associated with me have performed their reponsible duties.

I have the honor to be, very respectfully, your obedient servant,

E. H. NEBEKER,

Treasurer of the United States.

HON. CHARLES FOSTER,
Secretary of the Treasury.

REPORT OF THE DIRECTOR OF THE MINT.

TREASURY DEPARTMENT,
BUREAU OF THE MINT,
Washington, D. C., November 1, 1892.

SIR: As required by section 345 of the Revised Statutes, I have the honor to hand you herewith a report of the operations of the mints and assay offices of the United States for the fiscal year ended June 30, 1892, the present being the twentieth annual report of the Director of the Mint and the fourth of the same series signed by me.

DEPOSITS AND PURCHASES OF GOLD AND SILVER.

Gold.—The gold deposits at the mints and assay offices of the United States during the fiscal year ended June 30, 1892, including gold contained in silver deposits and purchases, aggregated 3,573,137.461 standard ounces, of the value of $66,476,975.98, against $59,625,678.08 in the preceding fiscal year, an increase of $6,851,297.90.

Of the gold deposited, 3,285,815.979 standard ounces, of the value of $61,131,460.04, were original deposits, and 287,321.482 standard ounces, of the value of $5,345,515.94, were redeposits.

Of the redeposits $1,085,820.30 consisted of fine bars bearing the stamp of the United States assay office at New York, being large gold bars redeposited for small, and $4,259,465.39 were unparted bars, representing the deposits at the minor assay offices shipped to the mint at Philadelphia for refining and coinage.

Of the gold bullion received at Government institutions during the fiscal year, $31,961,546.11 was the product of our own mines, against $31,555,116.85 of the same class of bullion deposited in the preceding fiscal year, an increase of $406,429.26.

Of the domestic gold bullion received at Government institutions during the year, $17,944,737.53 were fine bars bearing the stamp of private refineries and $14,016,808.58 were unrefined domestic bullion.

The distribution among producing States and Territories of the unrefined gold deposited at Government institutions during the year will be found in a table in the Appendix to this report.

Foreign gold bullion of the value of $10,935,154.69 and foreign gold coin of the value of $14,040,187.70, a total amount of foreign gold of $24,975,342.39 were deposited and melted at the mints and assay offices during the last fiscal year.

Light-weight domestic gold coins were melted for recoinage, of the value of $557,967.86, and old material, consisting of jewelry, plate, etc., containing gold of the value of $3,636,603.68.

Silver.—The deposits and the purchases of silver, including silver contained in gold deposits, aggregated during the last fiscal year 72,121,268.03 standard ounces, of the coining value (\$1.16 $\frac{1}{4}$  per standard ounce, or \$1.2929 per fine ounce) of \$83,922,930.01, against \$83,630,154 in the preceding year, an increase of \$292,775.70.

Of the silver received at Government institutions during the year 640,461.19 standard ounces, of the coining value of $745,263.92, were re-deposits, so that the original deposits of silver aggregated 71,480,806.84 standard ounces, of the coining value of $83,177,666.09.

Of the silver received, 59,513,166.79 standard ounces, of the coining value of $69,251,684.98, consisted of fine bars bearing the stamp of private refineries in the United States. All such bars are classified at Government institutions as of domestic production. As a matter of fact, such bars contain foreign as well as domestic silver, since nearly all the silver imported into the United States in the form of base bars or contained in miscellaneous ores is reduced at private works in conjunction with domestic ores and no distinction is made in the resulting product.

Of the domestic silver bullion deposited at the mints during the year, 3,617,442.07 standard ounces, of the coining value of $4,209,387.10, were unrefined silver from the mines of the United States.

The distribution of the unrefined silver deposited at Government institutions among producing States and Territories is exhibited in a table in the appendix to this report.

Foreign silver bullion, distinctively known as such, containing 1,729,575.36 standard ounces, of the coining value of $2,012,596.78, and foreign silver coin, containing 388,502.53 standard ounces, of the coining value of $452,075.67, a total amount of foreign silver of the coining value of $2,464,672.45, was received at the mints and melted during the year.

Light-weight silver coins of the United States, principally subsidiary pieces transferred from the Treasury to the mints for recoinage, were melted during the year, containing 5,593,907.71 standard ounces of silver, of the coining value of $6,509,274.43.

In addition, trade dollars were sold to the Government as bullion and melted, containing 1,921.53 standard ounces of silver, of the coining value of $2,235.96.

Old silver, consisting of jewelry, plate, etc., was melted during the year, containing 636,290.85 standard ounces, of the coining value of $740,411.17.

The coining value of the gold and silver (not including redeposits) received at the mints and assay offices of the United States each fiscal year since 1880 is exhibited in the following table:

VALUE OF THE GOLD AND SILVER (NOT INCLUDING REDEPOSITS) RECEIVED AT THE MINTS AND ASSAY OFFICES, 1880-1892.

The usual tables, exhibiting, by weight and value, the deposits and purchases of gold and silver at each of the mints and assay offices, will be found in the Appendix.

COINAGE.

The coinage executed at the four coinage mints of the United States located at Philadelphia, San Francisco, Carson City, and New Orleans aggregated during the last fiscal year 113,556,124 pieces, of the nominal value of $51,792,976.52.

The gold coinage consisted of 2,954,185 pieces, of the value of $35,506,987.50, of which $21,725,600 were in double eagles, $8,921,500 in eagles, $4,840,955 in half eagles, and $18,902.50 in quarter eagles.

The silver coinage consisted of 8,329,467 silver dollars and $971,010 in half dollars, $3,023,331 in quarter dollars, and $2,665,464.10 in dimes.

The minor coinage executed at the mint at Philadelphia aggregated 61,582,474 pieces, of the nominal value of $1,296,710.42, of which 17,022,142 pieces, of the nominal value of $851,107.10, consisted of nickel five-cent pieces, and 44,560,332 pieces, of the nominal value of $445,603.32, of one-cent bronze pieces.

COINAGE, FISCAL YEAR 1892.

PURCHASES OF SILVER.

The purchases of silver by the Government during the fiscal year ended June 30, 1892, were all made under the mandatory provisions of the act of July 14, 1890, requiring the purchase of 4,500,000 ounces in each month.

The amount purchased by the Treasury Department on telegraphic offers in lots of over 10,000 ounces was 49,112,327.39 fine ounces, costing $46,254,520.73.

The purchases of silver at the coinage mints in lots of less than 10,000 ounces aggregated 4,942,414.04 fine ounces, costing $4,662,203.89. Silver contained in gold deposits and in bar charges, including fractional remnants of trade-dollar bullion of less value than one dollar, was purchased, aggregating 200,995.71 fine ounces, costing $189,883.36.

The total amount purchased during the last fiscal year under the provisions of the act of July 14, 1890, as above enumerated, aggregated 54,355,748.10 fine ounces, at a cost of $51,106,608.01.

The average cost of the silver purchased during the year was $0.94 per fine ounce. The following table exhibits the quantity and cost of silver purchased under the act of July 14, 1890, during the fiscal year at each of the coinage mints:

Shortly after April 1, 1873, when the act of February 12, 1873, revising the coinage laws of the United States, went into effect, the Government commenced the purchase of silver in order to supply a fund, as required by that act, from which depositors of silver for fine bars and for trade dollars authorized to be coined therein could be promptly paid, as well as to furnish silver for such subsidiary coin as might be required by the Government. Nearly all the silver acquired under this act was purchased for delivery at the mints at San Francisco and Carson City, for the reason that the States and Territories contiguous to these mints were at that time the principal sources of the production of silver. The act of January 14, 1875, known as the specie resumption act, directed the purchase and coinage into subsidiary silver coins of a sufficient amount to replace the fractional currency in circulation. For this purpose there was purchased in the next three years no less than 31,603,905.87 ounces of silver. By reason of the facilities with which shipments of silver could be made from San Francisco to oriental countries the price of silver on the Pacific coast was generally higher than the price in London.

Upon the passage of the act of February 28, 1878, remonetizing silver dollar and directing the purchase and coinage into silver dollars of not less than $2,000,000 worth of silver monthly, sellers of silver on the Pacific coast demanded a price of from 1 to 2 cents an ounce more than silver could be bought in the London market and delivered at the mints of the United States.

For this reason recourse was had by the Secretary of the Treasury to the London market, and some 5,000,000 ounces of silver were purchased there for delivery at the Philadelphia mint. After this it was not necessary to resort to the London market, as all the silver required was readily procured either in San Francisco or in New York at the market price.

Prior to 1879 the greater part of the silver required by the Government was purchased in the markets of the Pacific coast, but this was changed by the large falling off in the silver product of Nevada and the large increase in the silver product of States and Territories penetrated by railroads from the East, and the consequent facilities with which ores could be shipped to the eastern smelting and refining works for reduction. Moreover, in recent years the demand for silver upon the part of China and other oriental countries has fallen off very largely, and in consequence the silver product of the country seeks the most available outlet, which is through the New York market, where it is either sold to the Government or shipped to London.

Of the silver purchased under the act of July 14, 1890, from August 13, 1890, to November 1, 1892, 103,047,180 fine ounces out of a total amount purchased of 120,479,981 were delivered at eastern mints, the principal portion at the Philadelphia mint.

The aggregate amount of silver bullion purchased under the act of July 14, 1890, from August 13, 1890, to November 1, 1892, was 120,479,981 fine ounces, costing $116,783,590, an average cost of $0.96 per fine ounce.

In addition to the silver dollars coined under the act of July 14, 1890, there were coined from the balance of trade-dollar bullion on hand June 30, in accordance with the provisions of the act of March 3, 1891, 4,878,472 silver dollars.

The total coinage of silver dollars during the fiscal year and the total seigniorage on such coinage are shown in the following table:

COINAGE OF SILVER DOLLARS, FISCAL YEAR 1892.

COURSE OF SILVER.

The fluctuations in the price of silver during the last fiscal year, while not covering so wide a range as in some previous years, were considerable, with a continued downward tendency. There were occasional rallies in the price caused by temporary improvements in the rate of Indian exchanges or continental demands for silver. As soon as these demands were supplied the price immediately declined, in many cases below the point of previous advance.

At the commencement of the fiscal year July 1, 1891, silver was quoted in the London market at  $46\frac{3}{8}$  pence (0.925 fine, British standard), equivalent at the par of exchange to \$1.0165 per fine ounce. The price in New York at the same date was \$1.02 $\frac{3}{4}$ .

The opening quotations were the highest in either market during the year.

From the 1st to the 13th of July the price steadily declined until it reached  $45\frac{7}{8}$  pence, equivalent to \$1.00549 per fine ounce. From this date there was a sharp rally to  $46\frac{1}{4}$  pence, due to a demand for silver for Spain and Portugal. Large sales of silver were immediately made upon the advance by sellers to realize.

The price again declined, until on the 21st it had reached  $45\frac{5}{8}$  pence, equal to \$1 per fine ounce.

On the 22d the price suddenly arose to  $46\frac{1}{8}$ , equal to \$1.0111, and closed on the 31st of the month at 46 pence, equal to \$1.00837.

During the month of August the price declined from the opening rate,  $46\frac{1}{8}$  pence, equal to \$1.00974 per fine ounce, to  $45\frac{1}{8}$  pence, equal to \$0.98784 per fine ounce, being a decline of over 2 cents per ounce.

In September the price rallied, and closed at  $45\frac{7}{8}$  pence, equal to \$1.00563.

In October, however, the price declined to  $44\frac{1}{8}$  pence, equal to \$0.9659 per fine ounce.

After this date the price steadily declined, until on the 28th of March, 1892, it had reached 39 pence, equal to \$0.8549 per fine ounce, the lowest price on record up to that date. From this time forward the price gradually improved, closing May 31 at  $40\frac{5}{8}$ , equal to \$0.8833 per fine ounce.

The opening price for June was  $40\frac{3}{8}$  pence, equal to \$0.886, and the closing price  $40\frac{1}{8}$  pence, equal to \$0.876 per fine ounce.

The difference between the opening and closing price for the year shows a decline of $0.14 per ounce during the year.

Since July 1, 1892, the price still further declined, until on August 11 it had reached  $37\frac{1}{2}$  pence, equivalent at par of exchange to \$0.83 per fine ounce, the lowest price silver has ever reached. From this date the price has advanced slightly.

At this writing, November 1, the London price is  $39\frac{1}{4}$  pence, equal to \$0.86 per fine ounce.

The highest price of silver during the fiscal year was $1.0165 per fine ounce, at which rate the value of the silver contained in the silver dollar was $0.786; at the lowest price ($0.855), per ounce fine, it was $0.66; at the average ($0.937), $0.724.

The value of the silver contained in a silver dollar at the lowest price of silver since the close of the fiscal year was $0.642.

At the present writing, November 1, the value is $0.86.

The following table exhibits the value of the pure silver in a silver dollar, reckoned at the commercial price of silver bullion from $0.80 to $1.2929 (parity of our coining rate), per ounce fine.

The exports of silver from London to India, China, and the Straits, during the first nine months of the present calendar year, from January 1, 1892, to October 6, 1892, were £8,325,098, against £4,899,621 in the corresponding period of 1891, showing an increase of £3,425,477.

The exports of silver from London to India, China, and the Straits each year since 1881, have been as follows:

SUBSIDIARY SILVER COINAGE.

The coinage of subsidiary silver during the last fiscal year aggregated 40,889,998 pieces, of the nominal value of $6,659,811.60, consisting of $971,016.50 in half dollars, $3,023,331 in quarter dollars, and $2,665,464.10 in dimes. Of this coinage $1,058.25 were manufactured from purchased bullion and $6,658,753.35 from worn and uncurrent silver coin transferred from the Treasury for recoinage.

During the fiscal year ended June 30, 1892, worn and uncurrent silver coin of the nominal value of $7,118,602.78 was transferred from the Treasury to the mints for recoinage. Upon melting, these coins produced 5,018,693.31 ounces of fine silver, the coining value of the same in subsidiary silver coins being $6,937,886.02, showing a loss of $180,716.76, which sum was reimbursed the Treasury from the appropriation for loss on recoinage of worn and uncurrent silver coin.

The stock and cost of silver on hand July 1, 1891, available for the subsidiary silver coinage, the amount obtained, the amount used during the year, and balance on hand at the close thereof, are shown in the following table:

The nominal value of the silver coins transferred from the Treasury to the mints for recoinage from July 1, 1890, to November 1, 1892, has been $10,792,478.97 upon which the loss of metal representing the abrasion from wear, has been $326,489.25, or an average of about 3 per cent. The actual coinage of the same into new silver coins has aggregated $4,381,044.05.

The beneficial results of the liberal appropriations made by Congress for the last two years for loss on recoinage of worn and uncurrent silver coins in the Treasury is shown by the fact that the balance of such coin has been reduced from $23,002,268 on July 1, 1890, to $11,499,579 on November 1, 1892, a reduction of $11,502,689.

By the conversion of worn and uncurrent coins in the Treasury, principally half-dollars, for which there was no demand, into quarter-dollars and dimes, for which there was an urgent demand, the Treasury has been relieved of a large amount of unavailable assets and the circulating medium of the country increased to a corresponding extent.

TRADE-DOLLAR RECOINAGE.

The number of trade dollars redeemed under the act of March 3, 1887, was 7,689,036, containing 6,687,690.61 ounces of standard silver of the coining value of $7,782,040 in silver dollars, from which there were coined, up to the close of the fiscal year 1891, $2,889,011 in subsidiary silver coins, containing 2,322,042.62 standard ounces, costing $2,668,654.88.

In addition there was transferred from trade dollars remelted at the San Francisco mint to the silver bullion account 16.97 standard ounces, costing $19.51, making a total amount disposed of up to June 1, 1891, 2,322,059.59 standard ounces, costing $2,668,674.39, leaving on hand June 1, 1891, 4,365,661.12 standard ounces, costing $5,020,361.

The act of March 3, 1891, directed that, "the Secretary of the Treasury shall, as soon as practicable, coin into standard silver dollars the trade-dollar bullion and trade dollars now in the Treasury, the expense thereof to be charged to the silver-profit fund."

Of the balance of trade-dollar bullion on hand June 1, 1891, 4,364,311.87 standard ounces, costing $5,018,844.11, were consumed in the coinage of 5,078,472 silver dollars, while there were sold in sweeps, 1,318.89 standard ounces, costing $1,517.08, leaving on hand December 31, 1890, when this coinage was completed, a fractional balance of .36 of an ounce, costing $0.42, which was transferred to the account of silver bullion purchased under the act of July 14, 1890.

SEIGNIORAGE ON SILVER.

The balance of silver profits on hand at the coinage mints at the commencement of the fiscal year 1892 was $152,315.35.

The seigniorage on the coinage of silver dollars during the year aggregated $930,487.41, and on subsidiary silver coins $143.49, a total seigniorage for the year of $930,630.90.

From the gross seigniorage there was paid for the transportation of silver coin the sum of $28,694, for reimbursements of silver wastage and loss on sale of silver in sweeps sold $9,548.98, and on account of expenses incurred in the recoinage of trade-dollar bullion (as provided by the act of March 3, 1891) $108,712.42, a total expenditure of $146,955.44, leaving a net seigniorage for the year of $783,675.50.

The total amount of silver profits covered into the Treasury during the last fiscal year aggregated $865,026.60, leaving on hand in the four coinage mints at the close of the fiscal year $70,964.25.

The net profit on the coinage of silver during the fourteen years ended June 30, 1892, including the balance in the coinage mints on July 1, 1878, aggregated $72,736,065.75.

In the Appendix will be found a table showing the seigniorage on the coinage of silver dollars and subsidiary silver, separately, and at each mint, and also the disposition of the profits.

A table will also be found in the Appendix exhibiting the expenditures from silver profits on account of the distribution of silver coins.

MINOR COINAGE.

During the last fiscal year 61,582,474 minor coin pieces were struck at the mint at Philadelphia of the face value of $1,296,710.42, as follows:

MINOR COINAGE, 1892.

| Denominations.         | Pieces.      | Value.          |
|------------------------|--------------|-----------------|
| Five-cent nickel ..... | 17, 022, 142 | $851, 107. 10  |
| One-cent bronze .....  | 44, 560, 332 | 445, 603. 32    |
| Total .....            | 61, 582, 474 | 1, 296, 710. 42 |

The amount and cost of blanks purchased for minor coinage during the year was as follows:

| Blanks purchased.             | Pounds, avoirdupois. | Cost.         |
|-------------------------------|----------------------|---------------|
| Five-cent nickel blanks ..... | 168, 213             | $53, 727. 23 |
| One-cent bronze blanks .....  | 367, 754             | 73, 330. 15   |
| Total .....                   | 535, 967             | 127, 057. 38  |

The demand for minor coins during the year was large, frequently taxing the utmost capacity of the mint at Philadelphia to meet the same, but no delay occurred upon the part of the mint in supplying such coins.

Of the blanks used in the manufacture of these pieces, 1-cent bronze pieces of the nominal value of $14,290.87 and 5-cent nickel pieces of the nominal value of $83,819.85 were coined from metal resulting from the melting of uncurrent minor coins of former issues transferred from the Treasury for recoinage.

The following statement shows the balance of coinage metal resulting from uncurrent minor coins melted on hand at the mint at the commencement of the year, and the balance remaining on hand at the close thereof.

The mandatory coinage of silver dollars required by the act of 1878 rendered it difficult to continue the manufacture of ingots and blanks for the minor coinage (5-cent nickel and 1-cent bronze pieces) at the mint at Philadelphia, the only institution authorized by law to execute minor coinage. The difficulty was augmented by the largely increased demands for small coins for change purposes. It was, therefore, decided to ask by public advertisements for proposals to furnish minor coinage blanks suitable for coinage at the mint. Contracts were awarded for such blanks at various times from January, 1887, to June 30, 1892.

The deliveries of bronze blanks, the cost, the coinage value, and the seigniorage realized, under the several rates per pound, will be found in the table hereto appended:

* There is no record of the melting of any old copper half cents, but it is believed that few, if any, are in circulation.

The foregoing exhibits show a general reduction in cost of minor coin blanks and a corresponding gain in profits to the Treasury during the last three years. Moreover, all such blanks are now delivered ready for the coining presses, which effects a saving of labor, time, and machinery probably equal to 10 per cent of the whole cost. By the last contract, awarded the Scovill Manufacturing Company, of Waterbury, Conn., the Government is getting its minor coinage metal at less cost than ever before in its history.

PERCENTAGES OF PROFITS AT THE DIFFERENT RATES.

| At .26 per pound.....     | 1.198    | At .421 per pound.....    | 4.115    |
| At .1994 per pound.....   | 1.258    | At .40 per pound.....     | 4.136    |
|                           |          | At .3194 per pound.....   | 4.216    |

An avoirdupois pound of bronze will coin $1.46. An avoirdupois pound of nickel will coin $4.53.

APPROPRIATIONS AND EXPENDITURES.

The amounts specifically appropriated for the support of the mints and assay offices for the fiscal year 1892 aggregated $1,079,850, against $1,030,351.50 appropriated for the preceding fiscal year.

From the specific appropriation there was expended during the last fiscal year an aggregate of $1,064,124.24, leaving in the Treasury unexpended the sum of $15,725.76.

In addition there was expended at the coinage mints from the general appropriation contained in the act of July 14, 1890, the sum of $41,487.55.

There was also expended at the Treasury Department, from the latter appropriation, the sum of $927 for cablegrams from London, giving the daily quotation of silver.

The total expenditures for the mint service for the last fiscal year aggregated $1,106,538.79, against $1,335,910 expended in the prior fiscal year, showing a reduction of expenses during the last fiscal year of $229,371.21.

The appropriations and expenditures for the various mints and assay offices (exclusive of the amount paid by the Treasury Department for cablegrams) are exhibited in the following table:

On October 1, 1892, I had the honor to submit for your consideration estimates of appropriations required for the support of the mint service for the fiscal year to end June 30, 1894.

These estimates, including the usual appropriation for "freight on bullion and coin," aggregated $1,126,760, against appropriations for the same purposes for the current fiscal year aggregating $1,079,854.

The aggregate of the estimates submitted for the fiscal year 1894 is the exact sum of the appropriations for the fiscal year 1892.

It will be necessary to ask for deficiency appropriations to complete the service of the fiscal year 1893, owing to the fact that the appropriations made by Congress were reduced from the carefully prepared estimates submitted.

EARNINGS AND EXPENSES OF THE REFINERIES OF THE COINAGE
MINTS AND ASSAY OFFICE AT NEW YORK.

The sums collected from depositors during the fiscal year 1892, at the coinage mints and assay office at New York, as charges for parting and refining bullion, aggregated $169,497.09.

The law requires that the charges collected of depositors shall be used to defray the expenses of the operations of the refinery.

The total amount expended for parting and refining bullion was $207,253.43.

There was received, however, and covered into the Treasury during the year from the sale of by-products (blue vitriol and spent acid) the sum of $11,449.23, a legitimate gain to the refinery.

Deducting from the gross expenditures the amount realized by the sale of these by-products, the net expenditures for parting and refining bullion were $195,804.20.

The total receipts for parting and refining bullion since July 1, 1876, the date at which the refineries were made self-supporting, have exceeded the gross expenditures for the same period by the sum of $85,615.07, which amount stands to the credit of the appropriation for parting and refining bullion on July 1, 1892.

The receipts and expenses of the refineries for the fiscal year 1892 are exhibited in the following table:

EARNINGS AND EXPENSES OF THE MINTS AND ASSAY OFFICES.

The total earnings of the mints and assay offices of the United States during the fiscal year ended June 30, 1892, aggregated $2,294,288.20.

This is a very large reduction from the earnings of recent years, occasioned by the fact that the seigniorage on the coinage of silver dollars, which has aggregated six or seven million dollars annually, fell off during the last fiscal year to $930,487.41, the coinage of the silver dollars being no longer mandatory. Only such dollars were coined as were deemed necessary in the business of the Government.

The total expenditures and losses of all kinds, including the entire expenses for the support of the mints and assay offices and acid refineries, the wastage of the operative departments, and loss on sale of sweeps, the expenses of distributing silver dollars, subsidiary silver, and minor coins, aggregated $1,500,494.03, leaving a net profit of earnings over expenditures for the last fiscal year of $793,794.17.

In the Appendix will be found the usual table exhibiting in detail the earnings and expenditures under each classification and at each institution of the mint service.

CLASSIFIED STATEMENT OF EXPENDITURES.

The following table exhibits the expenditures for the different classes of supplies (as well as for salaries and wages) at the institutions comprising the mint service during the fiscal year 1892, the expenses of the refinery being separated from the ordinary expenses of the Mint:

MOVEMENT OF GOLD FROM THE UNITED STATES.

In the report of this Bureau for the fiscal year 1889, attention was directed to the heavy export of gold from the United States commencing in May, 1888, and continuing, with some interruption, to the end of July, 1889, aggregating $61,435,989.

In the summer of 1890 another movement of gold from this country commenced, which, while by no means as serious in amount as its predecessor, was somewhat remarkable as a monetary transaction, considering the low rate of sterling exchange which obtained during most of the period of shipments. This movement aggregated in a period of less than two months the sum of $15,672,982.

In February, 1891, still another movement of gold to Europe commenced, which did not cease until the close of July, causing by far the most serious loss of gold which this country has sustained for many years. The total amount exported from the port of New York during these six months was $70,223,494.

In the reports of this Bureau for the fiscal years 1890 and 1891, detailed statements of the shipments, the names of the shipper, the destination of the specie, and prevailing rates of sterling exchange were presented, together with the causes which were believed to have occasioned these large movements.

In the following tables, which have been carefully prepared by the Superintendent of the United States Assay Office at New York, the exports of gold from that port to Europe during the fiscal year ended June 30, 1892, are presented in detail; also the exports during the four months from July 1 to October 31, 1892, as well as the return movement.

SUPPLEMENTARY STATEMENT OF IMPORTS OF GOLD COIN AND BULLION AT NEW YORK FROM EUROPE AND AMERICAN PORTS SOUTH OF THE UNITED STATES FROM JULY 1 TO OCTOBER 31, 1892.

| Total.....                     |              |  | 1,737,125.00   |

An examination of the above tables shows that the total export of gold from the port of New York during the fiscal year ended June 30, 1892, was $47,165,025, and during the four months ended October 31, 1892, $18,840,011, while the amount imported at the port of New York during the last fiscal year was $36,827,984, and during the four months ended October 31, 1892, $1,737,125.

In another portion of this report the total imports and exports of the precious metals from all the ports of this country are given, from which it will appear that the total gold exports during the fiscal year ended June 30, 1892, aggregated $50,305,533, and the total gold import $50,162,879, a net loss by excess of exports of gold over imports during the last fiscal year of only $142,654 against a loss for the preceding fiscal year of $67,946,768.

From an examination of the above tables, exhibiting the shipments of gold from the port of New York, it will be seen that the disturbance to the natural balance of trade continued during the last fiscal year.

It was thought that the effects of the financial difficulties in Europe caused by the heavy fall of South American securities several years ago had almost passed away, but their trail is still well marked and commented on freely abroad.

Besides this, the Austrian Government has been making strenuous exertions during the last year to obtain sufficient gold for a strong basis in establishing a gold standard for its currency.

Quite a number of the shipments for continental ports were reported as destined for Austria.

One great cause of continued large shipments of gold is, as stated by all exchanges and financial writers, the distrust of United States securities raised in the minds of European investors by the large and increasing preponderance of silver over gold in the reserve held for the redemption of our paper currency.

IMPORTS AND EXPORTS OF THE PRECIOUS METALS.

Gold.—The value of the foreign gold bullion imported into the United States during the fiscal year 1892 was $11,358,518, of which $4,820,117 came from France, $3,251,707 from England, $1,336,593 from Mexico, and the remainder principally from countries of Central and South America.

Gold was contained in imported silver-lead ores of the value of $214,121.

Foreign gold ores of the invoiced value of $249,304 were imported into the United States for reduction, all except a small amount coming from Mexico.

Foreign gold coins were imported of the value of $22,908,493, of which $8,222,724 came from Australia, $5,538,725 from France, $4,266,314 from England, $2,392,310 from Germany, $1,405,364 from Cuba, $542,499 from Mexico, and the remainder from various countries.

United States gold coins were returned to the United States of the value of $15,432,443, of which $5,486,975 came from France, $5,272,315 from England, $1,529,590 from the British possessions in North America, $1,105,015 from Germany, and the remainder from various countries, principally of Central and South America.

The total imports of gold into the United States during the fiscal year may be summed up as follows:

GOLD IMPORTS, 1892.

| Items.                                | Amount.      |
|---------------------------------------|--------------|

| Total imports.....                    | 50,162,879   |

The exports of domestic gold bullion aggregated $479,388, and of domestic gold coin, $42,841,963.

Of the above amounts $19,283,150 were invoiced to Germany, $13,061,100 to France, $6,328,040 to England, $1,727,492 to Venezuela, $1,258,720 to British possessions in North America, and the remainder to various countries.

In addition, foreign gold bullion was reexported of the value of $22,637 and foreign gold coin of the value of $6,851,339, of which $6,636,048 went to Cuba and the remainder principally to England.

Domestic gold ores were exported of the invoiced value of $39,325, and foreign ores were reexported of the value of $13,004, while domestic gold was contained in copper matte shipped abroad of the value of $57,877.

The movement of gold from the United States during the last fiscal year may be summed up as follows:

GOLD EXPORTS, 1892.

| Items.                              | Amount.    |
|-------------------------------------|------------|
| United States bars.....             | $8,260    |
| Other domestic bullion.....         | 471,128    |
| Domestic coin.....                  | 42,841,963 |
| Gold contained in copper matte..... | 57,877     |
| Domestic ores.....                  | 39,325     |
| Total domestic.....                 | 43,418,553 |
| Foreign bullion reexported.....     | $22,637   |
| Foreign coin reexported.....        | 6,851,339  |
| Foreign ores reexported.....        | 13,004     |
| Total foreign.....                  | 6,886,980  |
| Total gold exports.....             | 50,305,533 |

From the above tables it will be seen that the excess of the export of gold over imports during the last fiscal year amounted to only $142,654, against a loss for the preceding fiscal year of $67,946,768.

Silver.—The commercial value of foreign silver bullion imported into the United States during the last fiscal year, as registered at the custom-houses, was $5,115,808, of which $4,431,920 consisted of commercial bars from Mexico, $451,676 from Colombia, and the remainder in de-sultory amounts from various countries of this continent.

In addition to the importations of silver bars, silver ores were imported of the invoiced value of $9,656,761.

As usual, the bulk of these ores—$9,508,321—came from Mexico, and the remainder from British North America.

These ores were principally silver-lead ores, containing, in addition to the silver contents, large quantities of metallic lead and some gold and copper.

The following interesting table, kindly compiled by the Chief of the Bureau of Statistics from special statements furnished by the collectors of customs, exhibits approximately the quantity and value of the different metals contained in these ores:

NOTE.—The data in this table have been obtained from special reports by the collectors of customs, and, although necessarily incomplete in some details, are believed to be valuable. This table will not, in the total value of the ore, compare with the stated publications, which latter represent only the value of the free silver ore and exclude the value of the dutiable contents, such as lead and copper.

From the above table it will be seen that the approximate value of the silver contained in these ores was $8,809,648, reckoned presumably at its commercial price, and of the gold $214,121.

These ores contained in addition 50,382,297 pounds of metallic lead valued at $1,340,362, and 465,853 pounds of copper, of the invoice value of $22,804.

Foreign silver coins were imported into the United States of the value of $14,679,709, of which $12,697,618 consisted of Mexican dollars and the remainder were principally South American coins.

Of our own silver coins, principally subsidiary pieces, $159,569 were returned during the year.

IMPORTS OF SILVER, 1892.

| Items.  | Amount.       |
|---|---------------|
| Foreign bullion (commercial value) .....        | $5, 115, 808 |
| Silver in foreign ores (commercial value) ..... | 8, 809, 648   |

| Total silver imports .....                      | 28, 764, 734  |

The exports of domestic silver bars aggregated $16,638,385, reckoned presumably at their commercial value, the bulk of which, $13,692,361 went to England, $809,964 to France, and $617,369 to Japan.

In addition to the exports of domestic silver bullion, copper matte was exported from the port of Baltimore to England for reduction during the year containing silver of the commercial value of $657,667.

The following letter from the collector of the port of Baltimore, enclosing a tabulated statement of copper matte exported during the year, is presented.

OFFICE OF THE COLLECTOR OF CUSTOMS,
Port of Baltimore, September 6, 1892.

SIR: In compliance with your letter of the 2d instant I have the pleasure to transmit herein a statement showing the amount of gold and silver contained in copper matte exported from the port of Baltimore during the fiscal year ending June 30, 1892.

Very respectfully,

W. M. MARINE,
Collector.

Hon. E. O. LEECH,
Director of the Mint, Washington, D. C.

Foreign silver ores were reexported of the value of $332,336, and foreign silver bullion of the value of $11,689.

Our own subsidiary silver coin was exported of the value of $126,682, principally to countries of this continent.

Foreign silver coins, principally Mexican and South American coins, were reexported to the value of $16,033,803, of which $6,648,031 went to Hong-Kong, $5,863,476 were consigned to England, $1,687,000 to Japan, and the remainder to various countries.

The exports of silver during the last fiscal year are exhibited in the following table:

Exports of silver, 1892.

| Items.                                     | Amount.      |

| Total silver exports .....                 | 33,800,562   |

From the above tables it will be seen that there was a net loss of silver to the United States by export during the last fiscal year aggregating $5,035,828, against a net gain during the previous year of $2,745,365, showing a net change of $7,781,193.

STOCK OF MONEY IN THE UNITED STATES.

In continuation of previous tabulations, commenced in 1873 by the Bureau of the Mint, the following table is presented as exhibiting the stock of coin in the United States July 1, 1892:

OFFICIAL TABLE OF STOCK OF COIN IN THE UNITED STATES JULY 1, 1892.

It may be proper to repeat here that the basis of the annual tabulations of the stock of gold coin in the United States was the actual amount of gold coin in the Treasury and in national banks on June 30, 1872, with an addition of $20,000,000 as an estimate of the minimum amount of gold coin in circulation in the States of the Pacific Slope.

No allowance was made in the initial estimate for any stock of gold outside of the Treasury and national banks or for any gold in circulation in the States east of the Rocky Mountains.

Since that date the official estimates presented from year to year have been compiled by adding to the actual visible stock June 30, 1872, the coinage of the mints (less recoinage of our own coins) and the gain (or loss) by import and export of our own coin as registered at the custom houses, with an annual allowance for melting of United States coin for use in the industrial arts based upon three censuses taken by the Bureau of the Mint of the jewelry trade.

In the case of silver the stock of silver dollars is estimated to be the coinage since March 1, 1878, and the stock of subsidiary silver coin the coinage since 1873, with an estimate of the amount in the country at that date of $5,000,000, and the annual gain or loss by coinage and import and an annual allowance for melting in the industrial arts, as in the case of gold.

From the table above presented it will be seen that the estimated stock of our own coins in the country on July 1, 1892, aggregated: Gold, $589,179,550; silver, $491,510,213, of which $413,988,735 were silver dollars and $77,521,478 subsidiary silver coins; making a total coin stock of $1,080,689,763.

In addition to the stock of gold and silver coins, gold and silver bullion belonging to the Government was stored in the mints and assay offices at the same date, valued as follows:

BULLION IN MINTS AND ASSAY OFFICES JULY 1, 1892.

| Metals.            | Value.       |
|--------------------|--------------|
| Gold.....          | $75,095,785 |
| Silver (cost)..... | 77,068,783   |
| Total.....         | 152,164,568  |

The stock of silver bullion outside of Government vaults is not a matter of record, except the bars on deposit with the Mercantile Safe Deposit Company in New York City, against which certificates are issued which, according to the report of that company to the New York Stock Exchange, amounted at the close of business on June 30, 1892, to 1,954,420 ounces of silver, worth, at the market price, $1,734,548.

Adding the value of the silver bullion in the vaults of the Mercantile Safe Deposit Company, and the value of the gold and silver bullion in the mints to the stock of coin in the United States, the total metallic stock of the United States July 1, 1892, was as follows:

METALLIC STOCK JULY 1, 1892.

| Coin and bullion.  | Value.        |
|--|---------------|
| Gold.....  | $664,275,335 |
| Silver (bullion in mints and Mercantile Safe Deposit Company)... | 570,313,544   |
| Total.....   | 1,234,588,879 |

The metallic stock on July 1, 1891, the commencement of the fiscal year, was gold, $646,582,852, silver, $522,277,740, total, $1,168,860,592.

From the above it will be seen that notwithstanding the large movement of gold from the United States during the year, there was a net increase in the gold stock of this country during the last fiscal year aggregating $17,692,483, against a loss during the previous fiscal year of $48,980,177, while the stock of silver increased $48,035,804.

The ownership of the stock of United States coin, and of the gold and silver bullion in the country on July 1, 1892, is exhibited in the following table:

The number of silver dollars in actual circulation, that is, outside of the Treasury, on July 1, 1892, was 56,817,462, against 58,826,179 at the commencement of the fiscal year, showing that the number of silver dollars in bodily circulation fell off during the last fiscal year $2,008,717, notwithstanding the fact that the Government stands ready to ship such coins, free of expense, to any person in the United States depositing lawful money for the same.

The number of silver dollars owned by the Treasury on July 1, 1892, was 30,308,448, against an ownership of 39,597,123 at the commencement of the year, showing that the number of these dollars owned by the Government was reduced $9,288,675 during the year.

The total metallic and paper money in the United States July 1, 1892, exclusive of the holdings of the United States Treasury and the silver bullion in the vaults of the Mercantile Safe Deposit Company, aggregated $1,601,347,187, against $1,497,440,707 at the commencement of the year, showing that the actual increase in the circulating medium of the country during the last fiscal year reached the enormous sum of $103,906,480.

In the above table, in the case of the United States the gold stock includes the gold certificates outstanding and the silver stock includes the silver certificates and Treasury notes, and these amounts have been deducted from the amount of paper money outstanding.

From the legal tender notes outstanding the sum of $100,000,000 gold held in the Treasury has been deducted.

GOLD AND SILVER USED IN THE INDUSTRIAL ARTS.

As in previous years inquiries have been made for the purpose of ascertaining approximately the amount of gold and silver used in the United States in the industrial arts and manufactures.

These inquiries have been confined to ascertaining from Government institutions and from private refineries the amount and value of the bars of gold and silver sold to jewelers and manufacturers for industrial uses during the last calendar year, and as nearly as possible the material used in the manufacture of such bars.

The following table exhibits the quantity and value of the gold and silver bars issued to manufacturers and jewelers by the United States Assay Office at New York during the calendar year 1891:

For the purpose of ascertaining the value of the gold and silver bars furnished by private works for industrial uses, a circular letter, inclosing a form of report, was addressed to forty-one firms in the United States, believed to comprise all the private firms engaged in the manufacture of gold and silver bars.

It is gratifying to be able to report that replies have been received from all the firms addressed, so that the information on this head may be considered complete.

Thirteen firms reported that they had not manufactured any bars for industrial use during the year, while twenty-eight firms furnished reports showing the value and composition of the bars sold by them.

The result of this inquiry on the part of the private works is exhibited in the following table:

Of the bars furnished by private firms to goldsmiths and others for industrial uses $1,904,211 in gold and $945,469 in silver were "United States bars;" that is, bars bearing the stamp of Government institution. As these bars are reported by the institutions issuing the same, to prevent duplication, their value must be deducted from the totals reported by private works.

Eliminating the value of United States bars furnished by private refineries, the following table exhibits the work of private refineries in this line during the calendar year 1891:

GOLD AND SILVER BARS FURNISHED FOR USE IN MANUFACTURES AND THE ARTS DURING THE CALENDAR YEAR 1890, AND CLASSIFICATION OF THE MATERIALS USED.

Comparing the results for the two years, it will be seen that the amount of both gold and silver used in this country for industrial purposes is enormous, and has largely increased.

The value of the gold bars reported as furnished for industrial use during the calendar year 1891 was $16,644,953, against $14,605,901 in 1890, an increase of $2,039,052; and of silver, $9,631,746 in 1891, against $9,031,178 in 1890, an increase of $600,568.

The amount of gold coin reported as used in the composition of bars manufactured for industrial uses was only $458,037, against an estimated melting down annually of $3,500,000 of our own gold coin for industrial uses, based upon four censuses taken by this Bureau for different years as to the direct employment of the precious metals by goldsmiths and others in the manufacture of watches, jewelry, etc.

The melting of coin for industrial uses is principally upon the part of small jewelers, and not by works manufacturing bars.

If there has been no falling off in the amount of coin melted annually for use in repairs and jewelry, the total value of the precious metals used in the industrial arts and manufactures in the United States during the calendar year 1891 was, approximately: Gold, $19,700,000, and silver, $9,630,000, a total of $29,330,000, of which $10,697,679 gold and $7,289,073 silver consisted of new bullion.

It is the practice of the Bureau to tabulate the returns from private refineries covering the value of the bars of gold and silver furnished for industrial purposes only for calendar years. The information covering fiscal years is confined to the work of Government institutions.

The following tables exhibit the quantity and value of the bars of gold and silver furnished by Government institutions for industrial uses during the fiscal year ended June 30, 1892:

Comparing the totals of the above tables with the work of the preceding fiscal year, it appears that the gold bars paid out at the New York assay office and the mint at Philadelphia during the fiscal year 1892 aggregated $11,863,573.30, against $12,267,678.57 in the preceding fiscal year, a decrease of $404,105.27.

For silver, the amount for the fiscal year 1892 paid out by these two institutions was $6,418,934.99, against $5,244,516.60 in the preceding fiscal year, indicating an increase of $1,174,418.39 over the previous year.

PRODUCT OF GOLD AND SILVER.

The detailed statistics of the product of gold and silver in the United States for the calendar year 1891 were presented in a special report to Congress on that subject.

The statistics of the production of the precious metals are collected only for calendar years, under an annual appropriation made by Congress.

The product of gold and silver from the mines of the United States, exclusive of foreign bullion and ores reduced in this country, was for the calendar year 1891 as follows:

PRODUCT OF MINES OF THE UNITED STATES, 1891.

| Metals.     | Fine ounces. | Commercial value. | Coining value. |
|-------------|--------------|-------------------|----------------|
| Gold.....   | 1, 604, 840  | $33, 175, 000    | $33, 175, 000 |

| Total.....  |              | 90, 805, 040      | 108, 591, 565  |

The distribution of the product of our own mines among producing States and Territories was approximately as follows:

In the Appendix will be found a table showing the annual product of gold and silver from the mines of the United States annually since 1792.

A table will also be found, compiled from information furnished at the instance of this Bureau, by foreign governments through our diplomatic representatives abroad, and revised from the latest data, exhibiting the quantity and value of the gold and silver product of the principal producing countries of the world for the calendar years 1889, 1890, and 1891.

In the preparation of this table, in cases where official estimates or reports were not at hand, either the product officially reported for the preceding (or some near year) has been used by way of estimate, or the product as ascertained from other reliable sources, but in all cases where the product credited producing countries is not officially estimated this fact, as well as the data upon which the estimate is based, is stated in a footnote.

For the sake of uniformity the value of silver in this table, as in similar tables published in preceding reports of this Bureau, has been reckoned at its coining rate in silver dollars, viz: $1.2929 per fine ounce.

The following table exhibits the product of the precious metals in the world for each calendar year since 1873:

PRODUCTION OF GOLD AND SILVER IN THE WORLD FOR THE CALENDAR YEARS 1873-1891.

The silver product is given at its commercial value, reckoned at the average market price of silver each year, as well as its coining value in United States dollars.

WORLD'S COINAGE.

In the Appendix will be found a table, revised from the latest information received at the Bureau, exhibiting the coinages of the various countries of the world, during the calendar years 1889, 1890, and 1891.

The following summary is here presented:

WORLD'S COINAGE.

| Calendar years. | Gold.         | Silver.       |
|-----------------|---------------|---------------|
| 1889.....       | $168,901,519 | $139,242,595 |
| 1890.....       | 149,095,865   | 151,032,820   |
| 1891.....       | 119,310,014   | 135,508,083   |

It is believed that the above figures represent substantially the total value of the gold and silver coinages executed in the world during the years herein named.

It must be borne in mind, however, that the total of these coinages does not even approximately represent the amount of new gold and new silver made into coins during the year, for the reason that the coinages as reported include the value of domestic and foreign coins melted for recoinage as well as old material, plate, etc., used in coinage.

In the circular letter of information prepared at this Bureau and sent to foreign Governments through the Department of State, asking for information on these subjects, it was especially requested that each country report the amount of such recoinages. This has been done in many instances, but not in all.

So far as these recoinages have been reported for the calendar years 1890 and 1891, they are presented in the following table:

VALUE OF FOREIGN COINS.

The law requires:

That the value of foreign coins as expressed in the money of account of the United States shall be that of the pure metal of such coin of standard value; and the value of the standard coins in circulation of the various nations of the world shall be estimated quarterly by the Director of the Mint and be proclaimed by the Secretary of the Treasury immediately after the passage of this act and thereafter quarterly on the 1st day of January, April, July, and October in each year.

In accordance with the above requirement the values of foreign coins were estimated by me and proclaimed by the Secretary of the Treasury on January 1, April 1, July 1, and October 1, 1892, to be as follows:

† Coined since January 1, 1886. Old half-imperial = $3.98, 6.

In estimating the value of foreign coins the same practice has been followed as in former years.

In the cases of countries having a gold or double standard, the value of the monetary unit was ascertained by comparing the amount of pure gold in such unit with the pure gold in the United States dollar, and the silver coins of such countries were given the same valuation as the corresponding gold coins, with which they are interchangeable by law.

In the countries having a silver standard the valuations of the silver coins were fixed at the commercial value of the pure silver contained in such coins.

WORK OF THE LABORATORY OF THE BUREAU OF THE MINT.

During the calendar year 1891 there were tested in the laboratory of this bureau, 283 gold coins and 954 silver coins, all of which were found to be within the legal requirements in regard to weight, fineness and mechanical perfection.

Of the gold coins examined 41 per cent were found to be of exact standard fineness, while the pieces deviating most were .900,5 and .899,4 fine, with an average .889,9 fine, the legal limit of tolerance being .001.

Of the silver coins examined 28.30 per cent were standard, while a single piece assayed was .902,5 fine and one piece as low as .898,3 fine. The average was .899,93 fine, the legal limit of tolerance being .001.

Considering the difficulties arising from segregation in silver alloys, these results bear witness to the degree of skill with which coinage is conducted at the mints of the United States.

Tables will be found in the Appendix showing the number and fineness of the coins assayed from each mint, and also the percentage of coins of various degrees of fineness, with the average fineness of the coinage of each mint; also the fineness of all the coins examined during the year.

Special examinations have been made of samples of bullion received by the Philadelphia Mint from the various assay offices of the United States, where the difference in assays of the two institutions was unusual.

Examinations were also made during the year of a number of dangerous counterfeit coins, the most noteworthy of which was an alloy of copper, silver, and platinum, having very nearly the specific gravity of standard gold.

ANNUAL TRIAL OF COINS.

The following commissioners were appointed by the President under the provisions of section 3547 of the Revised Statutes, to test the weight and fineness of the gold and silver coins of the coinage of the calendar year 1892: Hon. William B. Allison, Committee on Finance, United States Senate; Hon. Charles Tracey, Committee on Coinage, Weights and Measures, House of Representatives; William Mayo Newhall, esq., California; Prof. W. H. Chandler, Pennsylvania; George Rutledge Gibson, esq., New York; Prof. I. C. White, West Virginia; George Garretson, esq., Ohio; Andrew B. Hammond, esq., Montana; Henry W. Yates, esq., Nebraska; Henry W. Cannon, esq., New York; Prof. Charles E. Munroe, Rhode Island; Alfred Eoff, esq., Idaho; Gen. Jasper Packard, Indiana; Gen. John T. Wilder, Tennessee; Prof. George F. Barker, Pennsylvania.

The Commission met in Philadelphia on February 10, 1892, and was called to order by the Director of the Mint, and with the exception of Hon. William B. Allison and Hon. Charles Tracey, all of the commissioners were present, together with the following ex officio commissioners: Hon. William Butler, United States judge for the eastern district of Pennsylvania; Hon. E. S. Lacey, Comptroller of the Currency; and Herbert G. Torrey, assayer of the United States assay office at New York.

The committee on counting reported:

The packages containing the pieces reserved by the several mints for the trial of coins, in accordance with section 3539, Revised Statutes, were delivered to us by the superintendent of the mint at Philadelphia.

The number of coins corresponded with the record kept by the Director of the Mint of all transcripts sent him by the several superintendents.

The coins reserved were as follows:

| Mints.                     | Pieces. | Value.     |
|----------------------------|---------|------------|
| GOLD.                      |         |            |
| Philadelphia.....          | 182     | $1,427.50 |
| San Francisco.....         | 1,289   | 25,780.00  |
| Carson.....                | 318     | 2,200.00   |
| New Orleans.....           |         |            |
| Total.....                 | 1,789   | 29,407.50  |
| SILVER.                    |         |            |
| Philadelphia.....          | 14,079  | 5,660.40   |
| San Francisco.....         | 5,356   | 3,085.90   |
| Carson.....                | 809     | 809.00     |
| New Orleans.....           | 6,285   | 4,216.50   |
| Total.....                 | 26,529  | 13,771.80  |
| Total gold and silver..... | 28,318  | 43,179.30  |

The committee on assaying reported:

No coin among those examined was found to deviate from the standard fixed by law beyond the legal tolerance, but they were in all cases far within the legal allowance.

The committee on weighing reported:

The committee on weighing pronounces the examination of the weights of the coinage of the several mints during the year 1892 to be satisfactory.

The result of the annual test is contained in the following resolution adopted by the Commission:

Resolved, That the Assay Commission, having examined and tested the reserved coins of the several mints for the year 1892, and it appearing that these coins do not differ from the standard fineness and weight by a greater quantity than is allowed by law, the trial is considered and reported satisfactory.

THE NEW MINT AT PHILADELPHIA.

In the last fiscal report of this Bureau a full review was presented of the steps taken by the Department and by Congress looking to the erection of a suitable building for the mint at Philadelphia and sale of the present site.

It will be remembered that on March 2, 1891, a law was passed authorizing the purchase of a new site and the erection of a building thereon for the mint at Philadelphia, at a cost not to exceed the sum of $2,000,000; and it was decided by the Attorney-General that owing to the absence of specific words the act carried no appropriation.

Under the authority of that act, however, the Secretary of the Treasury addressed a communication to certain gentlemen residing in Philadelphia, requesting their services as a commission to recommend a suitable site for the Mint of the United States at Philadelphia.

The following is the report of the commission:

PHILADELPHIA, September 8, 1891.

SIR: The Commission designated by you in your communication of July 10, 1891, to recommend to the Department a suitable site for the new mint building in this city, and an estimate of the probable cost, have the honor to submit the following report:

The members of the Commission met for organization in the office of the superintendent of the mint at Philadelphia on the 14th of July, 1891, and selected Edwin H. Fitler as president and O. C. Bosbyshell as secretary.

At this meeting a number of sites were submitted for the consideration of the Commission. Action was deferred thereon until the president, with such other members of the Commission as would, could have an opportunity of personally inspecting the various locations suggested. This inspection was had, and at a meeting of the Commission, held in the office of Messrs. Drexel & Co. on the 18th of August, 1891, it was agreed to recommend to the Department the plot of ground bounded by Walnut, Seventh, Sansom, and Sixth streets as the one best suited for the purposes of a mint.

This lot has a front of 400.5 feet on Walnut street, and a depth running back to Sansom street of 235.2 feet. It contains 94,198 square feet, and an assessed valuation of $516,000, and could, it is believed, be purchased for from $700,000 to $800,000, not exceeding this latter sum. It is located within 500 feet of the custom-house and near the great financial center of the city, and is easy of access from all quarters. Across Walnut street to the south is Washington Square, and across Sixth street on the east Independence Square, two large open plazas that will remain as great breathing places forever.

The beautifying of Independence Square by the erection there of the proposed national monument by the thirteen original States, and in Washington Square the monument to Washington by the Society of the Cincinnati, combined with the convenience of access, renders this site most eligible in all respects for a grand public building. Thus located it can never be shut in by other buildings on two sides. There being 50 and 40 feet streets on the other two sides, it is practically without contact in any direction.

A building can be erected hereon 350 by 200 feet, ample for the purposes of the mint for years, and leave a space of 25 feet on Sixth and on Seventh streets, and of 15 feet on Walnut and on Sansom streets, inside the building line.

We believe this to be in every respect the most eligible site for a mint, and we respectfully recommend its selection by you.

Very respectfully, your obedient servants,

EDWIN H. FITLER.
A. J. DREXEL.
ALEX. K. McCLURE.
JAMES H. WINDRIM.
SAMUEL GUSTINE THOMPSON.
O. C. BOSBYSELL.
WM. M. SINGERLY.

Hon. CHARLES FOSTER,
Secretary of the Treasury, Washington, D. C.

The act making appropriations for sundry civil expenses of the Government for the year ending June 30, 1893, approved August 5, 1892, contained the following provision:

For United States mint building at Philadelphia, Pa.: For purchase of site and commencement of building under present limit, $620,500, together with the unexpended balance of the appropriation made by the act approved October 2, 1888, for an additional story to and enlarging the building, including vaults, alterations, and other necessary work for the United States Mint at Philadelphia, Pa., which unexpended balance is hereby reappropriated for the object herein named.

The total amount appropriated by this act, including the unexpended balance referred to, was $798,624.91.

On September 12, 1892, I had the honor to address the following communication to the Secretary of the Treasury, recommending that steps be taken to procure a suitable site for the mint at Philadelphia.

TREASURY DEPARTMENT, BUREAU OF THE MINT,
Washington, D. C., September 12, 1892.

SIR: I have the honor to invite your attention to the following provision contained in the act making appropriations for sundry civil expenses of the Government for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1893, approved August 5, 1892:

"For United States mint building at Philadelphia, Pennsylvania: For purchase of site and commencement of building under present limit, six hundred and twenty thousand five hundred dollars, together with the unexpended balance of the appropriation made by the act approved October second, eighteen hundred and eighty-eight for an additional story to and enlarging the building, including vaults, alterations, and other necessary work for the United States Mint at Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, which unexpended balance is hereby reappropriated for the object herein named."

The total amount appropriated by this act, including the unexpended balance referred to, is $798,624.91.

I also inclose copy of the law of March 3, 1891, entitled "A bill to provide for the purchase of a site and the erection of a public building thereon in Philadelphia, in the State of Pennsylvania," referred to in the act first quoted. I also inclose the report of the Commission appointed by you under the act of July 10, 1891, in pursuance of the act of March 2, 1891, recommending the selection of the plot of ground bounded by Walnut, Seventh, Sansom, and Sixth streets, in the city of Philadelphia, as the one best suited for the purposes of a mint.

I also inclose a certified copy of the act of the assembly of Pennsylvania, ceding exclusive jurisdiction to the United States over such piece of land in the city of Philadelphia on which the United States may erect a Government building for the use and accommodation of the United States Mint.

I have the honor to request that the necessary steps be taken to procure the site and commence the building for the United States Mint at Philadelphia.

Respectfully yours,

E. O. LEECH,
Director of the Mint.

Hon. CHARLES FOSTER,
Secretary of the Treasury.

In pursuance of this recommendation, on September 16, 1892, James P. Low, of the office of the Supervising Architect, was instructed to proceed to Philadelphia for the purpose of reporting on a suitable site for the mint in that city.

The following is the report of Col. Low:

WASHINGTON, D. C., October 7, 1892.

SIR: In the matter of the selection of the site for the United States Mint at Philadelphia, Pa., in compliance with instructions contained in Department letter of September 16, 1892, I have the honor to report as follows:

I have carefully examined, in connection with the report dated September 8, 1891, of the Commission of which the Hon. E. H. Fitler was president, all the properties considered by that Commission. I have also examined other sites offered to me during my stay in Philadelphia, and have visited all the localities suggested by citizens as proper sites for the mint, but not offered by the owners.

I also gave full opportunity to the citizens to submit orally or in writing their opinions and suggestions. I have, as instructed, conferred with the Director of the Mint, the superintendent of the Philadelphia Mint, the members of the Commission appointed by the Department July 10, 1891, the United States district attorney, the postmaster, and the mayor of the city.

As far as possible, within the time at my disposal, I have investigated the question of the values of the sites, and in particular have addressed letters asking for prices to owners, or agents of owners, of the parcels included in the site recommended by the Commission (on Walnut street, opposite Washington Square); also, to owners of parcels included in the site which seemed to be in a sense the second choice of the Commission, namely, that at the corner of Broad and Spring Garden streets.

After carefully considering all the information obtained, and giving due weight to such suggestions as are made by persons who disapprove of the selection made by the Commission, I concur in the recommendation of the Commission, and advise that the Department select as the site for the mint the block bounded by Walnut, Sansom, Sixth, and Seventh streets.

I further recommend that proceedings in condemnation be instituted for the acquisition of title.

My reasons for making these recommendations are these:

First. The area of the site is sufficient for a commodious building of four times the ground-floor area of the present mint, after allowing for a liberal increase of the width of Sansom street.

Second. The foundations will be almost certainly good, as indicated by the results of excavations for the Ledger building, on the opposite side of Sansom street.

Third. The locality is convenient for the resident public and for visitors, is near to the center of financial business, and to handsome buildings, the number of which will without doubt rapidly increase until the whole vicinity is well improved with costly structures.

Fourth. The site has the unique advantage of facing on two fronts upon squares improved as parks—that is, Washington Square on the Walnut street front, and Independence Square opposite the Sixth street front. These two exposures to the parks will not only handsomely exhibit the structure, but be practically advantageous for light and air. In this respect it is difficult to imagine a more appropriate location for a public building.

Fifth. The location has great advantages for the security of the treasure deposited in the mint, both on account of the vigilance of police and private watchmen in the vicinity of banks and other valuable property, and because the parks afford space for the assemblage and encampment of troops in case of riotous outbreaks.

Sixth. The probable cost of the site ($800,000, as estimated by the commission) is not unreasonable, and will leave within the limit fixed by law for cost of site a building an amount sufficient for the erection of a building, say, double the floor area of the present mint. There then would remain a space on the site for a future extension of the building, should necessity require, to four times the floor area of the present mint.

Seventh. I believe that this selection will be received with general public approval. When originally suggested by the commission, as I am informed, no dissenting opinion was expressed, the newspapers, without exception, commending the choice. Within the last two weeks two papers have come out in opposition; but I notice no response worthy of mention on the part of the public, and I think that the approval of the finding of the commission is substantially general.

Eighth. Proceedings in condemnation will be necessary, because there are more than thirty ownerships on the site; but few owners will fix a price. Those prices which are fixed are almost without exception unreasonable; and there are some cases in which condemnation will be necessary to clear the title.

To avoid extending this report and yet preserve the information on the files of the Department, I attach details of my investigations in the form of exhibits.

Very respectfully, your obedient servant,

JAMES P. LOW.

The SECRETARY OF THE TREASURY.

The following action was taken by the Secretary upon this report:

This report is approved, and action will be taken in accordance with the recommendation therein contained.

O. L. SPAULDING,
Acting Secretary.

The same day the following communication was addressed by the Secretary of the Treasury to the Attorney-General, requesting that proceedings be instituted to condemn the property selected for the site of the United States mint building in Philadelphia—viz, the entire block of property bounded by Seventh, Sansom, Sixth, and Walnut streets in the city of Philadelphia:

TREASURY DEPARTMENT, OFFICE OF THE SECRETARY,
Washington, D. C., October 7, 1892.

SIR: I have the honor to advise you that on the 16th ultimo the Department directed an agent to proceed to Philadelphia, Pa., for the purpose of making a thorough examination and inspection of properties for a site for the United States Mint building authorized by acts of Congress approved March 3, 1891, and August 5, 1892, to be erected in said city, and submit his report and recommendation in regard thereto.

Under date of the 7th instant the agent submitted his report and recommendation with all the papers in the case.

After a full consideration of the subject the Department has selected the entire block of property bounded by Seventh, Sansom, Sixth, and Walnut streets, in the city of Philadelphia, Pa., as a site for the United States Mint building authorized to be erected in said city by said acts of Congress, and decided that the interests of the Government will be best served by acquiring title to said block of property through condemnation.

I inclose herewith a plat of the above described property.

Pursuant to said acts of Congress approved March 3, 1891, and August 5, 1892, and in accordance with the provisions of act of Congress approved August 1, 1888 (chap. 728, p. 357, vol. 25, U. S. Stat. L.), I have the honor to request that you will give such instructions to the United States attorney for the eastern district of Pennsylvania as may be necessary to have proceedings in condemnation instituted against the above described property, in order that the United States may acquire title thereto, and that you will advise this Department of the result of such proceedings, and the effect of the same relative to vesting title in said property in the United States.

Respectfully, yours,

The ATTORNEY-GENERAL.

CHARLES FOSTER,
Secretary.

SUMMARY OF OPERATIONS OF MINTS AND ASSAY OFFICES.

The precious metals received at the mints and assay offices during the fiscal year 1892 were valued at $150,399,906, against $143,255,832 received in the previous year—an increase of $7,144,074.

The value of the precious metals deposited only partially represents the operations necessary for their metallurgical and mechanical treatment.

The operations of the melting and refining departments of the coinage mints and of the assay office at New York, so far as the value of the metals treated is concerned, is exhibited in the following table:

BULLION OPERATIONS OF THE MELTING DEPARTMENTS, 1892.

| Metals.     | Standard ounces. | Coining value. |
|-------------|------------------|----------------|
| Gold.....   | 5,047,638        | $93,909,547   |
| Silver..... | 40,056,926       | 46,611,604     |
| Total.....  | 45,104,564       | 140,521,241    |

The operations of the coining branches of the mints in the manufacture of finished coins from ingots prepared by the melting departments were, in value of the metals operated on, as follows:

BULLION OPERATIONS OF THE COINING DEPARTMENTS, 1892.

| Metals.     | Standard ounces. | Coining value. |
|-------------|------------------|----------------|
| Gold.....   | 3,855,205        | $71,724,742   |
| Silver..... | 25,657,180       | 29,855,627     |
| Total.....  | 29,512,385       | 101,580,369    |

The work of the minor assay offices, which consisted in the receipt and assaying of deposits and the manufacture of unparted bars of gold and silver, was as follows:

OPERATIONS OF MINOR ASSAY OFFICES, 1892.

| Metals.     | Standard ounces. | Coining value. |
|-------------|------------------|----------------|
| Gold.....   | 225,914          | $4,203,056    |
| Silver..... | 109,828          | 127,800        |
| Total.....  | 335,742          | 4,330,856      |

The following is a summary of the three preceding tables, intended to exhibit, as nearly as possible, the value of the precious metals treated in the operations of the mints and assay offices during the last fiscal year:

BULLION OPERATED UPON IN THE MELTING AND COINING DEPARTMENTS OF ALL THE MINTS AND ASSAY OFFICES, 1892.

| Metals.     | Standard ounces. | Coining value. |
|-------------|------------------|----------------|
| Gold.....   | 9,128,757        | $109,837,345  |
| Silver..... | 65,823,934       | 75,595,121     |
| Total.....  | 74,952,691       | 245,432,466    |

In quantity the precious metals operated upon in the different departments of the mints and assay offices during the last fiscal year exceeded 313 tons of gold and 2,257 tons of silver.

The value of the precious metals wasted in the metallurgical and mechanical operations was $13,794.95.

In addition to operative wastage, a loss of $12,651.41 was incurred from the sale of sweeps, equivalent to the difference between the value of the precious metals contained in sweeps recovered and the amount realized from the sale of sweeps too base to be treated advantageously in Government refineries.

There was a similar loss of $114.03 by the sale of leady melts.

These wastages and losses aggregated $26,560.39.

Against these losses there were gains arising from the operation on bullion as follows:

| Character.  | Amount      |
|---|-------------|
| Surplus bullion returned by operative officers.....                               | $27,292.46 |
| Precious metals recovered in grains and sweepings.....                            | 7,331.58    |
| Gain on bullion shipped from the minor assay offices to the mint for coinage..... | 4,994.42    |
| Total gains.....  | 39,618.46   |

Deducting the value of the total operative wastage and loss on sale of sweeps from the value of the incidental gains of bullion, there was a net gain in the operations of the mints during the year of $13,058.46.

The relative cost of the coinage executed at the four coinage mints is exhibited in the following table:

COST OF COINAGE AT EACH MINT, 1892.

| Location of mint.      | Pieces coined. | Pieces coined, exclusive of minor coins. | Expenses for salaries, wages and incidentals. | Cost per piece including minor coinage. | Cost per piece, exclusive of minor coinage. |
|------------------------|----------------|--|---|---|---|
| Philadelphia.....      | 89,948,302     | 28,365,828                               | $416,146.57                                  | $0.0046+                               | $0.0146+                                   |
| San Francisco.....     | 8,863,038      | 8,863,038                                | 257,464.90                                    | .....                                   | .029+                                       |
| New Orleans.....       | 13,128,316     | 13,128,316                               | 154,683.51                                    | .....                                   | .0118+                                      |
| Carson.....            | 1,616,468      | 1,616,468                                | 123,557.25                                    | .....                                   | .0764+                                      |
| Total and average..... | 113,556,124    | 51,973,650                               | 951,852.23                                    | .0083+                                  | .0183+                                      |

It is exceedingly gratifying to report that the cost per piece of coinage executed was reduced during the last fiscal year from an average of nearly one cent to an average of eight-tenths of one cent, while the cost per piece, exclusive of minor coins struck, was reduced from about two cents in 1891 to one and eight-tenths cents in 1892.

The economy, however, is more marked when the cost of coinage is compared with the year 1890, when the average cost of coinage executed exceeded one cent per piece, or, excluding minor coins, two and one-half cents a piece.

The following table exhibits the proportion of finished coins produced from ingots operated upon at each of the coinage mints during the year:

PERCENTAGE OF GOOD COIN PRODUCED FROM INGOTS OPERATED UPON, FOR THE FISCAL YEAR 1892.

| Coinage mints—     | Gold. | Silver. |
|--------------------|-------|---------|
| Philadelphia.....  | 44.8  | 52.3    |
| San Francisco..... | 51.8  | 47.0    |
| New Orleans.....   |       | 49.10   |
| Carson.....        | 51.49 | 54.1    |

MINT AT PHILADELPHIA.

The value of gold and silver received at the mint at Philadelphia during the fiscal year ended June 30, 1892, was as follows:

| Metal.      | Standard ounces. | Value.            |
|-------------|------------------|-------------------|
| Gold.....   | 311, 513. 765    | $5, 795, 604. 93 |
| Silver..... | 49, 608, 969. 93 | 57, 726, 801. 37  |
| Total.....  |                  | 63, 522, 406. 30  |

In addition, 535,967 pounds of minor coinage blanks were received. The number of assays made during the year was:

|             |         |
|-------------|---------|
| Gold.....   | 18, 500 |
| Silver..... | 40, 000 |

The quantity of precious metals operated upon in the metallurgical department was:

|             | Standard ounces. |
|-------------|------------------|
| Gold.....   | 1, 689, 539      |
| Silver..... | 11, 088, 986     |

The melter and refiner returned in settlement a surplus of 1,709.99 standard ounces in silver. His wastage was 128.240 standard ounces in gold.

The number of melts made in the same department and the number condemned during the year were as follows:

The operations of the coining department, comprising gold, silver and minor coinage metal, are exhibited in the following table:

| Metals operated on. | Ounces.   |
|---------------------|-----------|
| Gold .....          | 1,234,616 |
| Silver .....        | 9,429,340 |
| Minor coinage ..... | 8,605,470 |

The wastage of the mechanical department was:

| Description. | Standard ounces. |
|--------------|------------------|
| Gold .....   | 50.602           |
| Silver ..... | 1,690.92         |

As will be seen the wastage in the mechanical branch of the mint was small, reference being had to the large amount operated upon.

The coinage executed was as follows:

| Description.      | Number of pieces. | Value.          |
|-------------------|-------------------|-----------------|
| Gold .....        | 1,340,042         | $10,282,147.50 |
| Silver .....      | 27,025,786        | 5,691,509.25    |
| Minor coins ..... | 61,582,474        | 1,296,710.42    |
| Total .....       | 89,948,302        | 17,270,367.17   |

The percentage of good coin produced from ignots operated on was:

|              | Per cent. |
|--------------|-----------|
| Gold .....   | 44.8      |
| Silver ..... | 52.3      |

MEDALS MANUFACTURED, 1892.

At the close of the fiscal year the bullion and coin in the mint at Philadelphia were weighed and counted by Messrs F. P. Gross, W. E. Morgan, and F. W. Braddock, of this Bureau, who reported in writing that they had found on hand all the public money with which the superintendent was charged.

During the last fiscal year there has been introduced into the mint at Philadelphia Brown's patent annealing process, with most gratifying results.

This process consists of a bath composed of the nitrate of potassium heated to a temperature of about 900° F. At this heat the bath is in a limpid, molten condition, favorable for the introduction of the rolled strips of silver to be annealed, and in which they are immersed remaining so immersed from ten to fifteen minutes, when they assume the same low cherry red heat of the bath; they are then removed and cooled in water. The bath is held in an iron vessel, which vessel is heated by coal, and it seems to be the property of the material composing the bath to maintain a uniform temperature of heat, so that a danger of overheating or the irregular heating of any portion of the strips can not occur. The absolute regular heat of the bath, affecting the entire strip at every point, is a wonderful improvement over our old method of annealing strips in a few furnaces heated by wood.

The new process affords a great saving in time, and permits the annealing of a larger mass of strips than was possible in the open wood-heated furnaces.

What formerly occupied twenty to twenty-five minutes to accomplish can be done in the bath in ten to fifteen minutes, and the mass to be annealed is only limited to the capacity of the bath to hold them.

The materials comprising the bath and the fuel used to heat it can be secured at a saving of about 50 per centum over the cost of wood required to heat the old annealing furnaces.

In the use of this new process it has developed that a much larger per centum of good blanks is produced from the strips annealed therein than could be obtained under the old way.

Many improvements have been introduced into the mint at Philadelphia during the last fiscal year, carrying out the general purpose of the superintendent to place the mint in as efficient condition as possible. By continuing the extension over the adjusting room, so as to include the roof over the engraving department, a very commodious room has been secured for the use of the engraver for softening die steels, and hardening the dies after completion. For this purpose gas furnaces supplied by the American Gas Furnace Company of New York, have been introduced, which greatly facilitate the work.

The machinery in the rolling room has been rearranged, so as to make available all the space possible. This shifting necessitated additional shafting, which has been placed on the ceiling of the room, the machinery now being driven from above instead of below. Additional self-feeding cutting presses and draw benches have been added, and also new rolls.

A new and improved topping press has been erected in the melting room.

The machine shop has been supplied with a 16-inch lathe, and one Brush die-grinding machine with a number of minor tools.

The cabinet has been overhauled, cleaned, repaired, and freshly painted; cases for coins freshly and distinctly marked.

The rooms generally, with grounds and machinery, have been kept in repair, and all proper facilities have been afforded for carrying on the business of the mint.

Other improvements are contemplated, and under way, looking to the relief of the crowded basement, which, when completed, will afford more room for the storage of silver bars, the existing vaults for which are fast filling up.

The expenditures for the different classes of supplies at the mint at Philadelphia during the past fiscal year were as follows:

MINT AT SAN FRANCISCO.

The weight and value of the precious metals deposited at the mint at San Francisco during the fiscal year 1892, was:

| Metal.      | Standard ounces. | Value.       |
|-------------|------------------|--------------|
| Gold.....   | 1,335,395        | $24,844,571 |
| Silver..... | 8,761,675        | 10,198,404   |
| Total ..... |                  | 35,039,975   |

The melter and refiner received during the fiscal year bullion containing 2,526,391.501 standard ounces of gold.

He returned in settlement a surplus of 887.450 standard ounces of gold and 426.83 standard ounces of silver.

The operations of the refinery comprise 207,343 standard ounces of gold, and 713,901 standard ounces of silver.

The melter and refiner manufactured during the year 21 fine silver bars. He made 843 melts of gold ingots, of which 3 were condemned, and 2,249 melts of silver ingots, of which 1 was condemned.

The number of melts of ingots made and condemned at this mint from 1879 to 1892 have been, as follows:

The coiner received and operated on 2,581,566 standard ounces of gold, and 4,024,885 standard ounces of silver.

The same officer manufactured $23,400,000 in gold coin, and $2,193,983.35 in silver coin, with a wastage of gold, 116.377 standard ounces, and of silver 548.57.

The gold wastage in the mechanical department was somewhat larger than usual, although it was only  $9\frac{1}{2}$  per cent of the legal allowance.

The proportion of finished coin produced from ingots operated upon was gold, 51.8 per cent, silver 47 per cent. The percentage of silver was not as high as usual.

The operations of the coining branch of the mint at San Francisco for a series of years are exhibited in the following table:

At the close of the fiscal year the bullion and coin in the mint were weighed and counted by Messrs. Cabell Whitehead, of this Bureau and E. K. Leech, of the mint at Philadelphia, who reported in writing that they found on hand all the public money with which the superintendent was charged.

MINT AT NEW ORLEANS.

The precious metals deposited at the mint at New Orleans, during the last fiscal year, were as follows:

| Metal.      | Standard ounces. | Value.    |
|-------------|------------------|-----------|
| Gold.....   | 6,200            | $152,572 |
| Silver..... | 6,275,247        | 7,302,105 |
| Total ..... |                  | 7,454,677 |

The work of the assay department consisted of 11,032 silver assays, and 912 gold assays, a total of 11,994 assays.

The operations of the metallurgical department, covering a period of fourteen months, from May 1, 1891, to June 30, 1892, were as follows:

|                                       | Standard ounces. |
|---------------------------------------|------------------|
| Gold received and operated on .....   | 14,814           |
| Silver received and operated on ..... | 12,452,571       |

The melter and refiner returned in settlement a surplus of 8,991 standard ounces of gold, valued at $152.39. He had a wastage of 4,128.81 standard ounces of silver, or 22.1 per cent of his legal allowance.

From the examination made by Mr. Butler, of this Bureau, it was reported that over 2,000 ounces of this wastage was incurred in refining silver bullion, some 87,000 ounces, received from the Rescue mine, in Arizona, which contained considerable sulphide of silver.

The operations of the coining department was confined to silver.

The coiner received and operated upon 12,263,912 standard ounces of silver ingots with wastage of 2,059.04 standard ounces, or 16.82 per cent of his legal allowance.

While this loss is large as compared with the loss in the mechanical branches of the other mints, it is somewhat less than the silver loss in the same department of this mint for the last three years.

During the year an artesian well has been sunk at the mint at New Orleans, which affords an abundant supply of clear, potable water, free from mineral substances, and of most excellent quality for steam. This will save the mint an annual expense of $1,500 for water rent.

A Babcock and Wilcox Company tubular boiler has been substituted for the four old cylinder boilers which have been in use since 1879. The work of the new boiler has been very satisfactory, and it is estimated that a saving of fuel will be effected equal to 50 per cent.

The following table exhibits the denominations of United States gold coins melted at the mint at New Orleans during the last fiscal year:

Compared with the previous year, there was an increase of about $5,000,000 in gold deposits and a decrease of about $600,000 in silver deposits.

The total number of bars manufactured was 56,518.

The bullion operated upon in the metallurgical department amounted to 7,433,780 gross ounces. The amount refined by acid was 3,611,593 ounces gross, containing 599,216 ounces of standard gold and 2,972,824 ounces of standard silver. The amount of sulphuric acid used was 1,441,420 pounds. The proceeds of sales of blue vitriol and spent acid [by-products] amounted to $7,510.81.

The bullion returned by the melter and refiner to the superintendent at the close of the year, in excess of what was charged in his account, was 469.902 ounces of standard gold and 26.83 ounces of standard silver, of the total value of $8,769.18. The machinery and apparatus in this department have been renewed in enlarged and improved form, to some extent.

The work of the assay department comprised the testing of some 13,000 melts of bullion, 600 barrels of sweeps, besides 500 special assays. The assayer reports that during the year he found considerable percentages of platinum in many deposits of so-called refined gold, and for the determination of the silver alloyed therewith has adopted the cadmium process, suggested by Mr. Whitehead, the assayer of the Mint Bureau, finding it to work admirably.

At the close of the year the bullion was weighed and the coin counted by Messrs. H. C. Steir, of the First Auditor's Office, and E. N. Gilpin, of the First Comptroller's Office, Treasury Department, who reported that they found on hand all the bullion and coin with which the superintendent was charged.

The expenditures of the assay office at New York for the different classes of supplies are exhibited in the following table:

ASSAY OFFICE AT CHARLOTTE, N. C.

There is a marked tendency on the part of the producers of gold in the Appalachian Range to send it to the assay office at Charlotte. In former years a very large proportion was shipped direct to Philadelphia and New York, as well as abroad. With few exceptions all of the deposits now go direct to the assay office at Charlotte.

Some improvements have been made in connection with this institution during the year. The laboratory has been improved and gas furnaces erected. The grounds and outhouses have been thoroughly overhauled, and the general appearance of the property improved.

The business of the assay office at Charlotte, N. C., is exhibited in the following table:

ASSAY OFFICE AT ST. LOUIS.

The business of the assay office at St. Louis for the fiscal year 1892 is exhibited in the following table:

| Items.        | Amount.      |
|---------------|--------------|
| Deposits..... | $707,902.73 |
| Earnings..... | 1,655.15     |
| Expenses..... | 5,882.17     |

Percentage of net expenses to deposits, 0.6 per cent.

The deposits show a gain for the year 1892 over the previous year of $227,461.47, or 47½ per cent, showing that the business of the institution almost doubled during the last fiscal year, while the percentage of expenses to deposits was reduced from 0.9 of 1 per cent to 0.6 of 1 per cent.

In addition to the work exhibited above, assays of ores were made for the United States surveyor of customs, free of expense, which would have cost the Government $176 if paid for according to the official schedule in force in the assay office.

The expenditures of this office for the different classes of supplies during the fiscal year were as follows:

EXPENDITURES AT THE ASSAY OFFICE, AT ST. LOUIS, MO., FOR THE FISCAL YEAR ENDING JUNE 30, 1892.

MONETARY STATISTICS OF FOREIGN COUNTRIES.

The statistics of the coinage and production of the precious metals in foreign countries, published annually in the reports of this Bureau, are obtained directly from the governments of such countries by our representatives abroad, a fact which invests them with the highest degree of reliability, and explains why it is that the reports of the Mint Bureau have come to be recognized, the world over, as the most exhaustive and trustworthy authority on the statistics relating to these subjects.

The points on which information is sought are embodied in a set of questions in a circular sent through the Department of State to our diplomatic representatives abroad, and the answers are received in the form of a report direct to this Bureau.

The questions covering the calendar year 1891 were as follows:

(1) What was the amount of gold coined during the calendar year 1891 by denominations and values? What amount was recoined (withdrawn from circulation) during the year, domestic and foreign coins separately?

(2) Same for silver.

(3) What was the import and export of gold during the calendar year 1891? Coin, bullion, and ore should be given separately where practicable.

(4) Same for silver.

(5) What was the weight, expressed in kilograms, and the value of the gold produced from the mines during the calendar year 1891?

(6) Same for silver.

(7) What, approximately, was the stock of gold coin and bullion in the country at the close of the calendar year 1891?

(8) Same for silver.

(9) What was the amount of Government and bank notes outstanding at the same date?

(10) Were any laws passed during the year 1891 affecting the coinage, issue, or legal-tender character of the metallic and paper circulation. If so, please transmit copies.

(11) In case the report of the operations of the mint is published please forward a copy.

These replies should be in the form of a report, written on one side of the paper only and transmitted direct to the "Director of the Mint, Treasury Department, Washington, D. C."

This year as usual we have supplemented the information received through our ministers and consuls abroad by information from printed documents, some official and others not. We hereby express our acknowledgment to the senders for Twenty-second Annual Report of the Deputy Master of the Royal Mint, 1891, London, 1892; Government of India, Financial Statement, 1892-'93, Calcutta, 1892; Finance and Revenue Accounts and Miscellaneous Statistics relating to the Finances of British India, Calcutta, 1892; Report of the Head Commissioner of Paper Currency, Calcutta, to the Secretary of the Government of India for the year 1891-'92, Calcutta, 1892; Accounts Relating to the Trade and Navigation of British India for the Fiscal Year 1891-'92, Calcutta, 1892; Report on the Administration of the Mints at Bombay and Calcutta for the year 1891-'92, Simla, 1892; Annual Report of the Secretary of Mines of Victoria during the year 1891, Melbourne, 1892; The Australian Insurance and Banking Record, 1892; Broken Hill (notes on by Robert L. Of the gold coinage all were sovereigns except £543,942 in half sovereigns.

It is estimated that the withdrawal of the pre-Victorian gold coins has reached a total of £2,489,000.

An important step toward placing the gold coinage of Great Britain on a satisfactory footing was taken during the year 1891 by extending the application of the principle first adopted in the coinage act of 1832 as to the pre-Victorian gold pieces to the entire gold circulation, that is, to redeem without loss to the owner light gold coins which had not been illegally dealt with.

The amount of silver crowns issued since the resumption of the coinage of crowns in 1887 has been £939,935 ($4,574,194), and of double florins £533,125 ($2,594,453).

|   |  |           |

Through the kindness of Mr. Anderson, the deputy master of the Melbourne Mint, I am able to present an approximate statement of the product of gold and silver in Australasia by colonies during the calendar year 1891, which will be found in the Appendix.

The total gross product of gold was 1,651,151 ounces.

British India.—The coinages executed at the Indian mints during the calendar year 1891 were as follows:

| Metals.     | Value.                     | Value in United States money. |
|-------------|----------------------------|-------------------------------|
| Gold.....   | Rupees.247, 860 | $117, 411                    |

On April 22, 1891, a census was taken of the circulating medium of France, both paper and metallic, by an examination of the amounts and kinds in the hands of Treasury agents, post-offices, and other branches of the Government, as well as in the Bank of France and other banks.

The sum examined was about 120,000,000 francs, composed of 97,000,000 francs in notes and 23,000,000 in coins.

Of the coins 16,000,000 were gold and 7,000,000 silver. It was found that nearly 90 per cent of the coin in circulation was of French coinage.

BELGIUM.

The mint at Brussels was closed during the calendar year 1891, and has not since been reopened.

The silver coinage for Congo, completed during the year 1891, before the closing of the mint, amounted to 300,000 francs ($57,900).

The amount of bank notes of the national bank of Belgium outstanding December 31, 1891, was 512,950,000 francs ($98,999,350).

The commission appointed by the Austro-Hungarian Governments to inquire into the best monetary system for the empire have reported in favor of the single gold standard, and bills providing for the change in the currency have passed the Austrian and Hungarian legislatures.

The provisions of this currency reform are embodied in six bills; the two most important are those embracing the new currency system and the monetary treaty of Austria with Hungary. These two have already become laws, as have also the other four, which are merely auxiliary to the two which contain the text of the new fundamental monetary law of the two countries. The four auxiliary bills are intended to fix the relative value of the gold florin to the new gold coins, to determine the changes which have become necessary in the bank act, to authorize the Government to raise a gold loan, and to provide for the conversion of certain 5 per cent bonds free of tax. The new monetary unit is the gold crown, weighing .3387 grams of gold,

.900 fine, and containing .304878 grams of pure gold. Its value in United States money is $0.2026.

The new currency is to consist of gold, silver, nickel, and bronze coins.

The gold coins provided for are:

(1) A 20-crown piece weighing 6.775067 grams of gold, .900 fine, containing of pure gold 6.09756 grams.

(2) A 10-crown piece weighing half the former.

(3) Besides the gold coins above-mentioned there are to be coined as heretofore, and as trade coins, Austrian gold ducats. The 4 and 8 gulden pieces are to be no longer coined.

The coinage charge is fixed at 4 crowns for each kilogram of standard gold for the bank and 6 on individual account.

The new silver coin is:

The 1-crown piece weighing 5 grams of silver, .835 fine, and containing 4.175 grams of pure metal.

The ratio of gold to silver in the new system is 1 to 13.69.

Silver is coined only on account of the state. Silver coins are legal tender at their nominal value among private parties to the amount of 50 crowns, but in unlimited quantities to the state.

The Levantine, or Maria-Theresa thalers will continue to be stamped as trade coins, at the old weight and fineness.

The monetary agreement between Austria and Hungary provides that the total coinage of silver coins shall be 200,000,000 crowns, of which Austria's share is 140,000,000 crowns. The agreement is to remain in force until the year 1910.

Arrangements are to be made at the proper time for the regulation of the fiduciary circulation and the resumption of specie payments.

Austrian paper money is to remain in circulation provisionally, the paper florin to be worth 2 crowns.

The introduction of the coins of the new system will be made by degrees, in the course of several years, during which time the coins of the old silver standard, as well as the state notes, will remain current. The coins of the new system multiplied by 2 are to be of the same value as the pieces of the old silver and paper currency, each silver or paper florin to be equal to 2 crowns.

WORK OF THE BUREAU OF THE MINT.

It is with great pleasure that I bear testimony to the zeal and fidelity with which the officers and clerks of this Bureau have performed the onerous and responsible duties which have been intrusted to them during the last year.

The work of this Bureau, especially in the line of the preparation of monetary statistics, has increased to such proportions as to seriously tax the capacity of the office to promptly supply the information called for. Owing very largely to the importance which coinage and currency questions have assumed in national legislation in recent years, there has been required of this Bureau, in addition to the regular work, the compilation of a vast amount of statistical matter covering the product, use, and movement of the precious metals not only in this country, but in all countries.

All this work has been cheerfully met and promptly performed by the small clerical force at my disposal.

I am, very respectfully, yours,

EDWARD O. LEECH,
Director of the Mint.

Hon. CHARLES FOSTER,
Secretary of the Treasury.
