

UNPACKING THE TRUNK

A normal limb, like an arm, is moved by muscles pulling against jointed bones. But the fleshy trunk works by muscles pulling against other muscles. The two nostril tubes are surrounded by more than 100,000 muscle units, some of which run from the skull and interlace with shorter radiating muscles.

Figure 19. Trunk Muscles of Elephant.